OVERVIEW

Tax expenditures are provisions of law that allow for special treatment of a source of income or certain types of expenses that results in a reduction in the tax liability for a taxpayer or group of taxpayers. In Alabama, these expenditures are established by statute and, in some cases, the Constitution. Generally, the tax benefits realized by the taxpayer or group of taxpayers could be provided by direct appropriation; therefore, the provisions are referred to as "expenditures". Expenditures represent revenues that would have otherwise been generated if not for the preferential treatment.

Tax expenditures are intended to achieve a policy objective or encourage some activity. The value or cost of a tax expenditure can be thought of as the amount of money required to provide the same level of support through direct appropriation rather than preferential tax treatment. The benefits of tax expenditures are received by businesses and individual taxpayers. They are present in all of Alabama's major taxes. This includes the individual income tax, corporate income tax, and sales and use taxes.

The expenditures listed in this publication represent the most relevant for each tax and may not include the smaller expenditures allowed for each tax.

The purpose of this report is to list the tax expenditures for major tax sources and, where possible, provide an estimate of the value of the tax expenditures. This report does not include:

1. An evaluation or recommendation regarding the various tax expenditures as to their effectiveness in fulfilling the desired public policy objective.
2. Estimates of the impact of the various exemptions on local government revenues, although many of the exemptions also apply to local governments.
3. Estimates of the tax expenditures associated with professional and recreational license fees. Those funds are utilized to regulate the affected profession or activity and do not generate funds for the general benefit of the state.
4. With certain exceptions, revenue lost due to government exemptions is not estimated. The state generally does not tax other governments and many taxes include those types of exemptions.

Tax Expenditure Report Requirement

Section 29-5A-46, Code of Alabama 1975, requires the Fiscal Division of the Legislative Services Agency to prepare and submit a biennial report to the Legislature which lists all state tax expenditures and the estimated costs associated with each of the tax expenditures. For purposes of this report, tax expenditures mean state revenue losses attributable to a special exclusion, exemption, deduction, or special credit or preferential tax rate.

The information required to be included in the report is as follows:

1. Each annual tax expenditures and its constitutional and/or statutory citation.
2. An estimate of the revenue loss to the state caused by each tax expenditure for the most recently completed fiscal year.

3. Tax expenditures, organized by the funds into which the tax expenditures would be dedicated, but for the exemptions discounts and rate differentials.

When necessary, the Fiscal Division will modify this report to present additional information required or eliminate obsolete information.

Data Sources and Methodology

To the extent possible, data from the Alabama Department of Revenue (DOR) was used to estimate the expenditures included in this report. When the required information was not available from the Department, other data sources such as information from other state agencies, the U.S. Census Bureau, the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis, the U.S. Department of Labor, proprietary information, and secondary sources were used. Data compiled reflects the most current and accurate depiction of expenditure costs available. The Fiscal Division made every effort to provide reliable, well supported estimates of the expenditures. Totals presented may not represent the exact figures due to rounding to the nearest thousand.

The following methodology was utilized in completing the estimate:

1. Each tax expenditure item was estimated independently of other tax expenditures although the existence of a tax provision may impact the use of another provision.
2. Tax expenditure estimates do not consider the impact on other taxes that might result from the elimination of a tax provision.
3. If a lack of information prevents the Fiscal Division from making a reasonable estimate for any individual tax expenditure, the expenditure is listed with a notation that no estimate is available (NEA).

Summary Charts

The following pages provide:

1. A recap of the amount of expenditures estimated by tax, including the total estimated annual revenue loss from the expenditures.
2. A recap of the funds affected by the tax expenditures and the annual revenue loss from the tax expenditures where estimates could be provided.
3. A chart comparing the taxes included in the report with the highest collections in Fiscal Year 2023 and the estimated tax expenditures for those taxes.
4. A chart illustrating the five tax sources with the largest annual total tax expenditures.

Introduction

An indirect expenditure is a provision of state law that results in foregone revenue to the state to serve a certain public policy purpose. Department of Revenue's (DOR's) Indirect Expenditure Report is submitted in accordance with Alaska Statute (AS) 43.05.095 as a biennial report to the Chairs of the Alaska State House and Senate Finance Committees and the Legislative Finance Division. This requirement was enacted as part of House Bill 306, passed by the Alaska Legislature in 2014. DOR's Indirect Expenditure Report was first published in 2014 and is updated every two years.

The 2014 enacting legislation of this report, House Bill 306, established two different reports: DOR's Indirect Expenditure Report, and the Legislative Finance Division's Indirect Expenditure Report. While the reports share the same name, they have two different purposes. DOR's Indirect Expenditure Report compiles and reports indirect expenditure data and information for all departments, agencies, and state public corporations. Legislative Finance's Indirect Expenditure Report provides an analysis of the effectiveness of the state's indirect expenditures using the information from DOR's Report and provides policy recommendations to the Legislature.

Summary

This 2024 report contains 246 indirect expenditures from 12 state departments and agencies, with total revenue impacts of approximately $1.56 billion in fiscal year (FY) 2022 and at least $1.65 billion in FY 2023. FY 2023 data was not yet complete for certain tax types, including Corporate Income Tax and Mining License Tax, at the time this report was published. Final values for FY 2023 indirect expenditure revenue impacts may increase when this additional data becomes available and will be included in the 2026 report. DOR administers 73 indirect expenditures, by far the greatest number of provisions of any one department or agency. The revenue impacts of indirect expenditures administered by DOR accounted for about 90% of total statewide revenue impact in both FY 2022 and FY 2023.

Overview and Purpose

When determining the state budget, program expenditures and other spending are often evaluated and scrutinized, especially in a period of declining state revenues. The Indirect Expenditure Report is intended to provide information to the Alaska State Legislature and the public about foregone state revenues.

While indirect expenditures do not constitute direct spending, they are an important component of how the state chooses to allocate resources. Indirect expenditures are often implemented to incentivize behavior, achieve policy goals, or provide a public benefit. Examples include the reduced tax rate on small breweries, which was established to foster the development of breweries and brewpubs in Alaska, the Community Development Quota Credit to provide jobs and training in western Alaska, and hunting and fishing fee waivers for seniors and veterans with disabilities.

The Indirect Expenditure Report enables the legislature and the public to evaluate the cost and benefit of these provisions and determine if they should be continued, modified, or eliminated. To facilitate such evaluation, the Legislative Finance Division also produces an Indirect Expenditure Report, which includes an analysis of certain indirect expenditures and provides recommendations to the Legislature. Legislative Finance's report is due by the first legislative day of each first regular session of each legislature. Over a six-year period, every department and agency of the State of Alaska is reviewed on a rotating two-year basis. Below is a schedule of which departments are analyzed by the Legislative Finance Division, past and present:

2015 and 2021

Department of Commerce, Community, and Economic Development
Department of Fish and Game
Department of Labor and Workforce Development Department of Revenue

Alaska Court System
Department of Administration
Department of Education and Early Development
Department of Environmental Conservation
Department of Natural Resources
Department of Transportation and Public Facilities

2019 and 2025

All remaining agencies

This report is a cooperative effort led by DOR. Eleven other departments and agencies submitted information on the indirect expenditures they administer. DOR compiled the report contributions of other departments and agencies and made edits for stylistic consistency. Contributions and data from other departments and agencies are not independently verified.

In creating this report, DOR surveyed all state departments and agencies. Each agency, including DOR, examined its operations to identify and update current indirect expenditures and report the required information. DOR then combined the submissions from all other departments and agencies into this report.

While every public corporation and state department provided input for this year's report, several agencies or corporations did not have indirect expenditures in their operations under the definition in AS 43.05.095. These departments and public corporations include:

Alaska Aerospace Corporation
Alaska Energy Authority and the Alaska Industrial Development and Export Authority
Alaska Gasline Development Corporation
Alaska Housing Finance Corporation
Alaska Mental Health Trust Association
Alaska Municipal Bond Bank Authority
Alaska Railroad Corporation
Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute
University of Alaska
Department of Corrections
Department of Law
Department of Military and Veterans Affairs
Department of Public Safety

Defining Indirect Expenditures

AS 43.05.095 defines an "indirect expenditure" as an express provision of state law that results in foregone revenue for the state by providing:

1. a tax credit or other credit;
2. an exemption, but does not include federal tax exemptions adopted by reference in AS 43.20.021;
3. a discount;
4. a deduction, but does not include costs incurred in the ordinary course of business that are deducted in the calculation of a tax under this title or in the calculation of a royalty or net profit share payment for a lease issued under AS 38; or
5. a differential allowance.

In most cases, identifying indirect expenditures is straightforward, but there are some provisions that require judgment as to whether they meet the statutory definition. For instance, some state programs are not "an express provision of state law" and are not included in this report, yet they would otherwise fall under the definition of an indirect expenditure. For example, the Alaska Housing Finance Corporation offers homeownership loans at lower interest rates to Alaskans under a certain income level. This is not mandated by state law; however, the Alaska Housing Finance Corp has the power to establish such programs under state law. Similarly, the Department of Transportation and Public Facilities' Alaska Marine Highway System (AMHS) issues passes or discounts for qualified employees, persons with disabilities, veterans, and enforcement agencies; however, they are not supported by a specific statute or regulation and are only covered in AMHS policies and procedures and union bargaining agreements.

For some tax provisions, it is difficult to distinguish between provisions that provide tax exemptions and provisions that simply define the tax base. For example, the Vehicle Rental Tax excludes from taxation vehicles rented for more than 90 days. This exclusion could be classified as an exemption, and therefore qualify as an indirect expenditure. However, DOR concluded the legislative intent to raise revenue from visitors to the state using the state's road system clearly defined the tax base.

There are also definitional issues with determining whether certain tax provisions should be considered differential allowances or not. For example, different motor fuels (such as gasoline, marine fuel, and jet fuel) are taxed at different rates. In this instance, the lower tax rates for certain fuels can be considered a differential allowance that reduces revenue from the highest rate, or the lower rates could also be considered the base rates. In this example, the Department chose to define "indirect expenditure" broadly and considered a lower rate to be the differential allowance from the highest rate.

In the past, DOR has received questions regarding fee setting authority within state government. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) produces an Annual Fee Report that details department and agency fees, including the name and purpose of the fee, as well as the authorizing statute or regulation and the amount of the fee. State departments, agencies, and corporations were asked if they were aware of any programs or provisions in their department or agency that would offer a discount, credit, reduction, or similar that are not included in the DOR's Indirect Expenditure Report or in the Office of Management and Budget's Annual Fee Report. Responses garnered from departments and agencies indicate that these two reports are largely comprehensive in defining all foregone revenue within State of Alaska Government.

Reported Information

AS 43.05.095 requires departments to report the following information for each indirect expenditure:

1. the name of the indirect expenditure;
2. a brief description of the indirect expenditure;
3. the statutory authority for the indirect expenditure;
4. the date the statute authorizing the indirect expenditure is to be repealed, if applicable;
5. the intent of the legislature in enacting the statute authorizing the indirect expenditure;
6. the public purpose served by the indirect expenditure;
7. the estimated annual effect on revenue of the indirect expenditure for the previous five fiscal years, excluding the fiscal year immediately preceding the date the report is due;
8. the estimated cost to administer the indirect expenditure, if applicable; and
9. the number of beneficiaries of the indirect expenditure.

Report Improvements

DOR has consistently enhanced the Indirect Expenditure Report by improving upon previous report versions. Evolving iterations of the indirect expenditure survey have given departments and agencies the ability to include departmental direction and/or additional comments to the indirect expenditures they have submitted to provide clarification and insight surrounding the indirect expenditure. This opportunity was given to explain an indirect expenditure's purpose, to give additional information that was not captured by the questions mandated by statute, and to explore caveats from the department's point of view.

Noteworthy changes implemented for the 2024 report include:

- Effective July 1, 2022, with Executive Order 121 becoming law, the Alaska Department of Health and Social Services restructured into two separate departments: the Department of Health and the Department of Family and Community Services. This is DOR's first Indirect Expenditure Report with these departments reported separately.
- For this iteration of the report, a concerted effort was made by DOR to provide additional clarity, completeness, and consistency in responses provided by departments.
- For this iteration of the report, departments revisited their indirect expenditures and reevaluated whether they should be included in this report. As a result of this effort, this report removes several items previously reported because they were not deemed to meet the statutory definition of an indirect expenditure.

Notes on the Department of Revenue (DOR) Section

DOR uses the Tax Revenue Management System (TRMS) to collect, process, and store tax return information and data. With this system, DOR can collect more detailed information from tax returns and thus is able to report on certain indirect expenditures that previously did not have data available prior to the TRMS implementation in 2014. TRMS has facilitated easier access to data and improved revenue reporting, which enabled more accurate revenue impacts of indirect expenditures.

In the process of preparing this report, DOR determined specific parameters by which to report data for each tax type. While the Indirect Expenditure Report is based on state fiscal years, tax periods can be on a monthly, quarterly, annual, or calendar year basis. For purposes of this Indirect Expenditure Report, data for each tax type is reported by fiscal year using different dates from the tax returns including filing period, the date the return was processed and posted, or the date the tax period began.

For certain tax types with annual returns (Corporate Income Tax, Large Passenger Vessel Tax, and Mining License Tax), FY 2023 includes any tax periods beginning during the fiscal year, i.e., between July 1, 2022, and June 30, 2023. In most cases, these taxpayer returns are for calendar year 2023 activity from January 1, 2023, to December 31, 2023. Since these returns are typically not received until October 2024, many of the FY 2023 revenue impacts for DOR's impacted tax types are considered "not available" for this year's report.

An additional note regarding DOR reporting relates to defining when an indirect expenditure was "incurred." Often, tax payments are received in a different fiscal year than when DOR receives the corresponding tax return. DOR determined that the most accurate way to measure indirect expenditures would be to report on tax returns once they are received, as that is the only source of true and complete data about the impact of the indirect expenditure. Users should be aware that the timing of revenue impacts on cash collections may not exactly match the timing of reporting on tax returns, particularly for the annual tax types.

For DOR's indirect expenditures, the revenue impacts reported reflect the impact on tax liabilities, not tax payments, unless otherwise noted. Many tax types require taxpayers to make estimated tax payments before the return is filed, and these estimated payments may extend across multiple fiscal years for a single tax return. As a result, the revenue impacts may not reflect the actual fiscal impact on payment in that fiscal year. To determine a fiscal year impact, which runs July 1 through June 30, the tax return data were sorted by the tax filing period. For example, return data with a filing period in October 2021 would be counted in FY 2022. Impacts shown give an idea of the scale of the indirect expenditures but may not precisely quantify the actual impact on the state in a given fiscal year.

DOR reporting of indirect expenditures is also limited by confidentiality statutes and rules. In general, information from tax returns can only be disclosed in aggregate. Some tax indirect expenditures benefit too few taxpayers to be disclosed, so the information is either aggregated with other expenditures or not disclosed at all.

Limitations of Analysis

In many cases, indirect expenditures are administered as part of a larger program and may not have a significant additional cost beyond that of the underlying program. Defining the "cost to administer" was left to the discretion of each department or agency, and users should be aware that this cost should not be considered equal to the savings generated by repealing the authorizing statute. For example, if the administration of a certain provision requires 10% of one auditor's time, the State does not save 10% of that employee's salary if the provision is repealed. Similarly, the revenue impact for an indirect expenditure may not reflect the true savings from repealing the provision.

Additionally, for many indirect expenditures, the revenue impact and/or number of beneficiaries is listed as "unknown." For some tax provisions, the impacts are considered confidential because they affect a very small number of taxpayers. In other cases, a provision's impact cannot be precisely measured or because significant additional work would be required to ascertain the impact of the provision.

DOR hopes that this report is useful in understanding and evaluating the provisions it describes. The department looks forward to working collaboratively with the Legislative Finance Division and policymakers to ensure that this report meets their needs as they consider these very important issues.

Indirect Expenditures Ended or Changed After July 1, 2022, and before June 30, 2024

DCCED & DOR:

- Multiple Tax Programs, Education Tax Credit, AS 21.96.070, AS 43.20.014, AS 43.55.019, AS 43.56.018, AS 43.65.018, AS 43.75.018, AS 43.77.045
    - House Bill 148, passed in 2024, extended the education tax credit sunset from January 1, 2025, to January 1, 2029. Businesses can also claim up to $3 million in education credits per year across all eligible tax types, compared to the $1 million education credit cap in effect prior to this legislation.

DOR:

- Corporate Income Tax, Small Corporation Exemption, AS 43.20.012
    - This exemption sunset on July 1, 2023.

- Corporate Income Tax, Urea/Ammonia/Gas to Liquid Facility Credit, AS 43.20.052
    - This credit sunset on January 1, 2024.

- Corporate Income Tax, Federal Tax Credits, AS 42.20.021
    - Under Alaska's adoption of the federal Internal Revenue Code, corporate income taxpayers can claim most federal incentive credits for purposes of calculating state corporate income tax. House Bill 50, passed in 2024, established a state framework for Carbon Capture, Utilization, and Storage (CCUS). A provision in this legislation "decouples" Alaska from adopting the federal carbon oxide sequestration credit under 26 U.S.C 45Q, sometimes referred to as the "45Q credit." As a result, taxpayers cannot claim 45Q credits for purposes of calculating state corporate income tax. This change has no immediate revenue impact but would impact future projects.

- Fisheries Business Tax, Fisheries Product Development Credit, AS 43.75.037
    - The credit was signed into law on July 7, 2022.
    - After the Salmon and Herring Product Development Credit sunset on December 31, 2020, the 32nd Legislature's Senate Bill 33 effectively reinstated the credit and extended it to include pollock, stablefish, and Pacific cod. The new credit was enacted under a different section of statute.

Indirect Expenditures Scheduled to End or Change After July 1, 2024, and before June 30, 2026

DOLWD:

- Alaska Vocational Technical Center, AVTEC Meal, 8 AAC 82.100(e)
  - The meal waiver practice is currently under review with the decision for continuation of the waiver to be determined based on the findings; changes will be effective in FY25.

DOR:

- Oil and Gas Production Tax, Small Producer Credit, AS 43.55.024(c)
  - This oil and gas tax credit is available until the later of (1) calendar year 2016 or (2) the ninth calendar year after the calendar year in which the producer first had commercial production, if that production began before May 1, 2016. Thus, calendar year 2025 is the final year in which any producers will be eligible for this credit.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
There is no legislative history that indicates the legislative intent of this specific provision. The provision was enacted as part of a complete revision and reorganization of Alaska's insurance statutes in 1966 and was based on Montana's insurance code enacted in that state in 1961 and considered at that time to be "the most modern, complete, and up-to-date body of insurance regulation [of] any of the fifty states." The language of the provision, however, is unambiguous and the legislature's intent is clear from the common and ordinary meaning of the words the legislature used in the provision. The public purpose is reducing the tax caluclation for dividends used to pay premium.

The public purpose is to provide for the transfer of film tax credits to entities such as insurance companies to apply against premium tax due.

AKOSH Penalty Reduction for Late Reporting and Settlements

|---|---|
| Type: | Discount |
| Statutory/Other Authority: | 9 AAC 82.100(c) |
| Year Enacted: | Statute 1973, Regulation 1975 |
| Sunset/Repeal Date: | None |

| Revenue Impact | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| FY 2019 | FY 2020 | FY 2021 | FY 2022 | FY 2023 |
| $248,427 | $1,051,341 | $1,016,124 | $859,040 | $847,791 |

Description
By regulation, during an Alaska Occupational Safety and Health (AKOSH) informal conference the director, on behalf of the commissioner, may change the penalty assessed against an employer. An AKOSH informal conference provides an opportunity for an employer to meet with the director and discuss any issues related to an inspection, citation and notice of proposed penalty. The informal conference may result in an adjustment of penalties to settle the alleged violation(s).

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
To allow flexibility when assessing a penalty to consider the size of the business of the employer being charged, the gravity of the violation, the good faith of the employer, and the history of previous violations. Penalty reductions assist with quicker and less expensive resolutions of citations and penalties along with faster hazard abatement. Formal contests are time consuming and costly. Also, during the period a case is in formal contest the hazards associated with alleged violations are not required to be corrected, while all hazards must be verified as corrected under the terms of an informal settlement agreement achieved through informal conference.

Who Benefits and Number of Beneficiaries
The number of beneficiaries varies from year to year. FY19: 99 businesses; FY20: 121 businesses; FY21: 133 businesses; FY22: 122 businesses; FY23: 120 businesses.

Estimated Cost to Administer
$0; No additional operating costs.

Fund Code and Name
1004, Unrestricted General Fund Receipts

Departmental Direction/Additional Comments
The division had several very large cases that settled for reduced amounts in FY20 and FY21, hence the increase in indirect expenditure. Additionally, the majority of formal contested cases in FY22 and FY23 have not settled yet, therefore, the current penalty amount used to calculate indirect expenditure will change once the contests start to settle.

Workers' Compensation Benefits Guaranty Fund Uninsured Civil Penalties

|---|---|
| Type: | Discount |
| Statutory/Other Authority: | 11 AAC 82.100(c) |
| Year Enacted: | 2005 |
| Sunset/Repeal Date: | None |

| Revenue Impact | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| FY 2019 | FY 2020 | FY 2021 | FY 2022 | FY 2023 |
| $2,559,965 | $310,623 | $988,917 | $3,922,451 | $463,685 |

Note: Revenue from these civil penalties funds the Workers' Compensation Benefits Guaranty Fund, AS 23.30.082, which covers expenses for injured employees of uninsured employers.

Description
Statutes provide for a civil penalty of up to $1,000 per uninsured employee workday. If an employer voluntarily stipulates, regulations allow a reduction of 25% of the calculated penalty. If the employer goes to hearing, the Board has discretion to suspend the calculated civil penalty in whole or in part.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
This was an unintended consequence of legislative changes in 2005. The legislature did not anticipate the Appeals Commission Decision in Alaska R&C Communications. Waiving a penalty under 8 AAC 45.176 is to encourage an employer to agree to the calculated civil penalty without litigation, freeing up Board time and resources. Waiving a penalty under AS 23.30.080 is to avoid extreme financial hardship to an employer, or putting the employer out of business (Workers' Compensation Appeals Commission Case: Alaska R&C Communications v SOA, Decision No. 88, 9/16/08).

Who Benefits and Number of Beneficiaries
The number of uninsured employers receiving a 25% discount and/or suspension. FY19: 65; FY20: 43; FY21: 62; FY22: 59; FY23: 85.

Estimated Cost to Administer
$0; No additional operating costs.

Fund Code and Name

| Revenue Impact | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| FY 2019 | FY 2020 | FY 2021 | FY 2022 | FY 2023 |
| $3,523 | $14,942 | Not available | $570,853 | Not available |

Note: Revenue from these late filing penalties funds the Second Injury Fund, AS 23.30.205, which is a dedicated fund for reimbursing compensation payments made by employers, or their insurers or adjusters, to certain injured employees.

Description
Commissioner has authority to waive all or part of late report filing penalties assessed against an insurer/self-insured employer if 95% of the reports filed in the calendar year were filed timely. Each employer is required to submit a compensation report on each claim when payment is initiated, the pay type or benefit amount is changed, or the claim is terminated. Report is due within 28 days of the triggering event. If the report is late, there is a statutory civil penalty of $100 per day (maximum of $1,000). At the end of each calendar year the division totals the amount of civil penalties due.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
The intent was to reward insurers/self-insured employers whose overall performance was excellent (above 95%). Waiving the penalties under AS 23.30.155 is a way of forgiving the occasional untimely report of insurers/self-insured employers that provide the vast majority of their reports timely.

Who Benefits and Number of Beneficiaries
The number of beneficiaries and final assessments are subject to change and revenue impact could be restated.

Reduced Tax Rate for Small Fish Processors

| Type: | Differential Allowance |
| Statutory/Other Authority: | AS 43.75.020(c), AS 43.75.015(d) |
| Year Enacted: | 2004 |
| Sunset/Repeal Date: | None |

| Revenue Impact | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| FY 2019 | FY 2020 | FY 2021 | FY 2022 | FY 2023 |
| Unknown | | | | |

Note: Unknown. Unable to determine revenue impact.

Description
Fishers processing on vessels 65 feet or less are subject to a 3% tax rate instead of the regular floating rate of 5%. AS 43.75.020(c) states that the Department of Revenue may issue a direct marketing fisheries business license to a licensed commercial fisherman who processes fishery resources caught using a vessel that does not exceed 65 feet in length. The statute says the resources may be processed either on board the vessel or at a shore-based facility. However, the license holder pays the tax rate applicable to a shore-based facility and fills out his/her tax return as if (s)he was the operator of a shore-based processing facility. The taxpayer is only getting a “reduced rate” if the fish are processed off shore, but the Department of Revenue has no way of knowing whether the fish were processed on or off shore. Therefore, the revenue impact is indeterminate.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
The Legislature adopted the reduced rate provision to encourage direct marketing and the production of value-added products.

Who Benefits and Number of Beneficiaries
Unknown.

Estimated Cost to Administer
No additional cost; is administered with current resources.

Carried-Forward Annual Loss Credit

| Type: | Credit |
| Statutory/Other Authority: | AS 43.55.023(b) |

| See the Revenue Impact table for the Combined Reporting for Several Credits in the Oil and Gas Production Tax Section. | | | | |

Description
A transferable credit for a carried-forward annual loss, defined as a producer or explorer's adjusted lease expenditures that are not deductible in calculating production tax values for the calendar year. From 2008 until 2014, the credit was 25% for all regions of the state. Beginning in 2014, the credit remained 25% for areas outside the North Slope and increased to 45% in the North Slope. On January 1, 2016, the credit for losses incurred on the North Slope decreased to 35%. Beginning January 1, 2017, a gross value reduction (GVR) could no longer be used to increase the size of an annual loss for credit calculation purposes.

This credit was repealed for all areas of the state on January 1, 2018. For the North Slope and Middle Earth, the credit was replaced by a new carried-forward lease expenditures provision. No carried-forward lease expenditures provision was provided for Cook Inlet.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
The credit was intended to allow producers that incur a loss but do not have tax liability to carry the loss forward to future years. This credit was originally part of the Petroleum Profits Tax (PPT) legislation and was changed under the Alaska's Clear and Equitable Share (ACES) legislation and Senate Bill 21 to match the base tax rate. It was increased above the base tax rate for 2014 and 2015 to hold taxpayers harmless for the expiration of the qualified capital expenditure credit, then decreases to match the base tax rate. The overall purpose is to increase oil and gas exploration and production.

Who Benefits and Number of Beneficiaries
Between 50 and 100 companies for all credits under AS 43.55.023, which includes the Well Lease Expenditures Credit and the Qualified Capital Expenditure Credit.

Estimated Cost to Administer

Description
Beginning January 1, 2018, a company may carry forward lease expenditures not deducted against tax and may apply in a future year to reduce liability before application of tax credits to the minimum tax floor, contingent on the production from the area earned. Carry-forwards reduce in value by one-tenth each year beginning in the eighth or 11th year after earned, depending on whether the loss is incurred in a producing or non-producing area.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
The legislation was intended to allow producers that incur a loss but do not have tax liability to carry the loss forward to future years, while also limiting the extent to which a company may carry that value forward. Carried-Forward Lease Expenditures were introduced with the passing of House Bill 111, replacing the Carried-Forward Annual Loss Credit. The overall purpose is to increase oil and gas exploration and production.

The credit is $5 per taxable barrel and cannot be transferred, carried forward, or used to reduce the producer's tax liability to less than zero (however, it can be used to reduce the producer's tax liability to less than the minimum tax established under AS 43.55.011(f)).

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
To provide a direct incentive for oil production. This credit was part of the Senate Bill 21 tax legislation and is not a stand-alone credit.

Description
A sliding scale credit for areas of the North Slope that are not eligible for a gross value reduction (GVR), as defined by AS 43.55.160(f). It is a dollar-per-taxable-barrel credit ranging from zero dollars per taxable barrel at per-barrel gross value at point of production (GVPP) values greater than or equal to $150 to $8 per taxable barrel at per-barrel GVPP values less than $80. The credit may not reduce the producer's tax liability to less than the minimum tax established under AS 43.55.011(f) and may not be transferred or carried forward.

Legislative Intent, Public Purpose
To provide a direct incentive for oil production; the sliding scale is intended to introduce a progressive element that reduces government take when oil prices are low and increases government take when oil prices are high. # FISCAL YEAR 2025 ARIZONA TAX EXPENDITURE REPORT

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

FISCAL YEAR 2025 STATE TAX REVENUE COLLECTED [7]: $21,736,063,811
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $30,766,523,667
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

The Arizona Tax Expenditure Report is a study prepared for the Governor and the Legislature by the Arizona Department of Revenue's Office of Economic Research and Analysis. The report is prepared in accordance with A.R.S. § 42-1005.

Tax expenditures[8] are provisions within the law designed to encourage certain kinds of activity or to aid taxpayers in certain categories. These provisions are generally known as exemptions, exclusions, deductions, subtractions, credits, or preferential rates. Such provisions result in a loss of tax revenues, thereby reducing the amount of revenues available for state (and, in some circumstances, local) programs. In effect, the fiscal impact of implementing tax expenditures would be similar to a direct expenditure of state funds. This report provides a list of tax expenditures and, whenever possible, details the approximate cost of exempting certain types of income, goods, services or property from its respective tax statutes. For several of the expenditures, the impact shown is a point in time measurement. Impacts for the same period measured at a later date could produce different results.

The purpose of this report is to provide a better understanding of impacts associated with existing tax exemptions, exclusions, deductions, subtractions and credits. There are sections on every tax imposed in Arizona. Each section contains statutory provisions for that specific tax type. The analysis includes an explanation of the provision as well as the approximate impacts of that provision where possible. Information in sections pertaining to tax types not administered by the Arizona Department of Revenue is submitted by the agency administering the tax. Any impact estimates presented are provided by that agency.

ASSUMPTIONS

This report does not contain any judgment regarding the merit, desirability, importance, or usefulness of a tax expenditure. The Legislature and Governor determine the taxation environment they wish to create in Arizona and formulate law to create the corresponding policy. All tax expenditures were conscious public policy decisions at the time of enactment.

The impacts associated with the specific provisions are the estimated effect of that provision based upon the information available for the stated fiscal or calendar year. There is no consideration of altered demand resulting from the tax expenditure. There is also no consideration of dynamic fiscal impacts resulting from a reduced tax.

[8] A.R.S. § 42-1005 defines tax expenditure as any "tax provision in state law which exempts, in whole or in part, any persons, income, goods, services or property from the impact of established taxes including deductions, subtractions, exclusions, exemptions, allowances and credits."

The summary page(s) at the end of each section provides a total value of the tax expenditure. This total value is a general guide and should not be used in isolation. In fact, the expenditures for a particular tax can often not be added to reach a total. The presence or absence of one expenditure for a tax type can directly affect the value of another expenditure for that same tax type.

TOTAL TAX EXPENDITURE BY TAX TYPE

The tables below display the total value of tax expenditures by each tax type and a 10-year history of total tax expenditures. Preliminarily, in fiscal year (FY) 2025 the total value of tax expenditures was $30.7 billion, an increase of 3.0% from the prior fiscal year. Transaction privilege tax accounted for 90.9% of the tax expenditure, with individual income tax, property, insurance premium, and corporate income tax expenditure providing the next largest totals, in descending order. In total, these five tax types account for 98.8% of the tax expenditures estimated in this report.

AIRCRAFT LICENSE TAX EXPENDITURES[14] - FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Transportation
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $4,430,673[15]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $2,690,214
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 61%

A license tax is imposed on aircraft operating in Arizona at the rate of 0.5% of the average fair market value of the particular make, model and year of the aircraft, but not less than $20. The proceeds from this tax are deposited into the state aviation fund.

AIRCRAFT LICENSE TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 28-8322: Aircraft operated by an airline company and regularly scheduled for the primary purpose of carrying persons or property for hire in interstate, intrastate or international transportation are exempt from tax. Aircraft owned by a nonresident who bases the aircraft in this state for a period of not more than 90 days in any one calendar year, if the aircraft is not engaged in interstate commercial activity, is also exempt from tax. Calculating the tax value of these tax expenditures would require knowing the average fair market value of every aircraft carrying persons or property that stops at an airport in Arizona. Therefore, the value of this tax expenditure is not quantifiable.

A.R.S. § 28-8323: Aircraft owned and operated exclusively in the public service by the federal government, by Arizona, by any political subdivision of Arizona, or by the civil air patrol is exempt from tax. The average fair market value of aircraft owned by the federal government and operated in Arizona is unknown. It is known that there were 6 aircraft owned by the Arizona Department of Transportation, the Arizona Department of Public Safety, various Arizona counties and cities, and the civil air patrol in FY 2024. The average fair market value of each aircraft is $27,149,001 which equates to a tax value of $135,775 for this tax expenditure.

A.R.S. § 28-8323(B): Aircraft owned and held by a bona fide aircraft dealer solely for the purpose of sale, as long as these aircraft are registered within 10 days of the dealer's purchase date, are exempt from tax. There were eight aircraft of this type registered by bona fide aircraft dealers in Arizona in FY 2024. The tax value of these aircraft was approximately $0.

PREFERENTIAL TAX RATES

A.R.S. § 28-8336: The license tax rate for a nonresident who bases his aircraft in Arizona for more than 90 days but less than 210 days in a given calendar year, provided that the aircraft is not engaged in any intrastate commercial activity, is equal to 0.1% of the average fair market value of the particular make, model, and year of aircraft. This tax rate is 20% of the tax rate imposed on resident-owned aircraft. In FY 2025, there were 19 nonresident aircraft based in Arizona. The total aircraft license tax paid by nonresidents falling into this category was $208,435. The value of this expenditure is calculated by [14] Any figures presented for Aircraft License Tax Expenditures were provided by the Arizona Department of Transportation.

[15] Source: 2025 Tax Handbook, Joint Legislative Budget Committee

multiplying this figure by four, yielding the foregone tax collections allowed by the preferential rate of $833,740.

A.R.S. § 28-8337: Aircraft in storage or being repaired are charged a license tax of $20. There are 86 aircraft which have been granted this license tax rate with a fair market value of $60,674,880. The tax value of this preferential license tax is $606,541 which is the total fair market value multiplied by 0.5% less $20 per aircraft.

A.R.S. § 28-8338: The annual license tax for a salvage aircraft that is in storage or that is being restored is $5. There are 6 aircraft registered under this provision. Assuming no market value for salvage aircraft, the tax value of this tax expenditure is the difference between the $20 minimum license tax imposed on all other aircraft and the $5 minimum license tax imposed on these aircraft, or $180.

A.R.S. § 28-8339: There is a $20 license tax for an antique, classic, warbird, glider, experimental, homebuilt or balloon aircraft. There are 7,900 aircraft registered in Arizona under this provision, with no market value for an antique, classic, warbird, glider, experimental, homebuilt or balloon aircraft. Calculating the tax value of these tax expenditures would require knowing the average fair market value of every aircraft. Therefore, the value of this tax expenditure is not quantifiable.

A.R.S. §§ 28-8340 and 28-8341: Maintenance aircraft owned by a nonresident and manufacturer's aircraft are required to pay an aircraft license tax of $20. There are 13 nonresident-owned maintenance aircrafts and 6 manufacturers' aircraft registered in Arizona with a total market value of $115,840. The tax value of this tax expenditure can be calculated by multiplying the total market value by 0.5% and subtracting the $20 per aircraft tax paid, or -$60.

AVIATION FUEL TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 28-5610(A)(1): Motor fuel for which proof of export is available in the form of a terminal-issued destination state shipping paper or bill of lading and that is either: (a) Exported by a supplier who is licensed in the destination state. ## BINGO TAX EXPENDITURES - FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $524,125
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $74,431
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 14%

The tax on state-licensed bingo operations is based on a multi-tiered licensing structure. There are three classes of bingo licenses, each of which has a different tax rate. Each class's tax rate is based on bingo receipts. All bingo tax collections are deposited into the general fund.

BINGO TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 5-414: Class A licensees (for whom gross receipts do not exceed $75,000 per year) are taxed at 2.5% of their adjusted gross receipts. Adjusted gross receipts equals gross receipts less the amount paid for prizes. Therefore, prize money is exempt from taxation for this class of bingo licensees. In FY 2025, Class A licensees subtracted $2,977,234.03 from gross receipts. At a 2.5% tax rate, the prize money represents $74,430.85 in forgone revenue.

PREFERENTIAL TAX RATES

Bingo receipts are taxed at one of three rates, dependent upon the level of gross receipts.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Class A | Gross receipts less than or equal to $75,000 | 2.5% of adjusted gross receipts |
| Class B | Gross receipts $75,001 to $500,000 | 1.5% of gross receipts |
| Class C | Gross receipts greater than $500,000 | 2.0% of gross receipts |

This is a preferential rate structure because different tax rates are imposed on similar taxpayers based on criteria set in statute. This preferential rate structure allows taxpayers with lower gross receipts to be taxed at a lower rate.

The impact of taxing all bingo receipts at one of the three rates in use is possible but unrealistic. If a uniform rate were imposed, it is probable that the uniform rate would be an effective tax rate among all licensees, making the fiscal impact revenue neutral. Given that legislative action cannot be predicted, we will point out the preferential tax rate structure in law but will not attempt to attach a revenue impact.

BOXING AND MIXED MARTIAL ARTS TAX EXPENDITURES[23]
FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Gaming
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $203,551
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $10,919
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 5%

Any person who promotes a boxing or mixed martial arts (MMA) contest in Arizona must pay a 4% tax on the gross receipts of such match or exhibition, after deduction of city, state and federal taxes. The tax is paid to the Department of Gaming, which collects for the Arizona Boxing Commission. Gross receipts are defined as receipts from the face value of tickets sold.

BOXING AND MMA TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 5-104.02(A): Tickets issued as complimentary by the promoter of a boxing or MMA match are exempt from taxation as long as the number of complimentary tickets does not exceed 2% of the total number of tickets issued or 75 tickets, whichever is greater.

During FY 2025, ADG regulated nineteen Boxing events, thirteen MMA events, and two Muay Thai events in Chandler, Glendale, Mesa, Phoenix, Scottsdale, Tucson, and Yuma for a total of 28 events. Eleven of the events did not issue complimentary tickets. Of the fifteen events that did issue complimentary tickets, a total of 892 complimentary tickets were exempt from sales tax; and, a total of 25 complimentary tickets were deemed non-exempt. Two MMA events, held on Tribal Land, were exempt and the deductions and tax levy did not apply. ADG calculated the average price of a complimentary ticket at $103.

CORPORATE INCOME TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $1,750,547,224[24]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $325,864,817 (Only credits are included in this preliminary report.)
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 19%

With the exception of credits, no information is available for tax year 2023 corporate income tax expenditures at this time. This publication will be updated when the Corporate Income Tax Expenditures section is complete.

CORPORATE INCOME TAX CREDITS

A tax credit reduces corporate tax liability, as opposed to a subtraction which reduces taxable income. Most tax credits that currently exist in Arizona corporate tax law are nonrefundable; any credit amount greater than a firm's tax liability will not be refunded. The unused credit can then be carried forward for use in future tax years. The following corporate credits were in effect in tax year 2023.

A.R.S. § 43-1161: A new employment credit is for net increases in qualified employment positions. To qualify for the credit, the taxpayer must invest at least $5 million in capital investment and create at least 25 new qualified positions in an Arizona city or town with a population of 50,000 or more, or invest at least $1 million in capital investment and create at least five new qualified positions in any other Arizona location. The amount of credit is determined and authorized by the Arizona Commerce Authority.

A.R.S. § 43-1162: A healthy forest production credit is allowed for facilities that process qualifying forest products, as certified by the Arizona Commerce Authority. The amount of the credit is $10,000 for the first twenty thousand tons and $5,000 for every ten thousand tons thereafter of qualifying forest products the taxpayer processes in the calendar year. No more than $2,000,000 can be approved in a calendar year and no more than $500,000 per taxpayer.

A.R.S. § 43-1163: The affordable housing credit provides for nonrefundable corporate income tax credits for projects in the state that qualify for the federal low-income housing tax credit under section 42 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) that are placed in service from and after June 30, 2022 in an amount equal to at least fifty-percent (50%) of the amount of the federal credit allowed in each taxable year during the federal credit period.

A.R.S. § 43-1164: A credit is provided for installing one or more solar energy devices for commercial or industrial purposes in the taxpayer's trade or business. The credit is 10% of the installed cost of the device, not to exceed $25,000 per taxpayer per building or $50,000 total in a year. This credit must be approved by the Arizona Commerce Authority. The repeal date for taxable years from and after December 31, 2018 was set when the credit was enacted. Carry forward is allowed for five years after that date.

A.R.S. § 43-1164.03: A credit is allowed for production of electricity by a qualified energy generator that produces energy using solar light, solar heat, wind or biomass. Approval from the Arizona Department of Revenue is required to take the credit. No more than $20 million can be approved in a calendar year.

[24] Source: Department of Revenue Annual Report, FY 2025

A.R.S. § 43-1164.04: A refundable credit is allowed for expanding or locating a new qualified facility in Arizona. A qualified facility is a facility that devotes at least 80% of the property and payroll at the facility to qualified manufacturing, qualified headquarters or qualified research. Approval from the Arizona Commerce Authority is required to take the credit. No more than $70 million (in conjunction with the renewable energy industry credit) can be approved in a calendar year and no more than $30 million per taxpayer.

A.R.S. § 43-1164.05: A credit is allowed for investment in new renewable energy facilities that produce energy for self-consumption using renewable energy resources if the power will be used primarily for International Operations Centers (IOC). The IOC must invest at least $100 million in renewable energy facilities by December 31, 2018. Approval from the Arizona Department of Revenue is required to take the credit. No more than $10 million can be approved in a calendar year with a $25 million lifetime maximum for an IOC.

A.R.S. § 43-1165: A credit is allowed against production costs paid by a motion picture production company that is subject to taxation by this state and that are directly attributable to a motion picture production. The amount of the credit is 15% of the qualified production costs equal up to $10 million, 17.5% if between $10 million and $35 million, and 20% if more than $35 million. Approval by Arizona Commerce Authority for the refundable credit is required.

A.R.S. § 43-1167.01: A credit is allowed to each taxpayer whose employee is a member of the Arizona National Guard if the employee is placed on active duty. The amount of the credit is $1,000 for each employee placed on active duty.

A.R.S. § 43-1168: The research and development tax credit is calculated based on calculations done for the federal research and development tax credit. The amount of the credit is based on the excess of the qualified research expenses for the taxable year over a base amount. Beginning with tax year 2010, taxpayers employing fewer than 150 persons may have their research and development credit refunded, to the extent that it exceeds tax liability. Approval by Arizona Commerce Authority for the refundable credit is required. An additional credit for research payments made to a university under the jurisdiction of the Arizona Board of Regents, as certified by the Arizona Commerce Authority and the Department of Revenue.

A.R.S. § 43-1170: The pollution control device credit is a tax credit for expenses incurred to purchase real or personal property that is used in Arizona in the taxpayer's trade or business to control or prevent pollution. The amount of the credit is the lesser of 10% of the purchase price or $500,000.

A.R.S. § 43-1175: An income tax credit is allowed for net increases in qualified employment of recipients of temporary assistance for needy families who are Arizona residents. A maximum of $500 per each net new employee can be claimed in the first year of employment, $1,000 in the second year of employment, and $1,500 in the third year.

A.R.S. § 43-1178: A credit is allowed for 30% of transaction privilege taxes paid on coal purchased in Arizona and consumed in generating electric power.

A.R.S. § 43-1181: The school site donation credit is for donation of real property and improvements to a school district or charter school for use as a school or a site for the construction of a school. The amount of the credit is 30% of the value of real property and improvements donated.

A.R.S. § 43-1183: A credit is allowed for cash contributions to a school tuition organization, as approved by the Arizona Department of Revenue.

A.R.S. § 43-1184: A credit is allowed for cash contributions to a school tuition organization for scholarships to students with disabilities or displaced students, as approved by the Arizona Department of Revenue.

When reviewing the credit data, it is important to note that corporate tax information for a given tax year will change over time. Late returns are filed, corporations are audited, amended returns are filed, retroactive legislation is enacted, etc. figures stated will change over time and figures cited in previous years will not match. Also to note, information cannot be disclosed about certain credits claimed without breaching confidentiality. If less than three firms claim a credit or if one firm owns more than 90% of the total credit amount claimed or if providing statistics on one credit would result in confidential information being divulged about other credits, then that information cannot be released.

Preliminary data for tax year 2023 is shown in the following table. Corporations claimed 843 corporate income tax credits and used a total of $325.9 million in credits to offset taxes. Asterisks indicate instances in which release of information would breach confidentiality laws.

FIDUCIARY INCOME TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: NA[27]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $236,289,232
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

Arizona imposes fiduciary income tax on trusts and estates. The taxability of the income is determined by the residence of the fiduciary, beneficiary, or deceased taxpayer. For estates, the tax applies to the entire taxable income if the deceased taxpayer was an Arizona resident. The fiduciary or beneficiary residence is immaterial. In contrast, for trusts, the tax applies to the entire taxable income when the fiduciary or beneficiary is an Arizona resident.

Arizona taxable income is calculated beginning with federal taxable income. By conforming Arizona law to the Internal Revenue Code, subtractions allowed under federal law in calculating federal taxable income are allowed under Arizona law. From federal taxable income, certain additions, subtractions and exemptions are allowed to reach Arizona taxable income. After calculating tax liability, fiduciary taxpayers may reduce their tax liability by using a credit for taxes paid to other states or countries or a clean elections credit.

Fiduciary income tax is deposited into the general fund. However, 18% of the tax is distributed to cities and towns two years after the year in which it was collected. For example, 18% of tax collected in FY 2023 will be distributed to incorporated cities and towns in FY 2025. Therefore, only 82% of the tax collected, or of the tax value of any expenditure, is actually available for the state's use. This fact should be kept in mind when reviewing the reported tax value of the various subtractions, exemptions, and credits. Please remember these figures are for tax year 2023. All tax expenditures in this report refer to tax law in existence in 2023, filed in 2024.

SUBTRACTIONS ALLOWED IN THE CALCULATION OF FEDERAL TAXABLE INCOME

The starting point for calculating Arizona fiduciary income tax liability is federal taxable income as calculated on the federal Form 1041 (U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Return). The Arizona legislature must approve legislation to conform to the definition of federal taxable income each year. In conforming to the definition of federal taxable income, Arizona accepts the subtractions from gross income allowed by the federal government. These subtractions include:

- Deduction for interest paid by the estate or trust on amounts borrowed by the estate or trust or on debt acquired by the estate or trust. This includes an investment interest (subject to limitations), qualified residence interest, and any interest payable on any unpaid portion of the estate tax attributable to the value of a reversionary or remainder interest in property.

[27] Revenue from fiduciary income tax is included in the Individual Income Tax revenues.

- Deductible taxes, including state income tax or state and local general sales tax; real property tax; and generation-skipping transfer tax imposed on income distributions. The deduction for state and local taxes is limited to $10,000.
- Deductible fees paid to the fiduciary for administering the estate or trust during the tax year.
- Charitable deduction.
- Attorney, accountant and return preparer fees.
- Other deductions, such as amortizable bond premiums, casualty and theft losses, net operating loss deduction, up to 6% of the fiduciary's share of qualified domestic production activities and the fiduciary's share of amortization, depreciation and depletion not claimed elsewhere.
- Net operating loss deduction.
- Income distribution deduction.
- Estate tax deduction.
- Qualified business income deduction.
- $600 exemption for estates. $300 exemption for trusts in which all income must be distributed currently. $100 exemption for all other trusts.

It is not possible to calculate the tax value of these subtractions. Information from the Internal Revenue Service would be required to determine the value and this information is not readily available.

ARIZONA SUBTRACTIONS FROM FEDERAL TAXABLE INCOME

The Arizona fiduciary income tax return lists the following specific items that can be subtracted from federal taxable income to reach adjusted gross income attributable to Arizona:

A.R.S.§43-1022(4): Interest income received on U.S. obligations less any interest on indebtedness or other related expenses, and deducted in arriving at Arizona gross income, which were incurred or continued to purchase or carry such obligations.
A.R.S. § 43-1332(1): A negative Arizona fiduciary adjustment from another estate or trust is used if Schedule K-1 indicates a negative difference between the federal and state distributable income.

The remaining subtractions on the Arizona fiduciary tax form are entered in aggregate on the "other subtractions from federal taxable income" line. The following is a list of these:

A.R.S. § 43-1022(2): Benefits, annuities and pensions totaling not more than $2,500 received from any retirement system or plan established by federal law or the Arizona state retirement system and retirement plan, the corrections officer retirement plan, the public safety personnel retirement plan, the elected officials' retirement plan, an optional retirement program established by the Arizona Board of Regents, an optional retirement program established by an Arizona community college district board, or a retirement plan established for employees of a county, city or town in Arizona.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(3): When the estate or trust is the beneficiary of another estate or trust, the beneficiary's share of the trust or estate income recognized under the IRC may be subtracted.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(5): The excess of a partner's share of income required to be included under §702(a)(8) of the IRC over income required to be included under chapter 14, article 2 of title 43.

A.R.S. § 43-1022(6): The excess of a partner's share of partnership losses determined pursuant to chapter 14, article 2 of title 43 over losses allowable under §702(a)(8) of the IRC.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(7): The amount allowed by A.R.S. § 43-1025 for contributions of agricultural crops to charitable organizations.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(8): The portion of any wages or salaries paid or incurred by the taxpayer equal to the amount of the federal work opportunity credit, the empowerment zone employment credit, the credit for employer-paid social security taxes on employee cash tips and the Indian employment credit that the taxpayer received under §§ 45A, 45B, 51(a) and 1396 of the IRC.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(9): The amount of mining exploration expenses determined pursuant to §617 of the IRC, which have been deferred in a taxable year ending before January 1, 1990 and for which a subtraction has not been previously made.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(18): The amount of depreciation allowable per § 167(a) of the IRC calculated as if bonus depreciation for eligible properties had not been claimed for federal purposes.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(17): For property sold or otherwise disposed of, a subtraction is allowed for the difference in basis for any asset for which federal bonus depreciation had been claimed.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(10): The amount of Social Security and railroad retirement benefits included in federal taxable income.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(11): To the extent not already excluded, compensation received for active service as a member of the U.S. armed forces for any month during any part of which the member served in a combat zone.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(12): The amount of unreimbursed medical and hospital costs, adoption counseling, legal and agency fees and other non-recurring costs of adoption not to exceed $3,000.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(13): The amounts authorized by A.R.S. § 43-1027 for converting to qualified wood stoves, wood fireplaces or gas-fired fireplaces.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(14): The amount by which a net operating loss carryover or capital loss carryover allowable pursuant to § 43-1029(F) exceeds the net operating loss carryover or capital loss carryover allowable pursuant to §1341(b)(5) of the IRC.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(15): Any amount of qualified educational expenses distributed from a qualified state tuition program determined pursuant to §529 of the IRC and that is included in income.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(16): Any item of income resulting from an installment sale that has been properly subjected to tax in another state in a previous year and is included in Arizona gross income in the current taxable year.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(19): The amount contributed to §529 college savings plans up to $2,000 single and $4,000 married filing joint.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(20): The net operating loss computed under § of the IRC in effect prior to enactment of special federal net operating loss rules per IRC § 172(b)(1)(H) for losses incurred during 2008 or 2009.
A.R.S. § 43-1022(22): The amount of any net long-term capital gain included in federal adjusted gross income that is derived from an investment in an asset acquired after December 31, 2011. The subtraction is equal to 10% of the total net long-term capital gain for tax year 2013, 20% for tax year 2014 and 25% for tax year 2015 and thereafter.
A.R.S. § 43-1333: The income of the estate or trust which is to be distributed or credited during the year to any legatee, heir or beneficiary is allowed as a subtraction from federal taxable income.

In tax year 2023, subtractions on fiduciary tax returns were reported in combination with additions to fiduciary income on the front of the tax return. Therefore, information is only available on the value of subtractions not entirely offset by additions to fiduciary income for a total of $138,440,317. Subtractions for a percentage of any net long-term capital gains from an investment in an asset acquired after December 31, 2011 would be reported on the front of the tax return for a total of $89,672,929.

PREFERENTIAL TAX RATES

Fiduciary income tax is calculated according to a graduated tax rate schedule, shown below:

| At Least | But Less Than | |
|---|---|---|
| $ 0 | $ 27,272 | 2.55% of taxable income |
| $ 27,272 | and over | 2.98% of taxable income plus $695 |

This is a preferential rate structure because different tax rates are imposed on similar taxpayers based on criteria set in statute. Taxpayers with higher incomes are taxed at a higher rate.

If a uniform rate were imposed, it is probable that the uniform rate would be an effective tax rate among all taxpayers, making the fiscal impact revenue neutral. Given that legislative action cannot be predicted, we will point out the preferential tax rate structure in law but will not attempt to attach a revenue impact.

FIDUCIARY INCOME TAX CREDITS

After fiduciary income tax liability is calculated, one credit can be subtracted. If the estate or trust is considered to be a resident of Arizona and also a resident of another state or country, the estate or trust will be allowed a tax credit against the Arizona income tax liability for taxes paid to the other state or country. In 2023, $8,175,986 was claimed as credit for taxes paid to other states or countries. This credit is a direct reduction to tax liability.

FLIGHT PROPERTY TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $10,401,270[30]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $2,008,288
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 19%

Airline companies in Arizona pay a tax on flight property within the state. The taxable value, or net assessed value, of the flight property is determined by multiplying the full cash value by an assessment ratio. The tax rate applied to the net assessed value is the statewide average tax rate, which was 10.67% in tax year 2024.

FLIGHT PROPERTY TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S § 42-14254(C): Small flight property that is operated in this state in air commerce shall be valued at 30% of its original cost less depreciation and additional allowed obsolescence. "Small flight property" means all airline company aircraft of the types that are used in this state, not permanently removed from operations, with a maximum passenger capacity of less than 56 seats and a maximum payload capacity of less than eighteen thousand pounds. Had the taxable value been 100%, the state would have raised $150,919 more in FY 2025.

PREFERENTIAL ASSESSMENT RATIO

A.R.S § 42-14255: Arizona statute sets the assessment ratios to be used in determining the net assessed values of the various classes of property. These assessment ratios range from 16.5% to 5%. For flight property, the assessment ratio is equal to the ratios that the total net assessed valuation of all taxable property for primary and secondary tax purposes in class one and class six, paragraph 3 and personal property in class two bears to the total limited valuation used for primary tax purposes of such property.

For tax year 2024 the assessment ratio used for flight property was 14%. This is considered a preferential assessment ratio because it is an average of the ratio is several other classes of property. If flight property had an assessment ratio equal to the highest assessment ratio imposed, 16.5%, tax collections would have increased by $1,857,370.

IN LIEU PROPERTY TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: County Treasurer's Offices
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: NA
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: NA
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

Irrigation districts, power districts, electrical districts, or agricultural improvement districts directly engaged in the sale of electric power or energy other than for irrigation purposes may elect to make voluntary contributions to Arizona and the political subdivisions thereof for property taxes. These districts are not legally liable for property taxes imposed by the state and the political subdivisions, so these voluntary contributions are known as in lieu property taxes. (However, per A.R.S. § 9-432(B), water may not be transported from remote municipal property by a city, town or political subdivision unless voluntary contributions have been paid.)

The Department of Revenue determines the full cash value of the district electing to make in lieu property tax payments. The county assessor of each county where district electric facilities are located computes the gross contribution to be made. The district may subtract certain amounts from this gross contribution figure.

IN LIEU PROPERTY TAX SUBTRACTIONS
A.R.S. § 48-242(C)(1): A subtraction is allowed for the contribution related to that portion of the electric system related to pumping water.
A.R.S. § 48-242(C)(2): A deduction of $10,000 is allowed from the gross contribution.
A.R.S. § 48-242(C)(3): Certain taxes or assessments paid to any political subdivision during the preceding calendar year may be deducted from the gross contribution.
A.R.S. § 48-242(C)(4): The annual average of the total water costs devoted to municipal use during the last three calendar years is deductible from the gross contribution.

The effect of these subtractions from the gross contribution amount is that the district in question pays a certain percentage of the gross contributions. The primary contributor, Salt River Project, paid approximately 78.13% of the tax that would have been levied had they been legally bound to pay property tax. Given the repeal of the state rate, the dollar expenditure that previously appeared in this report is no longer applicable. However, because the exemptions filter through to the tax base at the local level, descriptions of the exemptions remain.

INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX CREDITS

A tax credit differs from an exemption, subtraction, or deduction in that it directly reduces tax liability rather than taxable income. A $100 deduction, for example, would reduce tax liability by $4.50 at most ($100 times the maximum tax rate of 4.50%). On the other hand, a $100 credit reduces tax liability by the full $100. The four credits identified below are claimed on separate lines of the Arizona income tax return or, in the case of the property tax credit and the increased excise taxes paid credit, can be claimed on a separate form without filing an income tax return.

A.R.S. § 43-1014: The entity-level income tax is a Pass-Through Entity tax (PTE) that provides for taxable years beginning from and after December 31, 2021 individual partners or shareholders of a business (including certain trusts and estates) may consent to be taxed at the entity level at a rate that is the same as the tax rate prescribed by A.R.S. § 43-1011. For tax year 2023, the tax rate is equal to 2.5% of the entire portion of its taxable income that is attributable to its resident partners or shareholders and the portion of its taxable income derived from sources within this state that is attributable to its nonresident partners or shareholders for that taxable year.

A.R.S. § 43-1163: The affordable housing credit provides for nonrefundable individual income tax credits for projects in the state that qualify for the federal low-income housing tax credit under section 42 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) that are placed in service from and after June 30, 2022 in an amount equal to at least fifty-percent (50%) of the amount of the federal credit allowed in each taxable year during the federal credit period.

A.R.S. § 43-1072: The property tax credit program provides tax relief to the state's low-income elderly. Under this program, full-year residents aged 65 or older with a household income of less than $5,501 are eligible for credits ranging from $56 to $502. The property tax credit is refundable, meaning that those eligible for the credit receive money even if they had no income tax liability.

A.R.S. § 43-1072.01: A refundable credit is allowed against income tax to mitigate the increase in transaction privilege tax rates for education. To qualify, claimants must have federal adjusted gross income of $25,000 or less for married filing jointly or $12,500 or less for single filers. The credit shall not exceed $25 for each person who is a resident and for whom a personal or dependent exemption is allowed, with a maximum credit of $100 per household.

A.R.S. § 43-1073: Single and married filing separately filers with a federal adjusted gross of $10,000 or less, and married filing jointly filers with a federal adjusted gross income of $31,000 or less may claim the family tax credit. The amount of the credit is set at $40 per person in the household and is capped at $240 for married filing jointly and unmarried head of household filers, and $120 for single and married filing separately filers.

A.R.S. § 43-1073.01: The dependent credit is $100 for each qualified dependent under the age of 17 and $25 for each dependent age 17 and older at the end of the taxable year. The credit is phased out for single, head of household and married taxpayers filing separate returns with a federal adjusted gross income more than $200,000 and for married filing a joint return with a federal adjusted gross income more than $400,000. For these taxpayers, the credit is equal to $100 for each dependent under the age of 17 and $25 for each dependent age 17 and older minus five percent for each $1,000, or fraction thereof, by which the taxpayer's federal adjusted gross income exceeds the applicable threshold.

Other credits are filed on a separate schedule with the total claimed reported on page two of the income tax return as nonrefundable or refundable credits. Most tax credits are nonrefundable; any credit amount greater than the individual's tax liability will not be refunded. The unused credit, in most cases, can then be carried forward for use in future tax years. The following individual credits were in effect in tax year 2023.

A.R.S. § 43-1071: A credit is allowed for taxes paid to other states or countries.

A.R.S. § 43-1074: A new employment credit is for net increases in qualified employment positions. To qualify for the credit, the taxpayer must invest at least $5 million in capital investment and create at least 25 new qualified positions in an Arizona city or town with a population of 50,000 or more, or invest at least $1 million in capital investment and create at least five new qualified positions in any other Arizona location. The amount of credit is determined and authorized by the Arizona Commerce Authority.

A.R.S. § 43-1074.01: The research and development tax credit is calculated based on calculations done for the federal research and development tax credit. The amount of the credit is based on the excess of the qualified research expenses for the taxable year over a base amount. Beginning with tax year 2010, taxpayers employing fewer than 150 persons may have their research and development credit refunded, to the extent that it exceeds tax liability. Approval by Arizona Commerce Authority for the refundable credit is required. An additional credit for research payments made to a university under the jurisdiction of the Arizona Board of Regents, as certified by the Arizona Commerce Authority and the Department of Revenue.

A.R.S. § 43-1074.02: The credit for investments made in a qualified small business is based on a percentage of the investment amount and depends on the location or type of the qualified small business. The amount of credit is determined and authorized by the Arizona Department of Commerce.

A.R.S. § 43-1079.01: A credit is allowed to each taxpayer whose employee is a member of the Arizona national guard if the employee is placed on active duty. The amount of the credit is $1,000 for each employee placed on active duty.

A.R.S. § 43-1080: A tax credit is provided for expenses incurred in constructing a qualified environmental technology manufacturing, producing or processing facility. The amount of the credit is 10% of the amount spent during the taxable year to construct the facility. This credit was repealed for taxable years from and after December 31, 2019.

A.R.S. § 43-1081: The pollution control device credit is a tax credit for expenses incurred to purchase real or personal property that is used in Arizona in the taxpayer's trade or business to control or prevent pollution. The amount of the credit is the lesser of 10% of the purchase price or $500,000.

A.R.S. § 43-1081.01: A credit is allowed for expenses that a taxpayer (involved in the commercial production of livestock, livestock products or agricultural, horticultural, viticultural or floricultural crops or products) incurs to purchase tangible personal property that is primarily used in the taxpayer's trade or business in Arizona to control or prevent pollution.

A.R.S. § 43-1083: A solar energy credit is provided for an individual who installs a solar energy device in his or her residence in Arizona. The credit for buying or installing such a device is 25% of the cost, including installation, or $1,000, whichever is less.

A.R.S. § 43-1083.02: A credit is allowed for production of electricity by a qualified energy generator that produces energy using solar light, solar heat, wind or biomass. Approval from the Arizona Department of Revenue is required to take the credit. No more than $20 million can be approved in a calendar year.

A.R.S. § 43-1083.03: A refundable credit is allowed for expanding or locating a new qualified facility in Arizona. A qualified facility is a facility that devotes at least 80% of the property and payroll at the facility to qualified manufacturing, qualified headquarters or qualified research. Approval from the Arizona Commerce Authority is required to take the credit. No more than $70 million (in conjunction with the renewable energy industry credit) can be approved in a calendar year and no more than $30 million per taxpayer.

A.R.S. § 43-1084: A credit is allowed for expenses incurred by a taxpayer to purchase and install an agricultural water conservation system. The agricultural water conservation system must be primarily designed to substantially conserve water on land that is used to produce agricultural products, raise, harvest or grow trees, or sustain livestock. The amount of the credit is 75% of the qualifying expenses.

A.R.S. § 43-1085: A credit is provided for installing one or more solar energy devices for commercial or industrial purposes in the taxpayer's trade or business. The credit is 10% of the installed cost of the device, not to exceed $25,000 per taxpayer per building or $50,000 total in a year. This credit must be approved by the Arizona Commerce Authority. This credit was repealed for taxable years from and after December 31, 2018. Carry forward is allowed for five years after that date.

A.R.S. § 43-1086: An income tax credit is available if a taxpayer makes cash donations to the Arizona Department of Veterans Services Military Family Relief Fund. There is a $1 million cap on donations.

A.R.S. § 43-1087: An income tax credit is allowed for net increases in qualified employment of recipients of temporary assistance for needy families who are Arizona residents. A maximum of $500 per each net new employee can be claimed in the first year of employment, $1,000 in the second year of employment and $1,500 in the third year.

A.R.S. § 43-1088: A credit is allowed for the amount of voluntary cash contributions to a qualifying charitable organization (QCO) that spends at least 50% of its budget on services to Arizona residents who received TANF benefits or low-income Arizona residents (income of less than 150% of the federal poverty level). For taxable years 2016 and later, the credit amount is up to $800 for married filing jointly taxpayers and $400 for all other taxpayers. For taxable years 2016 and later, a separate credit is allowed for voluntary cash contributions to a qualifying foster-care organization (QFCO) not to exceed $1,000 for married filing jointly taxpayers and $500 for all other taxpayers.

A.R.S. § 43-1089: The private school tuition organization credit is allowed for cash contributions to a school tuition organization up to $1,000 for married filing jointly filers and $500 for all other taxpayers. The credit amounts are adjusted annually for inflation.

A.R.S. § 43-1089.01: An income tax credit is allowed for the amount of fees paid to an Arizona public school for the support of extracurricular activities or character education programs. The credit is for up to $400 for married filing jointly taxpayers and $200 for all other taxpayers.

A.R.S. § 43-1089.02: The school site donation credit is for donation of real property and improvements to a school district or charter school for use as a school or a site for the construction of a school. The amount of the credit is 30% of the value of real property and improvements donated.

A.R.S. § 43-1089.03: The private school tuition organization "switcher" credit is allowed for cash contributions to a school tuition organization that exceed the original private school tuition organization credit (A.R.S. § 43-1089). The amount of the credit is capped at $1,000 for married filing jointly filers and $500 for all other taxpayers. The credit amounts are adjusted annually for inflation.

A.R.S. § 43-1089.04: A credit is allowed for a pro rata share of cash contributions to a school tuition organization pursuant to § 43-1183 (and § 43-1184 for scholarships to students with disabilities or displaced students) based on the individual's ownership in the S corporation. The aggregate contribution, as approved by the Arizona Department of Revenue, must be at least $5,000.

A.R.S. § 43-1162: A healthy forest production credit is allowed for facilities that process qualifying forest products, as certified by the Arizona Commerce Authority. The amount of the credit is $10,000 for the first twenty thousand tons and $5,000 for every ten thousand tons thereafter of qualifying forest products the taxpayer processes in the calendar year. No more than $2,000,000 can be approved in a calendar year and no more than $500,000 per taxpayer.

INSURANCE PREMIUM TAX EXPENDITURES[38] - FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Insurance
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $920,007,289[39]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $551,460,801
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 60%

Each admitted insurer doing business in the state is required to annually report its total direct premium income to the Arizona Department of Insurance and Financial Institution.

A.R.S. § 20-224: Total direct premium income excludes "...applicable cancellations, returned premiums, the amount of reduction in or refund of premiums allowed to industrial life policyholders for payment of premiums direct to an office of the insurer, all policy dividends, refunds, savings coupons and other similar returns paid or credited to policyholders within this state and not reapplied as premiums for new, additional or extended insurance." Direct premium income also excludes "considerations received on annuity contracts," as well as the "unabsorbed portion of any premium deposit." No information is available on the value of these exclusions from direct premium income because insurers are not required to report this information to the Department of Insurance. However, there is data available for "considerations received on annuity contracts." Insurance companies (excluding fraternal benefit societies) reported $12.0 billion in these considerations which, if taxed at a two-percent rate, would have resulted in $240.2 million in revenues to the state in FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 20-224.03: Allows a credit to a taxpayer who makes a required level of capital investment in Arizona and that has a minimum number of qualified employment positions (full-time employees for which the employer pays at least 65% of health benefit costs and to whom the employer pays at least the median wage by county computed by the Arizona Commerce Authority). A qualifying employer is permitted a tax credit of $3,000 for each qualified employment position for each of three years of continuous employment. For calendar year 2024, insurers used this credit to reduce their tax liabilities by an aggregate of $90,000.

A.R.S. §§ 20-224.06, 20-224.07: A tax credit is allowed for insurers that make voluntary contributions to school tuition organizations and exclude the credits from the retaliation calculation prescribed by A.R.S. § 20-230, described later. Insurers reduced their calendar year 2024 taxes by $48.3 million.

A.R.S. §§ 20-224.05, 43-210: A tax credit is allowed to an insurer that issues health insurance coverage to individuals and small businesses certified by the Department of Revenue as meeting prescribed qualifications. The Act requires the Department of Revenue to limit certifications such that the aggregate credits to which insurers will be entitled shall not exceed $5 million. An insurer is owed a tax refund or tax credit carry-forward for unused credit issued pursuant to the Act. In the aggregate, insurers reduced their calendar year 2024 tax liability by $1.0 million with health insurance coverage credits.

The tax rates prescribed in A.R.S. § 20-224 that apply to life insurance premiums and non-fire property and casualty premiums changed from 2% in 2015 to the following: For premiums written in 2016, 1.95%; in 2017, 1.90%, in 2018, 1.85%; in 2019, 1.80%, in 2020, 1.75%; in 2021 and after, 1.70% [Chapter 358 (HB 2002, Laws 2016)]. The revenue reduction will be mitigated by some increase in retaliation due pursuant to A.R.S. § 20-230 from foreign insurers whose domiciles charge Arizona-domiciled insurers taxes, fees and other obligations that exceed the taxes, fees and obligations that Arizona imposes upon those foreign insurers. During calendar year 2024, insurers transacted $19.6 billion in premiums subject to the tax rate that changed from 1.75% to 1.70%. Had the tax rate remained at 1.75%, Arizona would have received $9.8 million in additional tax revenue.

[38] All information presented on the insurance premium tax was provided by the Arizona Department of Insurance.

A.R.S. § 20-230: The Department of Insurance is required to impose on foreign and alien insurers the same taxes, fees, fines, penalties, licenses, deposit and other obligations that the laws of their domicile impose on Arizona insurers doing business in their state or country. Because the amount of retaliatory tax that foreign and alien insurers pay relies on the tax rates, fees, assessments, credits, etc. in the insurers' states of domicile, no method exists to calculate the exact effect Arizona would realize if the foregoing qualifications and exemptions of insurance premium taxes were not in place. Additionally, retaliation is extremely difficult to calculate because of differences in the ways that states tax each type of insurer or each class of insurance, and the variety of additional fees, credits and other obligations that apply to insurers in each state. Therefore, the tax expenditure estimates exclude the possible consequential effects on the retaliation calculation. It is fair to say, however, that retaliation revenues could fall if Arizona imposed additional taxes or fees, or eliminated tax credits that were part of the retaliation calculation. Conversely, with the implementation of tax rate reductions instituted pursuant to Chapter 358 (HB 2002, Laws 2016), retaliation revenues increase.

A.R.S. § 20-416: Surplus lines insurers do not remit ordinary premium tax. Instead, surplus lines brokers are responsible for remitting premium taxes collected from insureds when coverage is placed in the surplus lines market. The tax rate is 3% of gross premiums and fees less certain prescribed statutory reductions.

A.R.S. § 20-416: Surplus lines brokers are not required to collect and remit insurance premium tax on "...reinsurance, ocean marine and foreign trade insurance, insurance on subjects located, resident or to be performed wholly outside this state, insurance on vehicles or aircraft owned and principally garaged outside this state, or insurance on property or operations of railroads engaged in interstate commerce."

A.R.S. § 20-420(A): Surplus lines tax is not imposed on coverage provided to federally recognized Native American governments in accordance with Attorney General Opinion I95-13 (R95-11). Surplus lines tax is not imposed on coverage provided to the State of Arizona pursuant to A.R.S. § 41-621(F), which exempts the Department of Administration from the provisions of Title 20, Chapter 2, Article 5 -- the Article that, in part, imposes the surplus lines tax. Excluding reinsurance and insurance on extra-state risks (which are excluded from taxation for admitted insurers), surplus line brokers reported $11.3 million in premiums exempted from premium taxes due in FY 2025. The tax on these premiums would have been $337,800 if they were taxed at the 3% rate at which non-exempt surplus lines premiums are taxed. Under some circumstances, surplus lines brokers may not be required to report tax-exempt premiums; therefore, the total impact is not known.

A.R.S. § 20-224(B): Insurers are required to pay a 2.2% tax on fire insurance premiums "... except that the tax on fire insurance premiums on property located in [qualified locations including] incorporated cities or towns that procure the services of private fire companies...." is 0.66%.

The State Treasurer apportions 85% of fire insurance premium taxes to fire districts and municipalities for the retirement plans of firefighters [A.R.S. §§ 20-224(C), 9-951, 9-952, 9-972]. The remaining 15% of fire insurance premium taxes are deposited into the General Fund (A.R.S. § 20-227). In calendar year 2024, insurers wrote $4.7 million of taxable fire insurance premium for risks in qualified locations resulting in $30,700 in insurance premium tax paid during FY 2025 for those risks. If risks in qualified locations were subject to the 2.2% tax rate applied to other fire insurance premiums, insurers would have paid $102,400 in FY 2025, a difference of $72,000. The effect of the tax rate difference may be mitigated by the retaliation calculation required by A.R.S. § 20-230, described later. During 2018, Arizona enacted legislation requiring agency captive insurers that transact employer group term life insurance, employer group disability income insurance or reimbursement of employer health plan deductibles to pay insurance premium tax for policies for which the tax liability exceeds the license fee or renewal fee the insurer paid during the year [Chapter 273 (SB 1101, Laws 2018)]. Tax revenue was not affected during FY 2025. All other states that license captive insurers impose an insurance premium tax. The Director of Insurance has discretion over the license fees and renewal fees imposed upon captive insurers, and those fees are higher than the fees for other types of insurers licensed in Arizona and the fees captive insurers pay in some other states. Other states tax captive insurer premiums at lower tax rates than other types of insurer premiums, but tax nationwide premiums (rather than just intra-state premiums). The other states tax insurance and reinsurance (rather than only insurance). Vermont was one of the first states to license captive insurers and it has the most captive insurers licensed of any state. In total, Arizona captive insurers reported $117.2 million in premiums exempted from calendar year 2024 premium tax. If Arizona applied Vermont's captive insurance tax structure, Arizona would have collected $6.6 million. During FY 2025, the department collected $1.1 million in license renewal fees from captive insurers. If Arizona adopted Vermont's tax and fee structure in place of the current $5,500 Arizona captive insurer renewal fee, Arizona would have collected an additional $5.5 million.

A.R.S. §§ 20-674(b), 20-692(b): Insurers subject to Guaranty Fund assessments may offset their premium tax liabilities "in the amount of 20% of the assessment for the year of assessment and 20% of the assessment in each of the succeeding four years." During calendar year 2024, the Arizona Life and Disability Insurance Guaranty Fund levied assessments on insurers totaling $7.5 million for the Disability Account. No assessment was levied for the Administrative Account. Insurers offset their calendar year 2024 tax liabilities by a total of $7.3 million.

A.R.S. § 20-837: The premium tax for non-profit hospital, medical, dental and optometric service corporations does not apply to any coverage concerning which the corporation's relationship is as administrative or fiscal agent for national, state or municipal government or any political subdivision body thereof and such tax shall not apply with respect to any premiums received from funds of national, state or municipal government or any political subdivision or body thereof. The total of exempted net premiums in calendar year 2024 was $681.0 million and if the State were able to apply the 2% tax rate, the state would have collected $13.6 million in additional premium taxes in FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 20-883: Fraternal benefit societies qualified under A.R.S. § 20-893 are exempted from insurance premium taxes (and from other state, county, district, municipal and school taxes). Fraternal benefit society premiums exempted from tax totaled $209.0 million for calendar year 2024. Had these premiums been subject to a 1.70% tax rate, the state would have collected $3.6 million more in FY 2025.

42 U.S.C. § 1395w-24(g): "The Medicare Prescription Drug Improvement and Modernization Act of 2003" prohibits states from taxing Medicare Advantage premiums. In calendar year 2024, insurers reported a total of $9.0 billion subject to this preemption. If those premiums were subject to the Arizona 2% tax rate, the state would have collected $180.0 million in FY 2025.

5 U.S.C. §§ 8714 and 8909(f): Life and health insurance premiums paid by the Federal Employee Health Benefits Fund are exempt from taxation by the states. In calendar year 2024, the FEHB Fund paid $990 million to provide life and health coverage for Federal employees in Arizona. If Arizona were able to tax those premiums at a 2% rate, the state would have collected $19.8 million in FY 2025.

7 U.S.C. § 1511: Premiums for farm owners' multi-peril coverage reinsured by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation are exempt from state insurance premium taxation. In calendar year 2024, insurers collected $186 million in premiums reinsured by the FCIC which, if taxed at a 1.70% rate, would have resulted in an additional $3.2 million being collected in FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 20-2304(J): Small group health insurance policies written by accountable health plans from insurance premium tax are exempt. During calendar year 2024, insurers received $937.5 million in premiums for health benefits plans issued to small employers by accountable health plans. Had the 2% tax rate applied, an additional $18.8 million would have been deposited to the General Fund in FY 2025.

JET FUEL EXCISE AND USE TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $5,404,253[43]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $17,621,729
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

Arizona imposes a tax of 3.05¢ per gallon on the first 10 million gallons of jet fuel sold. Jet fuel is defined as being expressly manufactured and blended for operating jet or turbine powered aircraft. The jet fuel use tax rate is also a 3.05¢ per gallon and is levied on the first 10 million gallons of jet fuel stored, used or consumed. The use tax applies to purchasers who originally purchased jet fuel for resale but instead used or consumed the jet fuel and on which excise tax has not been paid. The excise tax does not apply to the sale or use of jet fuel that has already been taxed by another state unless the tax imposed by another state is less than Arizona's tax rate. The difference between Arizona's rate and the rate of the other state is what will be levied and collected.

PREFERENTIAL JET FUEL TAX RATES

Amounts of jet fuel sold over 10 million gallons are not subject to the excise or use tax. Fiscal year 1994 was the last year that amounts over 10 million gallons were taxed. In that year, 179.4 million gallons were taxed at the over 10 million-gallon tax rate of 1.05¢ per gallon. By looking at deduction code 780, an additional $17.6 million could have been generated in FY 2025 if sales of jet fuel over 10 million gallons were taxed at 3.05¢ per gallon.

JET FUEL TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 42-5354: Jet fuel sold to commercial airlines and used on flights that originate in Arizona and whose first outbound destination is outside of the United States is exempt from the jet fuel excise tax. Information is not available on this tax exemption.

LUXURY TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $315,628,251[46]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $8,472,046
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 3%

Luxury tax collected by the Arizona Department of Revenue totaled $316 million for FY 2025. Luxury tax revenues go to the state general fund, the Tobacco Tax and Health Care Fund, the Tobacco Products Tax Fund, the Drug Treatment and Education Fund, the Department of Corrections, Smoke Free AZ, and the Early Childhood Development and Health Fund.

ALCOHOL TAXED AT A PREFERENTIAL RATE

Current Arizona law (A.R.S. §42-3052) provides for liquor to be taxed at four different rates: (1) spirituous liquor at the rate of $3.00 per gallon; (2) on each container of vinous liquor, except cider, of which the alcoholic content is not greater than 24% by volume, at the rate of $0.84 per gallon (3) on each container of vinous liquor of which the alcoholic content is greater than 24% by volume containing eight ounces or less, $0.25; and (4) on each gallon of malt liquor or cider, $0.16. This is a preferential rate structure because different tax rates are imposed on similar taxpayers based on criteria set in statute.

The impact of taxing all alcohol at the same rate is possible but unrealistic. If a uniform rate were imposed, it is probable that the uniform rate would be an effective tax rate among all types of alcohol. Given that legislative action cannot be predicted, we will point out the preferential tax rate structure in law, but will not attempt to attach a revenue impact.

EXEMPTIONS FOR TOBACCO PRODUCTS

Several exemptions from luxury tax on tobacco products are allowed.

A.R.S. § 42-3008(A): If proof is provided that cigarettes for which the stamps were purchased were exported from the state, luxury tax may be refunded. No information is available on the value of this exemption.

A.R.S. § 42-3052.06: Tobacco powder or tobacco products used exclusively for agricultural or horticultural purposes and unfit for human consumption are exempt from taxation. Since this is exempt from taxation, the Arizona Department of Revenue does not require this figure to be reported. Therefore, no tax value of this tax expenditure is available.

A.R.S. §42-3458: Discounts on cigarette stamps are allowed. The luxury tax on cigarettes is in the form of a stamp affixed to the cigarette package, which is obtained from the Department of Revenue at a rate of 96.48% of face value of stamp. If all stamps were purchased at face value, revenue would have increased by $8.5 million in FY 2025.

A.R.S. §§ 42-3460(A) and 42-3008(A)(2): A distributor may return unused tobacco product stamps for a refund. Luxury tax is also refunded if the cigarettes become unfit for sale due to breakage or spoilage.

[46] Source: Department of Revenue Annual Report, FY 2025

Most often, staleness is the reason for refund. If the state considered this to be a hazard of doing business and disallowed such refunds, an additional $361,543 in FY 2025 luxury revenues would have resulted.

EXEMPTIONS FOR LIQUOR

A.R.S. §§ 42-3001.10(A), 3001.13 and 3001.14(C): Liquids containing less than 1/2% alcohol by volume are exempt from luxury tax. Since reporting is not required by this group of taxpayers, there is no available information on potential luxury tax collections.

A.R.S. §§ 42-3001.10(B), 3001.13 and 3001.14(C): Taxable liquors do not include medicines that are unsuitable for beverage purposes. No information is available on medicine, which includes liquor and is unsuitable for beverage purposes.

A.R.S. §42-3008(A): Luxury tax is refunded if (1) proof is provided that the liquor for which the stamps were purchased was exported from the state and (2) if the liquor becomes unfit for sale due to breakage or spoilage. No information is available on liquor for which stamps were purchased and were then exported from the state. Liquor unfit for sale due to breakage or spoilage includes beer or wine which has exceeded its shelf life of three to six months and containers damaged in such a way that the product's quality is uncertain. No information is available on destruction under this provision for FY 2025.

TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 4%

There is a tax of 18¢ per gallon on each gallon of motor vehicle fuel possessed, used, or consumed in Arizona. The proceeds of this tax go into the Highway User Revenue Fund, the off-highway vehicle recreation fund, and the State Lake Improvement Fund. The Highway User Revenue Fund revenues are distributed to the Department of Public Safety, Economic Strength Fund, State Highway Fund, Counties, and Incorporate Cities and Towns.

EXEMPTIONS FROM THE MOTOR VEHICLE FUEL TAX
In order to qualify for an exemption, the taxpayer must file for a refund.

A.R.S. § 28-5610(A)(1) and (2): The following are exempt from motor vehicle fuel and use fuel taxes imposed by section 28-5606 and aviation fuel taxes imposed by section 28-8344: (1) Motor fuel for which proof of export is available in the form of a terminal-issued destination state shipping paper or bill of lading and that is either: (a) Exported by a supplier who is licensed in the destination state. (b) Sold by a supplier to a distributor for immediate export. (2) Motor fuel that was acquired by a distributor, as to which the tax imposed by this article or section 28-8344 has previously been paid or accrued and that was subsequently exported by transport truck by or on behalf of the distributor in a diversion across state boundaries properly reported to the department. If diverted by a distributor, the distributor shall perfect the exemption by filing a refund application with the department within six months after the diversion. Requests for refunds against import liability in the amount of $21.9 million were received in FY2025.
A.R.S. § 28-5610(A)(3): Motor vehicle fuel that is sold within an Indian reservation to an enrolled member of the Indian tribe who is living on the Indian reservation established for the benefit of that Indian tribe and that is used by the enrolled member for the enrolled member's own benefit. This exemption does not apply to sales within an Indian reservation by an Indian or Indian tribe to non-Indian consumers or to Indian consumers who are not members of the Indian tribe for which the Indian reservation was established or to use fuel used to operate motor vehicles for a commercial purpose outside of the reservation on highways in this state. For the purposes of this paragraph, "Indian" means an individual who is registered on the tribal rolls of the Indian tribe for whose benefit the Indian reservation was created. The total amount refunded for this provision during FY 2025 was $966,877.

HORSE OR HARNESS RACING PREFERENTIAL RATES

A.R.S. § 5-111(C): For horse or harness races, the state receives 2% of the gross amount of the first $1 million wagered on live races in pari-mutuel pools and 5% of the gross amount exceeding $1 million. If the state received 5% of all dollars wagered in horse or harness live races, the state would have received an additional $215,670 in FY 2025.

PARI-MUTUEL TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 5-111(C): Monies handled in a pari-mutuel pool for wagering on simulcasts of out-of-state horse or harness races are exempt from tax. The state share of the pari-mutuel tax was reduced by $2.9 million in FY 2025 due to this exemption.

A.R.S. § 5-111(D): Any county fair racing association may have one race meeting each year. All such racing meetings are exempt from the state tax on horse or harness live racing. No county fair racing meetings were held during FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 5-111(E): Moneys from charity racing days are exempt from state tax. Taxation of these events would have raised an additional $6,031 in pari-mutuel revenues during FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 5-111.02(A): The percentage paid to the state for greyhound racing and for horse or harness racing shall be reduced by 1% of the total amount wagered in counties with a population of 500,000 or more and by 2% in all other counties for those permittee's who make capital improvements to existing race tracks. There were no operational tracks that used the capital improvements tax credit in FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 5-111(I): The percentage decrease in pari-mutuel wagering between the base year and the previous fiscal year determines a permittee's eligibility for a hardship tax credit. The state share of the pari-mutuel tax for greyhound racing and for horse or harness racing was reduced by the amount equal to the amount of the hardship tax credit. The state share of the pari-mutuel tax was not affected in FY 2025 as there were no live race meets that used the hardship tax credit.

Law 2016, Chapter 247: This bill eliminates A.R.S § 5-111(I), the hardship tax credit. Credits awarded prior to Chapter 247 allows permittees to reduce pari-mutuel taxes after the effective date of this act. No hardship tax credit was taken in FY 2025.

FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: ($2,212,699) [61]

Businesses which operate furnish or lease railroad cars to be used for transporting or accommodating persons or freight over railroad lines not owned, leased or operated by the business are subject to a private car property tax in Arizona. The taxable value, or net assessed value, of the private car property is determined by multiplying the full cash value of the property by an assessment ratio. The tax rate that is applied to the net assessed value is equal to the average primary and secondary property tax rates in the taxing districts of the state, which was $10.68 in 2024.

A.R.S. § 42-14308: Arizona statutes set out the assessment ratios to be used in determining the net assessed values of the various classes of property. These assessment ratios range from 16.5% to 5%. For private car property, the assessment ratio is equal to the ratio which the total net assessed valuation of all taxable property in class 1, class 6 paragraph 3 and personal property in class 2 bears to the total full cash value of such property. For tax year 2024, the assessment ratio used for private car property was 14%. This is considered to be a preferential assessment ratio because it is an average of the assessment ratios in several other classes of property. If private car property had an assessment ratio equal to the highest assessment ratio imposed, 16.5%, tax collections would have increased by $352,974.

PROPERTY TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: County Treasurers' Offices

TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $531,432,183
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

The property tax system in Arizona has many components. These components are intertwined, making it difficult to address the impact of tax expenditures on one component in isolation. The state no longer levies a property tax per $100 of net assessed value on primary values, so state revenues are affected by exemptions from property tax in two ways.

The first method concerns the taxation of homeowner property. Frequently, if a political subdivision sees a decline in property values, the tax rate imposed by that subdivision increases so that a consistent revenue stream is provided from the property tax. The same is true if the political subdivision sees its taxable base decrease through exemptions from the property tax. Through a program called additional state aid (commonly known as homeowner's rebate), the state pays 50% of a homeowner's school district tax bill, up to $600. If a homeowner's school taxes increase due to higher tax rates, the state will be required to pay a larger amount of money. Finally, the state pays that part of a homeowner's primary tax bill that exceeds 1% of the limited property value. Higher tax rates could mean a larger state payment.

SEVERANCE TAX EXPENDITURES – FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $19,282,987[65]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $19,282,987
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 100%

Persons engaged in the business of mining or timbering in Arizona are subject to a severance tax. Mining severance is taxed at the rate of 2.5% (A.R.S. § 42-5202(C)) and is levied upon the net severance base. The net severance base is defined as 50% of the difference between the gross value of production and the production costs (A.R.S. § 42-5204).

The timber severance tax was levied on the timber products derived from timbering activity (A.R.S. § 42-5202(D)) through October 31, 2006. Beginning November 1, 2006, the timber severance tax was repealed. Total mining and timbering severance tax collections in FY 2025 totaled $19.3 million.

PREFERENTIAL SEVERANCE TAX RATES

Until October 31, 2006, timber severance was taxed depending on the type of timber product. The tax rate for ponderosa pine timber products was $2.13 per thousand board feet and the tax rate for all species except ponderosa pine was $1.51 per thousand board feet. The tax rate for all other species except ponderosa pine is a preferential rate over the ponderosa pine rate. During FY 2025, no tax was received for timber severance.

SEVERANCE TAX CREDITS

A.R.S. § 42-5017(A): A credit is allowed against severance tax imposed for accounting and reporting expenses incurred by the taxpayer. The credit equals 1% of the amount of tax due, not to exceed $10,000 in any calendar year. In FY 2025, information about the value of the severance tax accounting credit was unavailable.

MINING SEVERANCE TAX EXCLUSIONS

A.R.S. § 42-5204: The net severance base is 50% of the difference between the gross value of production and the production costs. Both the 50% factor and the value of production costs are exclusions from severance taxation. Taxing the net severance base at 100% would have generated an additional $19.3 million in FY 2025. The tax value of the production costs is unknown.

TRANSACTION PRIVILEGE AND USE TAX EXPENDITURES
FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Revenue
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $10,556,667,502[68]
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $27,981,061,118
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: NA

Transaction privilege and use tax (TPT) gross collections in FY 2025 totaled $10.6 billion. Of that amount, $2.4 billion was distributed to the counties and cities. The remaining $8.2 billion was deposited into the state general fund.

This report provides information about some of the preferential tax rates, credits, exemptions, and deductions from transaction privilege and use tax using both data from taxpayers and outside data. In total, the quantifiable exemptions discussed in this report represent potential tax collections of $27.9 billion. Lost revenues due to preferential tax rates, e.g., those items taxed at a rate below 5%, total $797 million while credits totaled $36.9 million. The estimated value of the services portion of exemptions is $7.1 billion, while the estimated tax value of deductions is $20.1 billion.

With regard to TPT deductions, ADOR has transitioned from accepting deductions under a miscellaneous category to requiring specific deduction codes to be used for each statutory exemption. The process began in 2015 with additional validations added throughout FY 2016 and into FY 2017. As a result, taxpayer behavior has changed, providing ADOR with a more complete picture of the value of the deductions taken. Compliance has improved, reducing the value of undefined deductions, which had been significant in the past. The added validations in addition to increased scrutiny are expected to reduce the opportunities for taxpayers to take invalid deductions in the future. The impact shown is a point in time measurement. Impacts for the same period measured at a later date could produce different results.

EDUCATION TAX

The Education Tax is an incremental TPT tax at a rate of 0.6% that was passed in November 2000 through Proposition 301. Proposition 301 expired at the end of FY2021 but it was subsequently extended through Laws 2018, Chapter 74 until June 2041. In FY 2025, the Education Tax generated $1.2 billion in collections. While the two taxes are collected on roughly the same tax base, the Education Tax monies are dedicated exclusively to education-related funds. We continue to present the value of exemptions at the 5% rate. The effect of these exemptions on the Education Tax can be estimated by taking 12% of the amounts shown later in this section. For FY 2025, the value of the exemptions on the Education Tax funds was $3.4 billion.

PREFERENTIAL TRANSACTION PRIVILEGE TAX RATES

[68] Source: Department of Revenue Annual Report, FY 2025

In most categories, sales in Arizona are taxed at a 5% rate. Two categories of taxable activities, however, are currently taxed at a lower rate. These activities and the corresponding tax rates are as follows:

| CODE | TAXABLE ACTIVITIES | RATE |
|---|---|---|
| 2 | Non-Metal Mining, Oil & Gas Production | 3.125% |
| 13 | Commercial Lease[69] | 0% |

If the activities in these categories had been taxed at a 5% rate in FY 2025, additional transaction privilege tax of $797 million would have been collected.

TRANSACTION PRIVILEGE AND USE TAX CREDIT

A.R.S. § 42-5017: A credit is allowed against transaction privilege tax imposed for accounting and reporting expenses incurred by the taxpayer. During FY 2025, the credit equals 1% of the amount of tax due, not to exceed $10,000 in any calendar year for taxpayers filing paper returns and 1.2% of the amount of tax due for taxpayers filing electronically, not to exceed $12,000. In FY 2025, the value of the accounting credit equaled $37.0 million.

TRANSACTION PRIVILEGE AND USE TAX EXEMPTIONS

Certain types of income or sales by businesses are exempt from transaction privilege and use tax. Some of these businesses have taxable sales as well as exempt sales; some have no taxable sales at all. In the case of those businesses that have both taxable and exempt sales, there is some information on the value of the exemption. Those businesses that only have exempt sales generally do not file transaction privilege tax returns; therefore, no figures are reported for the value of the exempt business. They may, however, be captured in the analysis covering the value of Services.

Beginning in calendar year 2015, the department began using a specific deduction code for each deduction from transaction privilege tax. During 2016 and 2017, the department began validating deduction usage at the time returns were filed. The following information lists all exemptions identified in the Arizona Revised Statutes, whether information was available on the tax value of the exemption or not.

A.R.S. § 42-5061(A)(1) and (A)(2): The primary type of business exempt from transaction privilege tax in Arizona is the business of providing a service. The U.S. Census Bureau provides information about the value of services in Arizona through the Economic Census. The 2017 Economic Census Service is the basis for the following analysis of the tax value of some services. Please note that some portion of the value of these services may already be taxable. For example, the sale of hair shampoo products at a Beauty Salon is taxable but the service of cutting and styling hair is not. The receipts reported in the Economic Census would include both the retail sale of products and the provision of the service. No attempt has been made to determine these non-taxable portions of the receipts.

The list of services in this report is a sample of services and is not intended to be a comprehensive list. The categories shown are defined by the Census Bureau, not by the preparers of this report. For a complete look at the service industry in Arizona, refer to the several reports comprising the 2017 Economic Census of Arizona, available at the U.S. Census Bureau website, www.census.gov.

Several major categories as defined by the U.S. Census Bureau are shown in the sample of services: (1) professional, scientific and technical; (2) health care; (3) administrative and business support; (4) personal care; (5) educational; (6) finance and (7) other services. Examples of each of these service categories are listed at the end of this section. A summary of potential transaction privilege tax revenue from the Sample of Services in these major categories is as follows[70]:

|---|---|
| Professional, Scientific and Technical | $1,395,962,956 |
| Health Care | 2,877,106,468 |
| Administrative and Business Support | 1,465,295,015 |
| Personal Care | 191,671,894 |
| Educational | 90,509,783 |
| Finance | 652,719,600 |
| Other Services | 405,147,800 |

Total transaction privilege tax revenue available from these businesses is $7.1 billion[71]. Although the estimate of potential tax collections provided here does not include estimates for all services, the majority have been captured.

UNDERGROUND STORAGE TANK TAX EXPENDITURES[105]
FISCAL YEAR 2025

TAX COLLECTED BY: Arizona Department of Environmental Quality
FISCAL YEAR 2025 TOTAL STATE REVENUE COLLECTED: $36,895,857
TOTAL FY 2025 TAX EXPENDITURE: $25,052
TAX EXPENDITURE AS A PERCENT OF TOTAL REVENUE: 0.1%

An underground storage tank tax is imposed by A.R.S. § 49-1031. For purposes of this tax, it is presumed until proven differently that all regulated substances which are motor vehicle fuel, aviation fuel and diesel and which are refined, manufactured, produced, compounded or blended in Arizona, or imported into the state, will be placed in an underground storage tank from which the fuel is dispensed to users who consume the fuel and do not further distribute it. The tax is levied at the rate of 1¢ per gallon of regulated substance. Revenue from this tax is deposited into the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality Assurance Account, used for corrective action projects.

UNDERGROUND STORAGE TANK TAX EXEMPTIONS

A.R.S. § 49-1031: Above-ground storage tanks are not subject to this tax. The owners/operators of these types of tanks are not required to register their tanks with the Department of Environmental Quality nor with the State Fire Marshal. Municipalities regulate these types of tanks in their own city. Thus, due to the lack of information, it is not possible to determine the impact.

A.R.S. § 49-1031(C): This tax does not apply to underground storage tanks operated by the United States or Arizona and its agencies. Currently, there are 59 federal tanks in use with an average tank capacity of 12,206 gallons. There are 51 state tanks currently in use with an average tank capacity of 11,922 gallons. The Department of Environmental Quality does not require the owners/operators of these tanks to report the total number of times they are refueled.

A.R.S. § 49-1031(C)(2): Underground storage tanks used for the purpose of storing, handling or distributing naphtha-type jet fuel or kerosene-type jet fuel are exempt from the underground storage tank tax. Currently, there are 70 of these jet fuel tanks in use with an average tank capacity of 16,814 gallons. As with the underground storage tanks owned by the federal government and the State of Arizona, the owner/operators of these types of underground storage tanks are not required to report the number of times their tanks are refueled.

[105] Any information for Underground Storage Tank Tax Expenditures was provided by the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality.

Arizona has a two-tiered use fuel (diesel fuel) tax rate. Per A.R.S. §28-5606(B)(1) and (2), a use fuel tax is imposed on use fuel used in the propulsion of a light class motor vehicle on a highway in this state at the same rate per gallon as the motor vehicle fuel tax prescribed in subsection A of this section (18¢ per gallon), except that there is no use fuel tax on alternative fuels and a use fuel tax is imposed on use fuel used in the propulsion of a use class motor vehicle on a highway in this state at the rate of 26¢ for each gallon, except that there is no use fuel tax on alternative fuels, and use class vehicles that are exempt pursuant to section 28-5432 from the weight fee prescribed in section 28-5433 are subject to the use fuel tax imposed by paragraph 1 of this subsection. A tax of 26¢ is collected by licensed suppliers.

During FY 2025, total use fuel tax collected was $355,695,017. The primary source of revenue is from licensed suppliers. The proceeds of this tax go into the Highway User Revenue Fund and are distributed to the Department of Public Safety, Economic Strength Fund, state highway fund, counties, and incorporated cities and towns.

PREFERENTIAL USE FUEL TAX RATES

A.R.S. § 28-5606(B)(3): A use fuel tax is imposed on use fuel used in the propulsion of a motor vehicle transporting forest products in compliance with the requirements of section 41-1516 on a highway in this state at the rate of nine cents for each gallon, except that there is no use fuel tax on alternative fuels. There were no refunds for FY 2025.

A.R.S. § 28-5614(A): If a vendor pays the use fuel tax rate for use class motor vehicles on use fuel that is actually used in the propulsion of a light class motor vehicle on a highway in this state or that is actually used in the propulsion of a use class motor vehicle that is exempt pursuant to section 28-5432 from the weight fee prescribed in section 28-5433 on a highway in this state and for the purpose of convenience and facility only, the vendor may apply to the department for a refund of the difference between the amount of the use class motor vehicle use fuel tax paid and the amount of the light class motor vehicle use fuel tax on the same number of gallons purchased. The amount of refunds issued for FY 2025 was $22,260,897. Liquid use fuel, used for export purposes is taxed at a $0.26 per gallon rate. The amount refunded for this type of use fuel during FY 2025 was $7,282,637.

A.R.S. § 28-5728(B): There is a $0.02 per gallon credit for all use fuel purchased in Arizona and used outside of the state. The total amount refunded for this type of purchase during FY 2025 was $561,687.

This exemption does not apply to sales within an Indian reservation by an Indian or Indian tribe to non-Indian consumers or to Indian consumers who are not members of the Indian tribe for which the Indian reservation was established or to use fuel used to operate motor vehicles for a commercial purpose outside of the reservation on highways in this state. For the purposes of this paragraph, "Indian" means an individual who is registered on the tribal rolls of the Indian tribe for whose benefit the Indian reservation was created. The value of this provision for FY 2025 is $1.9 million.

A.R.S. § 28-5703 (B)(1): The base jurisdiction concept. This concept allows a licensee to report and pay motor fuel use taxes to a base jurisdiction for distribution to other member jurisdictions in which the licensee traveled and incurred motor fuel use tax liability. # Introduction

The Department of Finance (Finance) is required to provide a tax expenditure report to the Legislature annually. Chapter 1762, Statutes of 1971, required that a biennial report be submitted to the Legislature. Chapter 268, Statutes of 1984, increased the reporting frequency from once every two years to once a year. Chapter 49, Statutes of 2006, and Chapter 55, Statutes of 2023, require the report to include each of the following:

- A comprehensive list of tax expenditures with an annual cost exceeding $5 million.
- The statutory authority for each provision.
- A description of the legislative intent of each provision, if specified in the enacting legislation.
- The sunset date of each provision.
- The beneficiaries of the provision.
- An estimate of the state and local revenue loss for the current and two subsequent fiscal years.
- For personal income tax expenditures, the number of taxpayers and returns affected for the most recent tax year, and the cost to the state resulting from these personal income tax expenditures categorized by taxpayers' income levels, for which data is readily available.
- For corporation and sales tax expenditures, the number of returns or businesses affected for the most recent year for which data is available.
- A listing of any comparable federal benefit.
- A description of any tax expenditure evaluation or compilation of information completed by any state agency since the last tax expenditure report by Finance.

This report fulfills Finance's statutory requirement pursuant to Government Code Section 13305. The narrative descriptions and revenue estimates for the tax expenditures included in this report are based on state laws for these tax expenditures as of June 30, 2025.

Since the 2023-24 report, this report has included tables for certain personal income and corporate income tax expenditures categorized by taxpayers' income level for which data is readily available.

- All tables are for resident taxpayers only and exclude non-resident returns.
- For personal income tax and corporation tax credit tables, the column showing the amount of credit allowed represents the estimated reduction in tax liability for taxpayers within a particular adjusted gross income (AGI) range since each dollar of credit allowed reduces tax liability by a corresponding dollar.
- For tables related to personal income tax deductions and exclusions, the tax impact column represents the estimated reduction in tax liability for taxpayers within a particular AGI range. For tax exclusions and deductions, the tax impact is estimated by calculating how the changes in income due to the claiming of the deduction or exclusion, as reflected in the amount of deductions or exclusions claimed column, will result in changes in tax liability depending on tax rates, use of other deductions and exclusions, and credit usage among taxpayers in a given AGI range.
- The tables are only included for tax expenditures that are readily identifiable on the tax return. Many tax exclusions, for example, do not have accompanying tables because the excluded income is not reported on the tax return.

Definitions

Section 13305 defines tax expenditure as "a credit, deduction, exclusion, exemption, or any other tax benefit as provided for by the state." Although this definition is very broad, Finance has interpreted it to mean that aspects of the law that are basic to the tax structure are not tax expenditures. While the term "basic" is still ambiguous, it presents a framework for discussion as to what is not a tax expenditure.

Because the basic structure of each tax is used as the starting point for determining what constitutes a tax expenditure, elements of the basic tax structure that exempt certain categories of transactions are not considered tax expenditures. For example, the sales tax is imposed on retailers for the privilege of selling tangible personal property at retail. According to its basic definition, California's sales tax does not apply to sales or leases of real property, sales of services, wholesale transactions, or sales of securities and insurance. These exemptions are therefore not considered tax expenditures.

- The net operating loss (NOL) deduction levels the playing field for firms with volatile and steady income and is not considered a tax expenditure for this report. For example, consider two firms, one with a $100-loss in year one and a $300-gain in year two, the second with a $100-gain in each year. Without an NOL deduction, over the two years, the first firm would report $300 in taxable income, while the second would report $200, even though each had $200 net income over the two years.
- Across-the-board tax rate reductions do not represent tax expenditures. Tax expenditures resulting from changes in the rate structure only exist if different sets of rates are applied to a similar base.
- Progressive rate structures do not constitute tax expenditures. The basic structure of California's income tax is progressive. For that reason, the application of different tax rates to different income levels is a basic characteristic of the tax and does not represent a tax expenditure.
- Exemptions or exclusions required by the U.S. Constitution, the California Constitution, or federal laws are generally not considered tax expenditures, even if they would qualify as tax expenditures if adopted by statute. One exception to the general rule that Constitutional prohibitions are not deemed to be tax expenditures is this report's inclusion of the sales tax exemption for candy, which has been prohibited by the California Constitution from being taxed since 1992 but had been subject to sales tax prior to that constitutional change.
- Changes in tax law that alter penalties or interest or that accelerate or defer tax payments are generally not considered tax expenditures unless they are very narrowly targeted.
- This report, consistent with the last nine annual reports, does not include apportionment rules as a tax expenditure. The 2015-16 Tax Expenditure Report and previous versions had considered equal-weighted three-factor formula to be normal tax law. The revenue impact of any of the other three apportionment rules was measured against this normal law. However, now that mandatory single-sales factor apportionment is required for most multi-state businesses and is used by the majority of the states in the nation, it is considered part of California's basic tax structure. As such, this report does not treat mandatory single-sales factor as a tax expenditure.
- Since the 2023-24 report, this report has not included Subchapter S Corporations as a tax expenditure on the basis that Subchapter S Corporations are taxed as pass-through entities and this taxation is basic to the tax law because it mirrors how S

Corporations are taxed in nearly all other states. Unlike most other states that do not apply an entity-level tax, California applies an additional 1.5-percent tax on S Corporations at the entity level. Tax expenditure reports prior to 2023-24 calculated the amount of the tax expenditure by netting the revenue losses under the corporation tax against revenue gains from the pass-through income taxed under the personal income tax.

- The Pass-Through Entity Elective Tax (PTET) is not listed as a tax expenditure. While the PTET is taken as a personal income tax credit, it is fully offset by an elective tax paid by business entities and therefore does not decrease state revenues.

There is no single rule for determining what constitutes an element of the basic tax structure. For this reason, this report may exclude items that are included in other tax expenditure reports prepared by other state agencies and vice versa.

Unless otherwise specified as refundable, all credits discussed in this report are nonrefundable.

Why Adopt Tax Expenditures

Tax expenditures may be classified into the following two broad groups:

- Those which provide an incentive for a particular type of behavior.
- Those which provide tax relief for taxpayers facing a particular economic hardship.

There are several differences between tax expenditures and direct expenditures (those authorized through the budget process). First, tax expenditures are generally reviewed less frequently than direct expenditures once they are in place. This can offer taxpayers more certainty than if tax expenditures were subject to annual review, however, it can also result in tax expenditures remaining in the tax code when their cost outweighs their social benefits. Secondly, with certain notable exceptions, there is no control over the amount of foregone revenue that results from a tax expenditure once that provision has become part of the tax code.[1] Finally, the vote requirements for tax expenditures and direct expenditures may be different. Tax expenditures that are adopted legislatively (except those adopted as urgency measures) require approval by a simple majority of both houses of the Legislature. A two-thirds vote is required for General Fund appropriations outside the Budget. Additionally, the repeal of a tax expenditure requires a two-thirds majority vote, while direct expenditures can be repealed with a simple majority vote.

Revenue Estimates

The estimates listed in this report are intended as a general indication of revenue losses from tax expenditure programs. In general, revenue estimates for the Personal Income Tax and Corporation Tax Laws are easier to quantify than those for the Sales and Use Tax Law. Personal income and corporation tax returns contain significant detail regarding different sources of income and types of exemptions, exclusions, deductions, and credits claimed. Thus, tax return data are often available when estimating the fiscal impact of various income and corporation tax expenditure programs. In contrast, returns filed by taxpayers under the Sales and Use Tax Law contain little specific information regarding items purchased from individual retailers. For this reason, independent data sources must be used when estimating the revenue impacts of various sales tax expenditure programs, and these estimates can be less accurate than those for the Personal Income Tax and Corporation Tax Laws and can vary considerably depending on the methodology used. Nonetheless, even the revenue estimates for the personal income and corporate income tax expenditures can be subject to significant margins of error due to data limitations and the lag in the availability of the tax data. For example, the personal income and corporate income tax estimates in this report released in November 2025 are based on data from tax year 2022.

Estimates for any individual tax expenditure in this report do not necessarily reflect the revenue gain that would occur if the tax expenditure was repealed because of tax law interactions and taxpayers' behavioral reactions to changes in tax law. For example, repeal of the Section 529 Scholarshare plans may shift savings into Coverdell education savings accounts with similar tax benefits. As another example, elimination of the mortgage interest deduction could lead to lower home prices and a reduction in the amount of property tax deductions for income tax purposes. Further, while the report displays the total value of the major identified expenditures within each major tax, these figures are best viewed as a general indication of revenue losses. Since each tax expenditure is measured separately and independently of other tax provisions, the fiscal impact of individual tax expenditures when added together may significantly overstate the fiscal impact to the state if all the tax expenditures were repealed.

Except for the deduction for charitable contributions, the research and development tax credit, like-kind exchanges, and life insurance and annuity contract proceeds exclusion, which are reflected in both tables due to significant impacts on both taxes, the revenue loss for tax expenditures that are included in both Corporate and Personal Income Tax Laws are shown under the tax with the greatest revenue loss.

The 2019-20 Budget Act conformed or partially conformed to the following provisions of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act:

- Small Business Accounting Reform and Simplification
- Limitation on Deduction of Non-Corporate Business Losses
- Limitation on Deduction of Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Premiums
- Repeal of Technical Termination of Partnerships
- Limit Like-Kind Exchanges to Real Property
- Modification of Limitation on Excessive Employee Remuneration
- Eliminate Net Operating Loss Carrybacks
- Allow Increased Contributions to Achieving a Better Life Experience (ABLE) Accounts
- Allow 529 Plans to Rollover to ABLE Accounts
- Eliminate IRS Section 338 Election

Of the above provisions, only the like-kind exchanges are referenced in this report. The changes to small business accounting and net operating losses accelerate or defer tax collection and therefore are not considered tax expenditures. The changes to the ABLE accounts fall below this report's $5 million threshold. The remaining provisions increase state revenue and therefore are not tax expenditures.

The 2020-21 Budget Act included a provision that temporarily limited usage of business incentive tax credits, except the low-income housing credit, to offset no more than $5 million in tax liability for each taxpayer in 2020, 2021, and 2022, while amendments to the 2021-22 Budget removed the limitation for 2022. In addition, the 2024-25 Budget Act temporarily limited usage of business incentive tax credits, except for the low-income housing credit, to offset no more than $5 million in tax liability for each taxpayer in 2024, 2025, and 2026, with the 2025 and 2026 limitations each subject to a trigger mechanism. This limitation also included a provision for taxpayers to make a one-time election for each year of the limitation to convert to refundable credits any credits in excess of the $5 million limitation that taxpayers would have normally used if not for the limitation. Taxpayers who elected into refundability will be able to utilize the converted credits over 5 years at 20 percent per year beginning 3 years following the election. The revenue estimates in this report reflect the impact of these temporary limitations and assume the limitation is in place through 2026. Generally, the credit limitation is expected to change the timing of credit usage but not necessarily materially impact the total amount of credits used.

Revenue Estimate for the California Earned income Tax Credit

Based on opinions from the California Office of Tax Appeals in April 2021, taxpayers can consider In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS) payments as "earned income" for the purposes of the California Earned income Tax Credit (EITC) as of May 5, 2021, and it is applicable to any open statute year. By extension, this treatment would also now be applicable to the state's Young Child Tax Credit (YCTC) and Foster Youth Tax credit (FYTC). The impact of this change is expected to be in the range of low tens of millions of dollars per year and is reflected in the estimates for the EITC, YCTC, and FYTC.

State Revenue Losses

As noted in the prior section, the total sum of individual tax expenditures can overstate tax expenditures' actual fiscal impact to the state. Nonetheless, totals are presented here to facilitate comparison to prior reports.

Personal Income Tax

The personal income tax is a tax levied on the wages, salaries, dividends, interest, and other income of an individual. The Personal Income Tax Law includes the vast majority of all tax expenditure programs approved to date. It is estimated that tax expenditures costing over $5 million will reduce 2025-26 Personal Income Tax General Fund revenues by $71 billion.

Sales and Use Tax

The sales and use tax is a tax imposed on the retail sale or the use of tangible personal property in the state by an individual, business, or other entity. The Sales and Use Tax Law contains separately identifiable state General Fund tax expenditures costing over $5 million worth $14.9 billion in 2025-26. Examples of these tax expenditures include sales tax exemptions for food; prescription medicines; gas, electricity, and water delivered through mains; farm equipment; fuel sold to common carriers, and the temporary one-year pause on General Fund taxation of diesel fuel, which ended September 30, 2023.

Corporation Tax

The corporation tax is a tax imposed on the profits of a corporation. Fiscal year 2025-26 General Fund tax expenditures costing over $5 million in the corporation category amount to about $8.2 billion. Examples of these expenditures include provisions for research and development, the film and television tax credit, and provisions for water's edge election.

Other Taxes

Remaining tax expenditure programs are estimated to reduce revenues by over $100 million annually. Much of this revenue loss results from aircraft jet fuel used by common carriers and the armed services as well as diesel fuel used by transit districts and schools.

Local Revenue Losses

The revenue losses to local governments are also shown for the sales tax and the property tax. Property taxes are local taxes, however they impact state finances because local property tax exemptions reduce property tax allocations to schools. Under school finance law, the state is generally required to provide the difference in funding between local property tax allocations and school districts' minimum funding requirements established by state law. Consequently, each dollar of property tax revenue foregone by schools may result in additional state funding through the school apportionment process. Passage of Proposition 98 in November 1988 created an additional link between property taxes and state operations. The Proposition 98 minimum funding guarantee is determined each year according to a particular test—Test 1, Test 2, or Test 3—based on specified economic and fiscal circumstances in a given year. The test in effect is the one which yields the highest funding level each year. Under the Test 2 and Test 3 formulas, the minimum funding level is affected by the level change in property taxes. However, under Test 1, property taxes allocated to schools and community colleges are not part of the guaranteed funding level formula and are instead equal to a certain percentage of General Fund revenues.

Local government revenue losses from identifiable property tax exemptions are estimated to be in excess of $100 million annually, while losses from sales tax expenditures are estimated to be in excess of $10 billion.

Unknown Revenue Loss Areas

Certain tax expenditures under Sales and Use Tax and Other Taxes have unknown revenue losses due to a lack of data and difficulty in estimating the extent of their usage. Generally, these types of tax expenditures that have no estimated revenue loss are relatively small and do not result in significant revenue losses.

Legislative Intent

This report includes the legislative intent of the tax expenditure when that intent was specified in the enacting or amending legislation.

Beginning in tax year 2025, federal law limits this deduction to $40,000, indexed to inflation each year, and then reverting to $10,000 in tax year 2030. The American Rescue Plan Act temporarily, for tax year 2021 only, increased the child tax credit from $2,000 to $3,600 for qualifying children 5 and under, from $2,000 to $3,000 for other qualifying children, and increased the age limit from 16 to 17 years of age. The federal H.R.1 temporarily increased the child tax credit to $2,200 for tax years 2025 through 2028, and made the $2,000 base level permanent.

Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC)

Description:
Taxpayers with wage income below specified amounts in 2015, dependent on the number of their qualifying children, may claim a refundable tax credit. The credit matches a specified percent, referred to as the adjustment factor, of the taxpayer's calculated federal earned income tax credit for 2015, up to a specified amount of wages and is scaled depending on the number of qualifying children, if any. Beginning in 2017, the Legislature expanded the credit to taxpayers with self-employment income, and the phase-out ranges were extended depending on the number of qualifying children. In 2018, the phase-out ranges were further extended and qualification was extended to individuals of age 18 to 24 and over 65. In 2019, the phase-out range was further increased to a maximum eligible earned income of $30,000, and the credit phases out more gradually. In 2020, the EITC was expanded to include taxpayers who file using an Individual Taxpayer Identification Number.

The adjustment factor is set each year in the annual budget act and would be zero if no adjustment factor is specified. For tax years 2015 through 2024, the adjustment factor was set at 85 percent and the estimates in this report assume an 85-percent adjustment factor in subsequent years.

Employees in these designated areas may be eligible for an income tax credit of five percent of their qualified wages. # Message from the Executive Director

The Colorado Department of Revenue is proud to present the 2024 Tax Profile and Expenditure Report, an important resource for evaluating Colorado taxes.

This report can and should be used to assess tax equitability in the Centennial State and then make policy decisions based on data. In addition to safeguarding sensitive data, the Department of Revenue strives to provide transparent and accessible tax data while seeking to improve the report's navigability and clarity.

Please note that while the report represents the best available data as of its publishing date, there are inherent limitations due to the reliance on taxpayer-reported data and federally published information.

I hope that this report will help readers understand Colorado's current state tax landscape more clearly.

Executive Summary

The foundation for creating effective public policy is data-driven decision making. Every two years, the Colorado Department of Revenue publishes the Tax Profile and Expenditure Report. This report combines the Colorado Tax Expenditure Study, the Colorado Tax Profile Study, and the Colorado Statistics of Income. The goal of the Tax Profile and Expenditure Report is to help state leaders craft effective policy by providing valuable data regarding taxation in Colorado.

This is the seventh in the series of Colorado Tax Profile and Expenditure Reports. This report conforms with the directives set by the Colorado Revised Statutes (section 39-21-303, C.R.S.). The Department is required to prepare this report on a biennial basis.

Colorado Tax Expenditure Study

The Colorado Tax Expenditure Study reports the estimated reduction in state revenue as a result of tax expenditures. A "tax expenditure" is a "tax provision that provides a gross or taxable income definition, deduction, exemption, credit, or rate for certain persons, types of income, transactions, or property that results in reduced tax revenue" (section 39-21-302(2), C.R.S.).

This report measures the effect of all tax expenditures, including many tax expenditures that provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals, as well as structural tax expenditures that exist to establish the basic structure of the tax. "Structural tax expenditures" are intended to establish the basic elements of a tax provision, avoid duplication of a tax, promote administrative efficiency, clarify the definition of the types of transactions or individuals who are subject to a tax, or ensure that taxes are evenly applied.

The 2024 report details tax expenditures totaling over $9.6 billion for the latest years of data. The total liquor excise tax expenditures in 2023 were $19.5 million. In 2023, the total cigarette, nicotine products, and tobacco products excise tax expenditures were $45.9 million, and the total expenditures for fuel excise taxes were $120.3 million. Income tax expenditures in 2022 were nearly $2.1 billion. Total sales and use tax expenditures were $6.9 billion in 2023. Severance tax expenditures totaled $530.1 million for 2022.

Colorado Tax Profile Study

The Colorado Tax Profile Study is a multi-faceted look at Colorado taxes. This is the 16th in the series of Colorado Tax Profile Studies, first published in 1973. The current study is broken into three parts, where each part discusses aspects of the overall tax structure and distribution of tax burden in 2020.

Colorado had relatively low tax revenue overall relative to personal income, ranking 32nd among states in 2020, with only $87 in total state and local tax revenue per $1,000 of personal income.

The majority of family money income came from wages in 2020, although sources of income varied widely by family money income group. For the lowest income group ($0 under $15K), wage income accounted for 61.5% of their family money income. The middle income group ($50K under $70K) had the largest percentage of income coming from wages, 75.8%. For individuals in the highest income group ($200,000 and over), 44.8% of their income stemmed from their wages.

The estimated average family money income of all households in Colorado was $96,925, and households paid an average of $8,047 in state and local taxes in 2020. The estimated median family money income was $51,246, which is lower than the average because extreme high income values increase the average. Median income is a better measure of the midpoint.

In 2020, lower income households paid a higher share of taxes than their share of family money income in Colorado. The lowest income group had the highest overall effective tax rate, paying nearly 29% of their income in state and local taxes. In contrast, the highest income group paid less state and local taxes than its share of family money income, paying nearly 7% of their income in state and local taxes.

The effective tax rates of local taxes were substantially more regressive than that of state effective tax rates, largely due to local property taxes and local sales taxes. This means that in effect, Colorado's taxing structure is regressive. A regressive tax structure is one in which the tax rate decreases as income increases.

Colorado Statistics of Income

Individual Statistics of Income

The Colorado Individual Statistics of Income report is a collection of data describing federal and state individual income tax returns filed by full-year Colorado residents. The Colorado Individual Statistics of Income is an annual report available on the Department's website. Highlights and selected data tables from the complete report are provided in this biennial Tax Profile and Expenditure Report.

This edition of the Individual Statistics of Income report summarizes income tax year 2020 data, which generally represents income tax returns for calendar year 2020. The complete Individual Statistics of Income report includes various income and tax data that is generally bucketed by income group. The key statistics summarized here focus on basic elements of income and tax data such as size of income, filing status, age distribution, and federal deductions. The complete Individual Statistics of Income report includes additional data on these basic elements, as well as further data from federal returns on sources of income, adjustments, itemized deductions, and federal credits and Colorado specific data on location, additions, subtractions, prepayments, and credits.

In 2020, single returns accounted for 66% of all returns and joint returns accounted for 34%. However, 66% of Colorado gross income taxes are from joint returns and 34% are from single returns, demonstrating the tendency for joint returns to have higher incomes than single returns. Furthermore, the distribution of single returns skews younger, meaning there were more single returns for younger ages than older ages. The number of single filers peaks at age 27, and then declines as the population ages. This declining number of single returns after age 27 corresponds with the increasing number of joint returns between the ages of 18 and 40, as more single individuals marry as they age.

Corporate Statistics of Income

The Colorado Corporate Statistics of Income is a collection of data describing Colorado state income tax returns filed by C corporations that conduct business in Colorado. The Colorado Corporate SOI is an annual report available on the Department's website. Highlights and selected data tables from the complete report are provided in this biennial Tax Profile and Expenditure Report.

The complete report consists of tables that present income and tax data by Colorado taxable income group, federal taxable income group, or industry. This data is useful for policy makers, researchers, or anyone who would like an overview of Colorado corporate income tax data. This edition of Corporate Statistics of Income summarizes income tax year 2021.

In 2021, 52% of returns came from corporations that conduct business only in Colorado and 48% of returns came from corporations conducting business within and outside of Colorado. However, 91% of state corporate income taxes paid in 2021 came from corporations that conduct business within and outside of Colorado.

Executive Summary

The 2024 Colorado Tax Expenditure Study reports the estimated reduction in state revenue as a result of tax expenditures. Tax expenditure revenue impacts are presented for excise taxes (liquor; cigarette, nicotine products, and tobacco products; and fuels), income taxes, sales and use taxes, and severance taxes. Data reported by taxpayers on state tax forms are used to estimate tax expenditure revenue impacts. Moreover, the data are self reported and represent the tax returns the Department has processed when the data was retrieved.

In 2023, the total liquor excise tax expenditures were $19.5 million; the total cigarette, nicotine products, and tobacco products excise tax expenditures were $45.9 million; and the total expenditures for fuel excise taxes were $120.3 million. Income tax expenditures in 2022 were nearly $2.1 billion. The total sales and use tax expenditures were $6.9 billion in 2023. Severance tax expenditures totaled $530.1 million for 2022. All of these totals are understated because some tax expenditure data is not collected, not retrievable, or incomplete until the next report.

[1] Years included vary by tax type due to the reporting schedule and data availability. Tax expenditure data is summarized by the year that the taxing period began.

Introduction

What Is a Tax Expenditure?

A “tax expenditure” is a "tax provision that provides a gross or taxable income definition, deduction, exemption, credit, or rate for certain persons, types of income, transactions, or property that results in reduced tax revenue" (section 39-21-302(2), C.R.S.).

This report measures the effect of all tax expenditures, including many tax expenditures that provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals, as well as structural tax expenditures that exist to establish the basic structure of the tax. “Structural tax expenditures” are intended to establish the basic elements of a tax provision, avoid duplication of a tax, promote administrative efficiency, clarify the definition of the types of transactions or individuals who are subject to a tax, or ensure that taxes are evenly applied.[1] Throughout the Colorado Tax Expenditure Study, structural expenditures are indicated with a dagger symbol (†).

What Is the Colorado Tax Expenditure Study?

The Colorado Tax Expenditure Study is the first of three parts to the biennial Tax Profile and Expenditure Report required by section 39-21-303, C.R.S., enacted in 2011. The purpose of the study is to identify and describe tax expenditures administered by the Department as well as provide estimates of each tax expenditure’s effect on state revenue for the “most recently completed tax or calendar year, as appropriate, for which such information is available” (section 39-21-303, C.R.S.).

The Colorado Tax Expenditure Study reports the estimated reduction in state revenue as a result of tax expenditures. This study summarizes available data on tax expenditures as reported by taxpayers on Colorado tax forms. Aggregate data were retrieved from the Department’s tax data system, and totals are presented for each expenditure for which data is available. Moreover, the data are self reported and represent the tax returns the Department has processed when the data was retrieved.

This study presents tax expenditures by tax type. The following tax types are each summarized in their own chapter:

- Chapter 1: Liquor Excise Tax
- Chapter 2: Cigarette, Nicotine Products, and Tobacco Products Excise Taxes
- Chapter 3: Fuel Excise Tax
- Chapter 4: Income Tax
- Chapter 5: Sales and Use Taxes
- Chapter 6: Severance Tax

The Colorado Tax Expenditure Study is different from the evaluation of tax expenditures by the Office of the State Auditor established by section 39-21-305, C.R.S., enacted in 2016. Their schedule of reviews and completed reports for evaluated tax expenditures are available online at https://leg.colorado.gov/agencies/office-state-auditor/tax-expenditure-evaluations

Which Years Are Included?

The Department summarizes expenditures for each tax type every other year. Odd years are summarized for liquor excise; cigarette, nicotine products, and tobacco products excises; fuel excise; and sales and use taxes. Even years are summarized for income and severance taxes. The Department is presenting the following years in the 2024 report:

| Chapter: Tax Type | Years |
|---|---|
| Chapter 1: Liquor Excise | 2017, 2019, 2021, 2023 |
| Chapter 2: Cigarette, Nicotine Products, and Tobacco Products Excise | 2017, 2019, 2021, 2023 |
| Chapter 3: Fuel Excise | 2017, 2019, 2021, 2023 |
| Chapter 4: Income | 2016, 2018, 2020, 2022 |
| Chapter 5: Sales and Use | 2017, 2019, 2021, 2023 |
| Chapter 6: Severance | 2016, 2018, 2020, 2022 |

How Do I Find a Specific Expenditure?

Tax expenditures are presented in alphabetical order in each chapter. The table of contents provides an alphabetized list of the expenditures included in each chapter. To find a specific expenditure based on its statute citation, use the index at the end of the Tax Expenditure Study. This index lists the expenditures in statute order for each chapter. Find the name associated with the statute, and then reference that name in the table of contents to find the page on which the expenditure appears.

Can I Compare This Report to Prior Reports?

The 2020 and prior reports provided revenue impact values that are rounded to the thousands. Starting with the 2022 report, the values are no longer rounded. Starting with the 2018 report, the methodology used to estimate the expenditures changed, in particular for income, sales and use, and severance tax expenditures. Information about these changes is provided in the 2018 report. These changes may sacrifice some comparability to the 2016 and earlier reports.

What Are the Data Limitations?

- Tax expenditure data is not always available for reporting – In order for a tax expenditure to be summarized individually, it must meet these three criteria:

  (1) Be collected on a tax form
  (2) Be itemized and not grouped with other expenditures on a tax form
  (3) Be input or stored in a manner that renders it usable for reporting

  The Department considers a variety of needs and resource constraints—including the need to evaluate tax expenditures—in designing tax forms, data collection procedures, and storage methods. The costs (to the state and to taxpayers) of collecting, processing, and storing more detailed data are balanced against the benefits of such detail. As a result of this balancing, tax expenditure data may not meet all of the criteria necessary for reporting. In cases where tax expenditure data is collected, but not itemized, the Department provides aggregate totals for the grouped expenditures, when possible.

- Tax expenditure data presented in this report is a snapshot in time – Frozen snapshots of live data do not represent the dynamic changes that are continuously occurring with tax data. Significant changes to the tax data presented can occur at any time due to late and amended returns, as well as audits and corrections. The Department's review of tax data is ongoing, and these changes cannot be reflected in a static publication.

- Tax forms may change – Changes to forms can occur due to legislative changes or due to improvements initiated by the Department. This could limit the comparability of data across years.

- Taxpayer confidentiality requirements – The Department is required by statute (sections 39-21-113(4)(a) and 39-21-113(5), C.R.S.) to prevent the identification of individual taxpayers when publishing statistics from tax returns. It is the Department's practice to release aggregated data only when a minimum of three taxpayers exist in a group and a single taxpayer does not represent more than 80% of the total. There must be zero or at least two suppressed values per variable when an aggregate total is being released. Suppressed values are represented by "Data Not Releasable" in the tables.

- Tax data is mostly self-reported – As with all self-reported information, data from tax forms may contain errors. There are system checks in place to identify and review as many returns as possible using the Department's limited resources. However, it is not possible to systematically verify every field for complete accuracy when millions of tax returns and forms are filed every month.

Why Are Some Values Not Presented?

When data is not presented, the Department uses a short phrase in the tables to explain in plain language why the value cannot be presented. These phrases are listed below along with a description of their meaning.

| Term | Description |
|---|---|
| Data Incomplete Until Next Report | The underlying data is incomplete at the time of report preparation. The complete data will become available in the next report. |
| Data Not Collected | The information necessary to estimate the expenditure is not collected on a form or not required to be reported by taxpayers. |
| Data Not Releasable | The data cannot be disclosed because of taxpayer confidentiality requirements. Under sections 39-21-113(4)(a) and 39-21-113(5), C.R.S., when publishing statistics from tax returns, data must be "classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns." |
| Data Not Retrievable | The tax expenditure information is collected on a tax form, but the data cannot be retrieved. This is either because the tax form is stored as a document image or because the data is not mapped to the database used for reporting. |
| Expired | The statutory benefit giving rise to the expenditure is no longer available, and the carryforward period (if any) has ended. No data is available for expired expenditures. |
| Itemized Values Not Retrievable | Itemized expenditure amounts are collected on a tax form, but the data cannot be easily retrieved for reporting. |
| Not Effective This Year | Expenditure was not in effect during this reporting year, but may come into effect in a later year. |
| Not Itemized - See [Aggregate Expenditure Description] | For data that is not itemized, an aggregate total is provided if available. See the Summary of Revenue Impact tables at the end of each chapter to find the aggregate total of the referenced expenditure description for that tax type (or tax form) and year. |
| Not Previously Published | The tax expenditure amount was not published in previous reports for the year indicated, even though the expenditure was in effect that year. |
| Not Reported | The data is not reported due to the reporting schedule of the Tax Profile and Expenditure Report. |

When Is Data Available?

The availability of Colorado tax return data is dependent on the filing cycle for the tax type. The timeline below shows when the data is extracted for each chapter to ensure completeness of the data.

| Chapter: Tax Type | Data Extraction Timeline |
|---|---|
| Chapter 1: Liquor Excise | Three months after the end of the calendar year |
| Chapter 2: Cigarette, Nicotine Products, and Tobacco Products Excise | Three months after the end of the calendar year |
| Chapter 3: Fuel Excise | Three months after the end of the calendar year |
| Chapter 4: Income | One year and eight months after the end of the calendar year |
| Chapter 5: Sales and Use | Three months after the end of the calendar year |
| Chapter 6: Severance | One year and eight months after the end of the calendar year |

Overview

Total Revenue Impact

This table estimates the revenue impact of a combination of structural and non-structural tax expenditures. Structural tax expenditures are intended to establish the basic structure of a tax provision, whereas non-structural tax expenditures are intended to provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals. All of the liquor excise tax expenditures that are reportable and have a revenue impact are structural tax expenditures.

Net Collections

Net collections reported for a given fiscal year are not necessarily associated with the expenditure data reported by calendar year. Collections data includes tax collections across multiple tax years due to amended, late, and/or corrected tax returns and are net of any refunds received in the accounting period, regardless of the time period for which the refund applied. The net collections include sales made by in-state manufacturers and wholesalers, out-of-state wine shippers delivering to consumers directly in Colorado, and personal stock of alcohol brought into Colorado for consumption in this state by individuals.

Distributions

Liquor excise tax revenue is first allocated to the Old Age Pension Fund, which funds a program offering financial assistance and medical benefits to low-income adults aged 60 or older who meet certain eligibility requirements.

When revenue from excise taxes exceeds the amount required to fully fund the Old Age Pension Program, the excess is allocated to the General Fund for spending on general operations at the discretion of the General Assembly. Pursuant to Article XXIV, Section 2 of the Colorado Constitution, 85% of the revenue from excise taxes (excluding transportation-related excise taxes) is required to be credited to the Old Age Pension Fund.

History

Prior to the adoption of the 18th Amendment prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating beverages, states and local governments collected considerable revenue from the levy of liquor license fees and occupation taxes. When the ratification of the 21st Amendment (repealing the 18th Amendment) was announced on December 5, 1933, the sale of all alcoholic beverages became legal, and Colorado was one of 13 states that immediately imposed a tax through legislation approved in August 1933. Due to its hasty enactment, numerous inconsistencies, and defective provisions, the 1933 legislation was repealed and replaced with a new Liquor Code in 1935.

"Intoxicating liquors" were first taxed in 1935 at 3¢ per gallon on fermented malt beverages and malt liquor; 3¢ per quart on wine less than 14% alcohol by volume; 6¢ per quart on wine more than 14% alcohol by volume; and 20¢ per pint on spirits. Tax rates were increased in 1959 and again in 1976 for all types of alcohol beverages. The 1976 increase on beer was to the current rate of 8¢ per gallon. In 1981, the tax rate was increased for all strengths of wine to the current level of 7.33¢ per liter. At the same time, the tax rate for spirits was increased to the current rate of 60.26¢ per liter. In 1997, hard cider was added to the liquor code and is taxed like beer at 8¢ per gallon.

The liquor tax rates per liquor volume have remained the same for several decades. The tax rates have not been adjusted for inflation, and therefore have a deflated value relative to today's dollar. The deflated rates are equivalent to 1.28¢ per gallon of beer, 2.00¢ per liter of wine, 16.41¢ per liter of spirits, and 3.95¢ per gallon of hard cider in 2023 dollars.[1] If the rates were adjusted for inflation each year since taking effect, the 2023 rates would be 50.14¢ per gallon of beer, 26.92¢ per liter of wine, $2.2134 per liter of spirits, and 16.21¢ per gallon of hard cider.[1]

Overview

Total Revenue Impact

This table estimates the revenue impact of a combination of structural and non-structural tax expenditures. Structural tax expenditures are intended to establish the basic structure of a tax provision, whereas non-structural tax expenditures are intended to provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals. For context, less than 5% of the total revenue impact of cigarette, nicotine products, and tobacco products tax expenditures in 2023 are from non-structural tax expenditures.

Net Collections

Net collections reported for a given fiscal year are not necessarily associated with the expenditure data reported by calendar year. Collections data includes tax collections across multiple tax years due to amended, late, and/or corrected tax returns and are net of any refunds received in the accounting period, regardless of the time period for which the refund applied.

Distributions

Except for taxes imposed by Amendment 35, all cigarette, tobacco, and nicotine taxes are allocated to the General Fund either directly or through the Old Age Pension Fund. All cigarette, tobacco, and nicotine taxes imposed by Proposition EE are then transferred to the 2020 Tax Holding Fund, with a portion then allocated back to the General Fund. Of the cigarette taxes remaining in the General Fund and the amount reallocated to the General Fund under Proposition EE, 27% is distributed to local governments based on the amount of state sales tax revenue collected within a given city or county. No amount is distributed to any local government that imposes taxes on any person as a condition for engaging in the business of selling cigarettes.

Taxes imposed by Proposition EE that are transferred to the 2020 Tax Holding Fund are allocated by law, depending on the fiscal year. For fiscal years ending prior to July 1, 2023, amounts in the fund were allocated to K-12 education, housing, rural schools, and tobacco prevention programs. Beginning July 1, 2023, revenue in the fund will go primarily to preschool programs, in addition to tobacco prevention and health care programs.

Amendment 35 imposes an additional tax of 3.2¢ per cigarette and an additional tax of 20% on tobacco products. Revenue from the additional taxes created through Amendment 35 is distributed to state and local government health care and tobacco use prevention programs, as required by the Colorado Constitution.

History

In 1956, before Colorado levied an excise tax on cigarettes, 42 states taxed cigarettes. Colorado was one of 11 states that allowed its municipalities the power to impose a tax on cigarettes. Local governments in Colorado initially imposed a tax on cigarettes during World War II. By 1956, about 28 municipalities in Colorado levied a tax on cigarettes that ranged from 1¢ to 3¢ per pack.

Colorado's state cigarette excise tax was first enacted in 1964 at a rate of 3¢ per pack of 20 cigarettes (one and one half mills per cigarette). In 1986, the cigarette tax was increased to 1¢ per cigarette, and the first tobacco products excise tax was levied at a rate of 20% of the manufacturer's list price, which is generally the invoice price paid by the distributor or remote retail seller to a manufacturer or supplier. In 2004, the voters approved Amendment 35, which increased the cigarette and tobacco products excise taxes. As a result, the cigarette excise tax was increased to 4.2¢ per cigarette (84¢ per pack of 20 cigarettes) and the tobacco products excise tax was increased to 40% of the manufacturer's list price.

In the November 2020 general election, taxpayers approved Proposition EE, which increased taxes on cigarettes and tobacco products and established a new tax on nicotine products (other than cigarette and tobacco products). Cigarette taxes increased to 9.7¢ per cigarette ($1.94 per pack of 20 cigarettes) beginning January 1, 2021, and to 11.2¢ per cigarette ($2.24 per pack of 20 cigarettes) beginning July 1, 2024. The rate will increase to 13.2¢ per cigarette ($2.64 per pack of 20 cigarettes) beginning July 1, 2027. The tax on tobacco products similarly increased to 50% of the manufacturer's list price beginning January 1, 2021, and to 56% of the manufacturer's list price beginning July 1, 2024. The rate will further increase to 62% of the manufacturer's list price beginning July 1, 2027. Moist snuff is subject to a minimum tax and products classified by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services as "modified risk" products are taxed at reduced rates.

The new tax applies to nicotine products, which are products containing nicotine derived from tobacco or created synthetically that are not cigarettes or tobacco products. Similar to tobacco products, the tax is computed on the manufacturer's list price. The tax was imposed beginning January 1, 2021, at a rate of 30% of the manufacturer's list price, increased to 35% in 2022, to 50% beginning January 1, 2023, and to 56% on July 1, 2024. The rate will increase to 62% beginning July 1, 2027. Modified risk nicotine products are also subject to a reduced tax rate.

Cigarette tax is paid by the wholesaler by purchasing stamps that the wholesaler then affixes to cigarette packages. Tobacco products tax is paid by the distributor or remote retail seller. Nicotine products tax is paid by the distributor.

Tax Base

The cigarette excise tax is based on volume, and the tobacco products and nicotine products excise taxes are based on wholesale price. Examples of tobacco products include chewing tobacco, cigars, pipe tobacco, cheroots, stogies, snuff, and plug or twist tobacco.

For information about prior and future rate adjustments, please see the History section earlier in this chapter.

Tax Expenditures

The descriptions of tax expenditures provided in this report (as required by section 39-21-303(2)(a)(III), C.R.S.) attempt to summarize each expenditure in simple and straightforward language. ## Cigarette tax credit for bad debts †

Prior to January 1, 2025, wholesalers could claim a credit for previously paid tax attributable to any portion of a debt related to a sale of cigarettes if the debt became worthless or uncollectible in the time after the tax had been paid. Credit was allowed only if the tax was not otherwise deductible or excludable, the debt had been charged off as uncollectible on the books of the wholesaler, and the wholesaler was allowed an income tax deduction for the debt pursuant to section 166 of the Internal Revenue Code. The allowable credit was limited to the amount of tax previously paid on cigarettes that the wholesaler no longer possessed.

Overview

Total Revenue Impact

This table estimates the revenue impact of a combination of structural and non-structural tax expenditures. Structural tax expenditures are intended to establish the basic structure of a tax provision, whereas non-structural tax expenditures are intended to provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals. In this chapter, there is only one structural expenditure for exported gasoline and special fuel, and it accounts for about 16% of the total revenue impact of fuel excise tax expenditures in 2023.

Net Collections

Net collections reported for a given fiscal year are not necessarily associated with the expenditure data reported by calendar year. Collections data includes tax collections across multiple tax years due to amended, late, and/or corrected tax returns and are net of any refunds received in the accounting period regardless of the time period for which the refund applied.

Distributions

All revenue from motor fuel taxes goes into the Highway Users Tax Fund and is then allocated to the state, counties, and cities according to a statutory formula. Excise tax from aviation gasoline and aviation jet fuel goes into the Aviation Fund pursuant to Article X, Section 18 of the Colorado Constitution and section 39-27-112, C.R.S. Motor fuel tax revenue is divided into two "pots" prior to allocation: the first 7¢ of the tax rate and funds above 7¢. The first 7¢ is distributed 65% to the State Highway Fund, 26% to counties, and 9% to cities after off-the-top deductions occur. Distributions from the Highway Users Tax Fund are primarily driven by statutory formula in Title 43 of the Colorado Revised Statutes. Funds above 7¢ are distributed to the State Highway Fund, counties, and cities at proportions of 60%, 22%, and 18%, respectively.

History

In 1919, Colorado enacted an excise tax on gasoline at a rate of 1¢ per gallon. Over the next decade, all other states followed by imposing a gas tax. The primary purpose of the tax was to fund a modern highway and road system. In addition to these taxes, states received substantial financial help from the federal government to fund these transportation systems. At the time, Colorado's excise tax was imposed on gasoline, kerosene, and other fluid substances derived from petroleum for the sole purpose of propelling motor vehicles.

The rate has been increased several times (often in 1¢ increments) since its inception. The current excise tax rate on gasoline is $0.22 per gallon and that rate has remained the same since 1991. The current excise tax rate on special fuels is $0.205 per gallon and that rate has remained the same since 1992. In 1988, an excise tax of $0.06 per gallon was imposed on aviation gasoline, an excise tax of $0.04 per gallon was imposed on aviation jet fuel, and both excise tax rates remain the same today.

The fuel tax rates for gasoline, special fuels, aviation gasoline, and aviation jet fuel per gallon have remained the same for several decades. The tax rates have not been adjusted for inflation, and therefore have a deflated value relative to today's dollar. The deflated rates are equivalent to 8.63¢ per gallon of gasoline, 8.34¢ per gallon of special fuels, 2.13¢ per gallon of aviation gasoline, and 1.42¢ per gallon of aviation jet fuel in 2023 dollars.[1] If the rates had been adjusted for inflation each year since taking effect, the 2023 rates would be 56.10¢ per gallon of gasoline, 50.39¢ per gallon of special fuels, 16.90¢ per gallon of aviation gasoline, and 11.27¢ per gallon of aviation jet fuel. [1]

Excise taxes for liquefied natural gas (LNG), liquefied petroleum gas (LPG), and compressed natural gas (CNG) fuels were separated from other special fuels in 2013 and assigned specific tax rates that were phased in over six years. Starting in 2014, the excise tax imposed on LNG, LPG, and CNG fuels was $0.03 per gallon. The tax imposed on LNG increased to $0.05, $0.07, $0.08, and $0.10 for calendar years 2015, 2016, 2017, and 2018, respectively.

[1] Source: United States Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers in the Denver-Aurora-Lakewood, CO area.

The tax rate for LPG increased by $0.02 per year such that it was $0.05, $0.07, $0.09, and $0.11 for calendar years 2015, 2016, 2017, and 2018, respectively. The CNG tax rate increased by $0.03 per year bringing it to $0.06, $0.09, $0.12, and $0.15 for calendar years 2015, 2016, 2017, and 2018, respectively. By 2019, the excise tax imposed on LNG became $0.12 per gallon, $0.135 per gallon for LPG, and $0.183 per gallon for CNG.

Tax Base

An excise tax is imposed per gallon only once on all gasoline and special fuel (e.g., diesel, liquefied petroleum gas, kerosene, and natural gas used to propel a motor vehicle) acquired, sold, offered for sale, or used in this state.

Computation of the Tax

Colorado fuel excise tax rates starting January 1, 2019, are as follows:

- Gasoline: $0.22 per gallon
- Diesel fuel and kerosene for motor vehicles used on highways: $0.205 per gallon
- Liquefied petroleum gas: $0.135 per gallon
- Liquefied natural gas: $0.12 per gallon
- Compressed natural gas: $0.183 per gallon
- Aviation gasoline: $0.06 per gallon
- Aviation jet fuel: $0.04 per gallon

Tax Expenditures

The descriptions of tax expenditures provided in this report (as required by section 39-21-303(2)(a)(III), C.R.S.) attempt to summarize each expenditure in simple and straightforward language. Although the descriptions represent a good-faith effort to provide accurate and complete tax information, the information is not binding on the Colorado Department of Revenue, nor does it replace, alter, or supersede Colorado law and regulations. The Executive Director, who by statute is the only person having the authority to bind the Department, has not formally reviewed and/or approved these descriptions.

Allowance to cover losses in transit and unloading

A distributor that is liable for fuel excise tax may deduct an allowance of 2% of the total amount of gasoline or special fuel acquired during any calendar month to cover losses in transit and in unloading the gasoline or special fuel removed from a terminal, regardless of whether the terminal is inside or outside of Colorado. No allowance may be deducted for liquefied petroleum gas or in any case where the tax is imposed on the bulk transfer of taxable fuel by pipeline or by railcar from a refinery to a terminal operated by the refiner.

Aviation fuel used by certain air carriers is exempt from fuel excise tax. Products, including kerosene, specially prepared, sold, and used in aircraft operated by scheduled air carriers or commuter airline operators that are exempt from the federal aviation fuels tax are exempt from the fuel excise tax. Prior to January 1, 2025, aviation gasoline and jet fuel used by any of the following air carriers, certificated by the FAA, is exempt from fuel excise tax: part 121 air carriers, as defined in section 39-27-101(19), C.R.S.; part 135 commuter air carriers, as defined in section 39-27-101(20), C.R.S.; and direct air carriers, as defined in section 39-27-101(6), C.R.S., providing air transportation to authorized public charter operators pursuant to 14 CFR 380. Aviation fuels that are exempt from fuel excise tax are generally subject to state sales tax.

Distributions

When Colorado's income tax was first levied in 1937, the revenues were initially used to fund public schools, thereby reducing the dependence on Colorado's property tax, its primary revenue source at the time. Two years after enactment of the income tax system, the General Assembly changed income tax revenue distribution by sending 65% of the revenue to the State General Fund. After 1947, all income tax revenue was distributed to the General Fund.

History

Individual Income Tax

In 1911, Wisconsin enacted the first comprehensive income tax system adopted by any state. By 1912, the newly created Colorado Tax Commission began advocating that Colorado enact an income tax based on it being an equitable tax tied to a taxpayer's ability to pay. Nearly 25 years later in 1937, Colorado adopted an income tax that applied to individuals, corporations, trusts, and estates.

In 1937, the individual income tax was levied at a graduated rate schedule and applied to state-defined taxable income with exemptions for single and married filers. The Colorado income tax was levied at 1.0% on the first $1,000 and up to 6.0% for income over $10,000. Colorado assessed an additional surtax of 2.0% (without exemptions) on all income received from interest and dividends in lieu of property tax assessments on intangibles.

Although many changes were made to the individual income tax over the years, the structure of the tax remained basically the same from 1937 through 1964. In 1964, the General Assembly passed the Colorado Income Tax Act of 1964 wherein Colorado adjusted gross income became based on federal adjusted gross income. Specific modifications to federal adjusted gross income as well as specific Colorado exemptions were part of the 1964 tax structure. This tax structure remained in effect until 1987, when the Colorado Income Tax Act of 1987 was enacted.

In 1987, state taxable income became officially tied to federal taxable income. State income taxes have since been determined by applying state-specific subtractions or additions to federal taxable income, and then allowing credits that reduce income tax liabilities on the state taxable income. The Colorado Income Tax Act of 1987 also changed the rate to a flat rate of 5%.

In 1992, voters approved the Taxpayer's Bill of Rights (TABOR), Article X, Section 20 of the Colorado Constitution, which imposed limitations on state revenue and spending and required excess revenues to be refunded in the next fiscal year. The General Assembly enacted legislation reducing the tax rate for 1999 to 4.75% and to 4.63% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2000. The rate was temporarily reduced to 4.50% for 2019 as a refund mechanism for revenue collected above the TABOR revenue limit. In 2020, Colorado's voters approved an initiative that reduced the tax rate to 4.55% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2020. The rate was again temporarily reduced to 4.50% for 2021 as a refund mechanism for revenue collected above the TABOR revenue limit. Voters then approved Proposition 121 in 2022, which reduces the tax rate to 4.40% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2022. Senate Bill 24-228 temporarily lowered the tax rate to 4.25% for tax year 2024 and prescribed temporary rate reductions as a TABOR refund mechanism for future years.

C Corporation Income Tax

The Colorado corporate income tax became effective on July 1, 1937, and was levied at 4% of corporate taxable net income. Various tax commissions had argued, as early as 1912, that the current system of assessing a property tax on individuals' real and intangible property was inadequate. Thus, they advocated for a corporate tax on these two classes of property.

In 1947, the rate was increased to 5%, and that rate remained until 1980. In 1981, the General Assembly enacted a graduated tax rate on corporations. The legislature would adjust the graduated corporate tax rate for various economic needs. Thus, the business cycle influenced corporate rates year to year.

A graduated rate remained in effect until July 1993, when the General Assembly reenacted a flat tax rate of 5%, because a single, flat rate applicable to all types of taxpayers was mandated by TABOR. The General Assembly enacted legislation reducing the tax rate for 1999 to 4.75% and to 4.63% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2000. The rate was temporarily reduced to 4.50% for 2019 as a refund mechanism for revenue collected above the TABOR revenue limit. In 2020, Colorado's voters approved an initiative that reduced the tax rate to 4.55% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2020. The rate was again temporarily reduced to 4.50% for 2021 as a refund mechanism for revenue collected above the TABOR revenue limit. Voters then approved Proposition 121 in 2022, which reduces the state income tax rate to 4.40% for tax years beginning on and after January 1, 2022. Senate Bill 24-228 temporarily lowered the tax rate to 4.25% for tax year 2024 and prescribed temporary rate reductions as a TABOR refund mechanism for future years.

Tax Base

Individual Income Tax

Colorado individual income tax is determined based on Colorado taxable income. The starting point for the calculation for Colorado taxable income is federal taxable income. Certain modifications are then made to federal taxable income to compute Colorado taxable income. Estates and trusts generally compute Colorado taxable income in the same manner as individuals, with certain differences in the allowable modifications.

C Corporation Income Tax

The tax base for C corporations also begins with federal taxable income. In determining Colorado taxable income, certain income modifications are added to and subtracted from the federal taxable income base. A C corporation doing business only in Colorado will compute its tax on 100% of its federal taxable income as modified. However, a C corporation doing business within and outside of Colorado must determine the amount of modified federal taxable income that is apportioned to Colorado. Apportionment of income to Colorado is determined by comparing the C corporation's receipts derived from sources in Colorado to the C corporation's total receipts.

Computation of the Tax

§39-22-104, C.R.S.
§39-22-301, C.R.S.

Colorado income tax is calculated by applying the tax rate to Colorado taxable income. The tax rate has varied for the tax years included in this report as follows:

- 2016 - 2018: 4.63%
- 2019: 4.50%
- 2020: 4.55%
- 2021: 4.50%
- 2022: 4.40%

Partnerships and S Corporations

Partnerships and S corporations, as defined by the Internal Revenue Code, are pass-through business entities. They are not generally subject to Colorado income tax, but the partners, shareholders, and members are, and partnerships and S corporations may make an election under the SALT Parity Act to be subject to tax at the entity level. A partner may be an individual, a corporation, an estate, a trust, a partnership, or a limited liability company. An S corporation's shareholders may be individuals, certain trusts, and estates. Any partnership or S corporation doing business in Colorado must file a return to report total income and modifications to be passed through to its partners or shareholders. Certain income tax deductions and credits may be allowed to only partnerships or only S corporations, and some tax expenditures are dependent upon the entity type of the partner, shareholder, or member.

Nonresident Composite Returns

The Colorado partnership and S corporation return includes a composite filing option for nonresidents. Nonresident partners, shareholders, and members that are individuals, estates, or trusts have the option to allow the pass-through entity to remit their share of income taxes through a composite return. Nonresident partners, shareholders, and members may file their own separate Colorado individual or fiduciary income tax returns. C corporation partners cannot be included in a composite return, regardless of residency. The composite filing option is not available to resident partners, shareholders, and members.

Methodology

Income tax expenditure estimates are separated by income tax return type. Income tax expenditures reported on Colorado income tax returns are summarized when data is available. Data comes from returns filed by resident, part-year resident, and nonresident taxpayers.

There are three types of income tax expenditures in this chapter: credits, deductions, and exemptions. Each type of expenditure is estimated differently because they are applied differently. Revenue impacts are approximated based upon the amount by which each tax expenditure could reduce tax collections, directly or indirectly.

- Credits are dollar-for-dollar amounts used to directly reduce tax liability. Taxpayers report the amount of the credit to be used. Thus, the revenue impacts of credits are simply the credit amounts reported.
- Deductions, frequently referred to as subtractions, indirectly reduce tax liability by reducing taxable income. The Department typically estimates the revenue impact of deductions by multiplying the amount reported by the tax rate. However, in two cases the deductions reported on tax forms are higher than the actual amounts used to reduce Colorado tax liability. The first case is when income is apportioned to only include applicable income (i.e., reduced to remove income that is not being taxed). When income is being apportioned, the Department apportions the deductions and then multiplies by the tax rate to estimate the revenue impact. The second case is when one deduction or the sum of all deductions reported exceeds income. The Department cannot systematically adjust revenue impact estimates in the second case due to data limitations.

- Income tax exemptions are for entities that are not required to file income tax returns. The revenue impact of exemptions cannot be estimated because the information is not collected on any tax form.

Tax Expenditures

The descriptions of tax expenditures provided in this report (as required by section 39-21-303(2)(a)(III), C.R.S.) attempt to summarize each expenditure in simple and straightforward language. Although the descriptions represent a good-faith effort to provide accurate and complete tax information, the information is not binding on the Colorado Department of Revenue, nor does it replace, alter, or supersede Colorado law and regulations. The Executive Director, who by statute is the only person having the authority to bind the Department, has not formally reviewed and/or approved these descriptions.

Child and dependent care expenses credit

A refundable income tax credit is allowed to a full-year resident or part-year resident individual who pays child and dependent care expenses and whose federal adjusted gross income does not exceed the applicable limit of $60,000, adjusted for inflation for tax years 2027 and later. The credit is equal to 10%, 30%, 50%, or 70% of the federal child care credit allowed to the individual for the tax year, depending on the tax year and their federal adjusted gross income. For tax years 2026 and later, the credit is calculated without regard the limit on the federal credit based on the taxpayer's federal tax liability. In the case of a part-year resident, the credit is prorated based on the proportion of their modified adjusted gross income that was realized during the part of the year that they were a Colorado resident. The credit is not allowed to an individual receiving child care assistance from the Department of Early Childhood, except to the extent of the taxpayer's unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses that result in a federal credit for child care expenses.

Colorado earned income tax credit

A refundable income tax credit is allowed to a full-year resident or part-year resident individual who is allowed a federal earned income tax credit. The Colorado earned income tax credit is equal to 10%, 20%, 25%, 35%, or 50% of the allowable federal credit, depending on the tax year. For tax years 2025 and later, the credit percentage may be increased based on an adjustment factor, calculated as the forecasted compound annual growth of state revenue subject to TABOR. In the case of a part-year resident, the credit is prorated based on the proportion of their modified adjusted gross income that was realized during the part of the year that they were a Colorado resident. The expanded Colorado earned income tax credit, which appears as a separate expenditure in this report, is allowed for tax years 2020 and later to certain resident individuals who do not qualify for this Colorado earned income tax credit.

Colorado job growth incentive credit

A nonrefundable income tax credit is allowed to any taxpayer doing business in Colorado who receives certification from the Colorado Economic Development Commission (EDC) for a project that creates qualified job growth over a credit period not to exceed 96 months. The credit is allowed at the discretion of the EDC and, unless the project is a qualified partnership between the taxpayer and a state institution of higher education, is allowed only if the credit is a major factor in the decision to locate or retain the project in Colorado. If certain conditions are met, and subject to approval by the EDC, the taxpayer may elect for special treatment of the credit as a strategic capital tax credit. The revenue impact reported for this expenditure does not include any credit the taxpayer has elected to treat as a strategic capital tax credit, which appears separately in this report.

Olympic medal income earnings subtraction

An income tax subtraction is allowed to an individual who wins a medal while competing for the United States of America in either the Olympic Games or the Paralympic Games, so long as the individual's adjusted gross income for the tax year does not exceed $1 million ($500,000 if married filing separately). The subtraction is allowed for the value of any medal won while competing for the U.S. at either the Olympic Games or the Paralympic Games, regardless of whether or not the medal's monetary value is included in federal taxable income, and any monetary award given for winning the medal by the U.S. Olympic Committee or any sport-specific national governing body or Paralympic sport organization that is included in the individual's federal taxable income. The subtraction is not allowed for prize money awarded by the U.S. Olympic Committee to medal winners that is excluded from federal taxable income on the winner's federal income tax return or for any endorsement income or nonmonetary benefits.

Pension and annuity subtraction

An income tax subtraction is allowed to individuals age 55 or older for pension and annuity income included in their federal taxable income. The subtraction is also allowed to individuals under age 55 whose federal taxable income includes pension and annuity income they received because of the death of the person originally entitled to receive the pension or annuity. The subtraction is generally limited to $24,000 for individuals age 65 or older and limited to $20,000 for all other individuals. These limits do not apply to the subtraction of Social Security benefits received by individuals age 65 or older during tax years 2022 and later. The limits also do not apply to the subtraction of Social Security benefits received during tax years 2025 and later by individuals age 55 to 64 whose adjusted gross income is $75,000 or less if filing single or $95,000 or less if filing jointly.

Previously taxed income or gain subtraction †

An income tax subtraction is allowed to a taxpayer to prevent the taxation of any annuity or other amount of income or gain that was properly included in income or gain and taxed in a prior year. Individuals may claim the subtraction for contributions made to the Public Employees' Retirement Association (PERA) between July 1, 1984, and December 31, 1986, or to the Denver Public Schools Retirement System (DPSRS) in 1986 to the extent that retirement benefits from PERA or DPSRS are included in the individual's federal taxable income and the individual did not claim a subtraction for these contributions in any prior tax year. C corporations may claim the subtraction with respect to any income or gain included in their federal taxable that was previously taxed by Colorado prior to 1965 to the corporation, a decedent, an estate, or trust, from which the corporation received the income or gain.

[1] The values shown here for individuals are data reported on the itemized line for the "PERA/DPSRS Subtraction" on the Individual Income Tax Booklet (DR 0104), which only allows for PERA contributions made in 1984-1986 or Denver Public Schools District No. 1 Retirement contributions made in 1986. Any other types of previously taxed income allowed to be deducted by individuals under this provision [section 39-22-104(4)(c), C.R.S.] can be claimed on the "Other Subtractions" line of the DR 0104 form. Although the Department cannot efficiently disaggregate the previously taxed income from other income allowed to be deducted on the "Other Subtractions" line of the form, this is rare and likely minimal.

Qualifying charitable contribution subtraction

An income tax subtraction is allowed to individuals who claim the standard deduction, rather than itemized deductions on their federal income tax returns, and who make charitable contributions totaling more than $500 during the tax year. The subtraction is allowed only for the aggregate amount of charitable contributions in excess of $500. Charitable contributions must qualify for deduction under federal law to be eligible for subtraction.

Ridesharing or mass transit expenses deduction

An income tax deduction was allowed to a C corporation for any contribution it made during the tax year to free or partially subsidized ridesharing arrangements for employees, unless such contributions were deducted in the calculation of the C corporation's federal taxable income. Qualifying contributions included, but were not limited to, providing vehicles for such arrangements, cash incentives (not to exceed the value of such transportation) for participation in ridesharing arrangements, and the payment of all or part of the administrative cost incurred in organizing, establishing, or administering a ridesharing program. House Bill 22-1026 eliminated the deduction and replaced it with an employer alternative transportation options credit, effective for tax years commencing on or after January 1, 2023.

1 "Data Not Releasable" values are included in the total.

2 The values shown here for individuals are data reported on the itemized line for the "PERA/DPSRS Subtraction" on the Individual Income Tax Booklet (DR 0104), which only allows for PERA contributions made in 1984-1986 or Denver Public Schools District No. 1 Retirement contributions made in 1986. Any other types of previously taxed income allowed to be deducted by individuals under this provision [section 39-22-104(4)(c), C.R.S.] can be claimed on the "Other Subtractions" line of the DR 0104 form. Although the Department cannot efficiently disaggregate the previously taxed income from other income allowed to be deducted on the "Other Subtractions" line of the form, this is rare and likely minimal.

Overview

Total Revenue Impact

This table estimates the revenue impact of a combination of structural and non-structural tax expenditures. Structural tax expenditures are intended to establish the basic structure of a tax provision, whereas non-structural tax expenditures are intended to provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals. For example, wholesale sales are a structural expenditure and constitute about half of the total sales and use tax expenditures.

Sales and Use Tax Expenditures

[1] Starting with 2019, Retailer's Use expenditures are lower because destination sourcing requirements shifted some retailer's use tax to sales tax.

[2] All totals are understated because some data is not retrievable, data is incomplete until the next report, and expenditure data for Consumer Use Tax is not collected on any form. The 2021 total was updated from the previous report to include Claim for Refund data.

Net Collections

Net collections reported for a given fiscal year are not necessarily associated with the expenditure data reported by calendar year. Collections data includes tax collections across multiple tax years due to amended, late, and/or corrected tax returns and are net of any refunds received in the accounting period, regardless of the time period for which the refund applied.

Sales and Use Tax Net Collections

| Fiscal Year (July 1 through June 30) | Net Collections |
|---|---|

Distributions

With the exception of sales tax from sales of aviation fuel, revenue from state sales and use taxes is first allocated to the Old Age Pension Fund. The Old Age Pension Program provides financial assistance and medical benefits to low-income adults aged 60 or older who meet certain eligibility requirements.

In addition to sales and use taxes, the Old Age Pension Fund is also funded by excise taxes. Pursuant to Article XXIV, Section 2 of the Colorado Constitution, 85% of the revenue from excise taxes (excluding transportation-related excise taxes) is required to be credited to the Old Age Pension Fund. The 15% not initially credited to the Old Age Pension Fund is allocated by the General Assembly among the General Fund, the Older Coloradans Cash Fund, and the Housing Development Grant Fund.

When tax revenue exceeds the amount required to fully fund the Old Age Pension Program, the excess is allocated to the General Fund for spending on general operations at the discretion of the General Assembly.

Sales tax from aviation fuel is credited to the Aviation Fund pursuant to sections 39-27-112 and 43-10-109, C.R.S.

History

Colorado enacted a state sales tax in 1935 with the passage of the "Emergency Retail Sales Tax Act of 1935." The establishment of the state sales tax was initially enacted during the Great Depression to provide funds to be expended for the purpose of relieving distress and suffering among the indigent unemployable residents of the state. The law was set to expire in 1937. However, legislation was enacted in 1937 that made the sales tax permanent, established a complementary use tax on property and services, and updated the distribution of sales tax revenue to a welfare program that was implemented in 1936, called the State Public Welfare Fund. Thus, the state sales tax was created to support Colorado's welfare system. Today, 85% of all net revenue from sales taxes and use taxes is initially distributed into the Old Age Pension Fund. However, because the Old Age Pension Fund is fully funded, most of the distributions are reallocated to the General Fund for spending on general operations at the discretion of the General Assembly.

The Colorado sales tax and use tax was enacted in 1935 and 1937, respectively—both at a rate of 2%. The rate was adjusted to 3% in July 1965, 3.5% in 1983, and back to 3% in August of 1984. In 2001, the General Assembly decreased the rate to its current rate of 2.9%.

Specific exemptions to Colorado sales tax have gradually been added over time. Other than wholesale sales, the largest state sales tax exemption adopted by the General Assembly was the exemption of food for home consumption, which was enacted in 1979.

The 2018 United States Supreme Court opinion in South Dakota v. Wayfair overturned prior Supreme Court decisions precluding states from imposing sales tax collection requirements on retailers who maintained no physical presence within the state. Following the decision, the Colorado General Assembly adopted House Bill 19-1240.

Among other things, House Bill 19-1240 generally required any retailer making sufficient sales in Colorado to collect Colorado state and state-administered local sales taxes, even if the retailer did not maintain a place of business in the state. House Bill 19-1240 also made changes to sales tax sourcing rules, which determine the jurisdiction in which a sale is deemed to take place.

Collectively, these changes mean that more businesses are required to collect sales tax on retail transactions. An increase in sales tax collection will generally cause a reduction in use tax collection, because much of Colorado's use tax revenue originates from retail purchases where sales tax was not collected by the retailer.

Tax Base

The sales tax is a consumption tax levied on sales of tangible personal property and some specifically listed services. The tax is paid by consumers and collected by vendors on the state's behalf. Generally, vendors file sales tax returns to the Colorado Department of Revenue on a monthly basis, though some vendors file returns quarterly or annually if they collect only a limited amount of sales taxes.

Colorado statute lists five broad categories of sales that are subject to tax and the various exclusions to the broad list. A tax is levied:

(A) on the purchase price charged or paid for all retail sales and purchases of tangible personal property, including, in the case of retail sales involving the exchange of property, the fair market value of the property exchanged

(B) upon intrastate telephone and telegraph services

(C) on commercial consumption of gas and electric services

(D) upon the amount paid for food or beverages served or furnished by restaurants, cafes, and similar places of business

(E) on the amount charged for the rental of lodging

Use tax is a complement to sales tax. Use tax is due to the state when an individual or business stores, uses, or consumes any tangible personal property in this state on which state sales tax has not been paid. Credit is also allowed for sales taxes lawfully paid to other states.

Computation of the Tax

§39-26-105, C.R.S.
§39-26-106, C.R.S.

The Colorado sales and use tax rate is 2.9% on the purchase price paid or charged on all taxable tangible personal property, commodities, and services.

Methodology

Actual, self-reported data collected on state sales and use tax forms is used to estimate the revenue impacts of sales and use tax expenditures. Data comes from State Sales Tax Returns (DR 0100), State Special Event Sales Tax Returns (DR 0098), Retailer's Use Tax Returns (DR 0173), Claims for Refunds (DR 0137B), and Sales/Use Tax Refund for Broadband Equipment (DR 0137C) forms. Data from state special event returns was added starting with the 2022 Tax Profile and Expenditure Report.

Sales tax expenditures generally take the form of exemptions as they exempt certain sales from tax at the time of the sale. Sales tax exemptions benefit the purchaser, but because sales tax is collected and remitted by the seller, it is the seller who must report the relevant exemptions when they file their sales tax return. Revenue impacts of expenditures are approximated based upon the amount by which each tax expenditure would reduce tax collections. Revenue impacts in this chapter are typically calculated by multiplying the amount of exempt sales reported on sales and use tax returns by the tax rate, 2.9%.

Sellers report most sales and use tax exemptions on specific lines of state sales and use tax returns. However, many exemptions are not itemized (given their own line) on the returns and are instead reported on the same line as other exemptions. There are other data limitations as well. For example, most itemized exemption data reported on the retailer's use tax return is not stored in a manner that renders it usable for reporting. Additionally, the state special event sales tax return does not itemize expenditures, although any applicable sales tax exemption can be claimed on the form. These limitations are noted throughout the chapter and aggregate data is provided when available.

Data on sales tax expenditures may contain errors, as with all self-reported information. Sellers may report expenditures on incorrect lines. For instance, exempt sales of food for domestic home consumption should be reported on the exemption line for "Sales of food for domestic home consumption and food sold through vending machines" on the state sales tax return. A seller could mistakenly report their sales for this exemption on the "Other exempt sales" line or any other line. To the extent that these errors are present, the revenue impact estimates may be inaccurate.

Most statutory sales tax exemptions have corresponding use tax exemptions. However, for certain exemptions appearing in this report, a note has been added indicating that revenue impact estimates are based solely on amounts reported on the state sales tax return, even though the exemption applies to use tax as well. Because the noted exemptions relate generally to sales transacted in person or locally, they are unlikely to be reported on the retailer's use tax return because generally only out-of-state retailers who sell taxable property into Colorado, but do not collect Colorado sales tax, file the return.

If a sales tax exemption is not claimed or allowed at the time of sale and sales tax is collected, the purchaser may file a claim for refund. Additionally, certain expenditures cannot be claimed as exemptions at the time of the sale and are instead allowed only in the form of a refund that may be claimed directly from the Department. Refunds are allowed in the amounts of state tax previously paid, so no additional calculation is used to estimate the revenue impacts of these expenditures. Expenditure data from refund claims has a two-year lag compared to expenditure data from state sales and use tax returns. For example, 2017 data from state sales and use tax returns were available for the 2018 Tax Profile and Expenditure Report, whereas claim for refund data for 2017 was not available until the 2020 Tax Profile and Expenditure Report.

When sales tax is owed but not collected at the time of purchase, the purchaser is obligated to report and pay the tax due as consumer use tax. Consumers report only the amount of purchases subject to consumer use tax, so expenditure data for consumer use tax is not collected on any form.

Tax Expenditures

The descriptions of tax expenditures provided in this report (as required by section 39-21-303(2)(a)(III), C.R.S.) attempt to summarize each expenditure in simple and straightforward language. Although the descriptions represent a good-faith effort to provide accurate and complete tax information, the information is not binding on the Colorado Department of Revenue, nor does it replace, alter, or supersede Colorado law and regulations. The Executive Director, who by statute is the only person having the authority to bind the Department, has not formally reviewed and/or approved these descriptions.

Agricultural operations †

The following are exempt from state sales and use taxes: farm close-out sales of all tangible personal property used in the farming or ranching operation, feed for livestock, seeds for farm operations, orchard trees, and straw and other bedding for use in the care of livestock or poultry.

Bad debt charged off †

Retailers making sales on credit are generally required to pay the sales tax due for the month of the sale rather than the month in which the account is paid. If an account for which the sales tax has been paid is subsequently found to be worthless and actually charged off for income tax purposes, the retailer may deduct the worthless sale from the gross sales for the month in which the account is charged off. If a charged-off account is subsequently collected by the retailer, the amount collected must be added to gross sales for the month of the collection.

Sales made by schools and school organizations ‡

Two separate, but similar exemptions are allowed for sales made by schools and school organizations. First, a sale by an association or organization of parents and teachers of public school students that is a charitable organization is exempt from state sales tax if the association or organization uses the funds raised through the sale for the benefit of a public school or an organized public school activity or to pay the reasonable expenses of the association or organization. Second, sales made by schools and certain school-related entities or organizations are exempt from state sales tax if the proceeds of the sales, less the actual cost of the goods and services, are donated to a school or school-approved student organization. To qualify for exemption, the sales must be made by a school; an association or organization of parents and school teachers; a booster club or other club, group, or organization whose primary purpose is to support a school activity; a school class; or a student club, group, or organization. The storage, use, or consumption of an item that qualifies for either of these sales tax exemptions is also exempt from state use tax.

Vendor fee

A vendor may retain a portion of the sales tax they collect to cover the vendor's expense in the collection and remittance of the tax if the vendor remits the tax due to the Department by the applicable due date. The vendor fee allowed to retailers has been amended multiple times since its original enactment. For sales made prior to January 1, 2020, the amount that may be retained by the retailer is 3.33% of the tax due. For sales made on or after January 1, 2020, the amount that may be retained by a retailer increased to 4% of the tax due, but the amount a retailer may retain for any filing period is limited to $1,000. Beginning January 1, 2022, a retailer is not permitted to retain any vendor's fee for any filing period that the retailer's total taxable sales were greater than $1,000,000. For sales made during calendar year 2023 only, if the retailer's total taxable sales for the filing period are less than or equal to $100,000, the service fee is equal to 5.3% of the state sales tax due for the period.

Overview

Total Revenue Impact

This table estimates the revenue impact of a combination of structural and non-structural tax expenditures. Structural tax expenditures are intended to establish the basic structure of a tax provision, whereas non-structural tax expenditures are intended to provide special or selective tax relief to further various public policy goals. There are several structural expenditures in this chapter, but they do not have a large effect on the total revenue impact of severance tax expenditures.

Net Collections

Net collections reported for a given fiscal year are not necessarily associated with the expenditure data reported by calendar year. Collections data includes tax collections across multiple tax years due to amended, late, and/or corrected filings and are net of any refunds received in the accounting period, regardless of the filing period for which the refund applied.

Distributions

In general, severance tax revenue is split evenly between two funds, the State Severance Tax Trust Fund and the Local Government Severance Tax Fund. Prior to these distributions, House Bills 21-1312 and 23-1272 first allocate to separate designated funds the revenue attributable to the reduction or discontinuation of certain tax expenditures.

The State Severance Tax Trust Fund is administered by the Department of Natural Resources for the purpose of funding programs and projects relating generally to natural resource management, water conservation, and low-income energy assistance. Revenue transferred to the State Severance Tax Trust Fund is split equally between the Severance Tax Perpetual Base Fund and the Severance Tax Operational Fund.

The Local Government Severance Tax Fund is administered by the Department of Local Affairs. Of the revenue transferred to the Local Government Severance Tax Fund, 70% is distributed to political subdivisions socially or economically impacted by the development, processing, or energy conversion of minerals and mineral fuels. The remaining 30% is distributed directly to local governments based on the geographic location of energy industry employees, mine and well permits, and overall mineral production.

House Bill 21-1312 allocates revenue attributable to the reduction or discontinuation of certain coal tax expenditures to the Just Transition Cash Fund to provide assistance to communities and workers transitioning away from the mining and burning of coal as an energy source. House Bill 23-1272 allocates to the Decarbonization Tax Credits Administration Cash Fund the revenue attributable to the temporary decrease in ad valorem credits for oil and gas severance tax.

History

The state severance tax was first enacted in Colorado in 1913. It levied a tax on each ton of coal mined in the state at a rate of 0.33¢ per ton. The purpose of the initial tax was to finance state regulatory and inspection measures. At the time, the revenue source was minimal due to an economic climate of declining coal mining production.

A second severance tax was adopted in 1951 and imposed a levy of $0.002 per barrel on oil and $0.002 for every 50,000 cubic feet of gas produced. The tax was meant to fund state conservation activities in the oil and gas industries. Revenue from the tax was distributed into a special conservation fund and was considered minimal.

The third severance tax – the 1953 Oil and Gas Severance Tax – was based on gross income from oil and gas production. The 1953 tax was modified by credits and an exemption – specifically, certain property taxes worked as a credit to offset severance tax liabilities. By 1957, there were 28 states that imposed a severance tax, although the tax provided a minor source of revenue when compared to other tax sources in those states.

In 1977, when Article 29 (Severance Tax) was added to Title 39 of the Colorado Revised Statutes, the income-based tax on the severance of oil and gas was moved from the income tax article to the new severance tax article.

Tax Base

Taxes are levied on the production or extraction of coal, metallic minerals, molybdenum, oil and gas, and oil shale. The tax rates and any exemptions or credits are specific to the type of material extracted.

Computation of the Tax

§39-29-104, C.R.S.
§39-29-105, C.R.S.
§39-29-106, C.R.S.
§39-29-107, C.R.S.

Colorado severance tax rates are as follows:

- Coal: Coal is taxed at a fixed rate per ton that is adjusted quarterly based upon changes in the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' Producer Price Index. The quarterly rates for 2022 ranged from $0.986 to $1.127 per ton.
- Metallic minerals: A tax of 2.25% is levied against the extraction of metallic minerals to the extent gross income exceeds $19 million.
- Molybdenum: A tax of 5¢ per ton is levied against the extraction of molybdenum. The first 625,000 tons of molybdenum ore produced each quarter is exempt from tax.
- Oil and gas: A graduated rate of 2% to 5% is levied against the gross income derived from the production of oil and gas in Colorado.
- Oil shale: On and after January 1, 2024, a tax is levied on the gross proceeds from each commercial oil shale facility. Prior to January 1, 2024, the tax was imposed at the rate of 1% to 4% on the gross proceeds beginning 180 days after daily production at a commercial oil shale facility first surpassed 15,000 tons of oil shale or 10,000 barrels of shale oil, whichever was greater. The rate increased over the first four taxable years and was 4% for any taxable year thereafter.

Tax Expenditures

The descriptions of tax expenditures provided in this report (as required by section 39-21-303(2)(a)(III), C.R.S.) attempt to summarize each expenditure in simple and straightforward language. Although the descriptions represent a good-faith effort to provide accurate and complete tax information, the information is not binding on the Colorado Department of Revenue, nor does it replace, alter, or supersede Colorado law and regulations. The Executive Director, who by statute is the only person having the authority to bind the Department, has not formally reviewed and/or approved these descriptions.

Coal credit for lignitic production

A credit is allowed for the production of lignitic coal. For tax years 2021 and prior, the credit was equal to 50% of the severance tax imposed on lignitic coal production. The credit percentage decreases incrementally for tax years 2022 through 2025 and will be eliminated entirely for tax years 2026 and later.

Executive Summary

The Colorado Tax Profile Study is an in depth analysis of Colorado's taxes in three parts. The first part looks at how Colorado compares to other states in terms of personal income, tax revenue, and expenditures. The second part analyzes the distribution of income and taxes paid by households. The third part discusses considerations for tax equity.

Note: The Census data covers individual government fiscal years that ended between July 1, 2019, and June 30, 2020, and the BEA data is for calendar year 2020.

Using data from the United States Census Bureau's Annual Survey of State and Local Government Finances and from the United States Department of Commerce's Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) Regional GDP and Personal Income Data, this study ranks Colorado among other states. Colorado had relatively low tax revenue overall relative to personal income, ranking 32nd among states in 2020, with $87 in total state and local tax revenue per $1,000 of personal income. Of these taxes, 54% went to local governments, which placed Colorado local tax revenue as a percentage of total tax revenue the fifth highest among states.

Colorado's per capita expenditures ranked at 20th in the nation in 2020. Fire protection ranked first in the nation while parks and recreation ranked second in the nation. Colorado was ranked in the bottom ten states for per capita expenditures on solid waste and health.

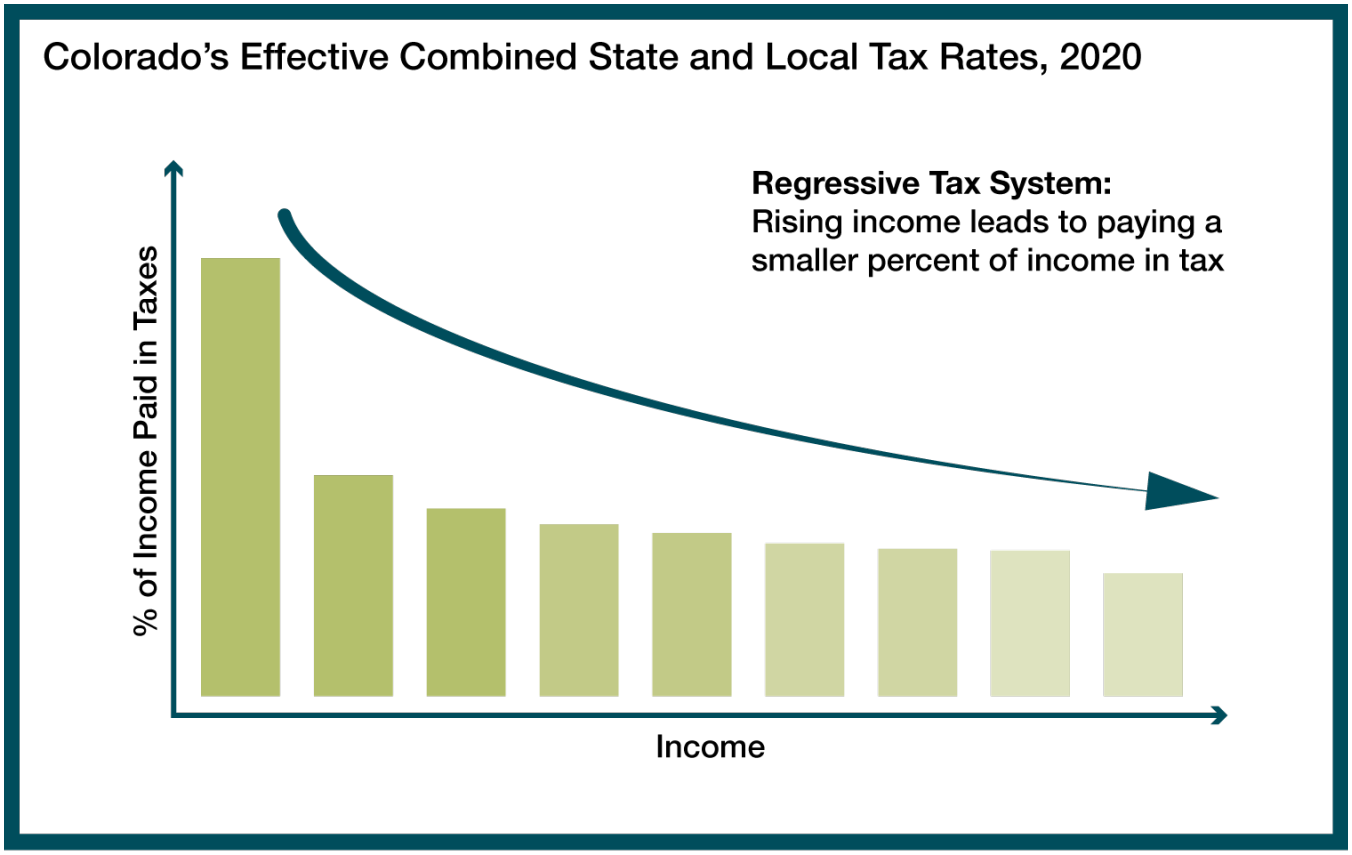
Note: The values presented in this exhibit are estimates because actual values are not known.

The estimated average family money income of all households in Colorado was $96,925, and households paid an average of $8,047 in state and local taxes in 2020. The estimated median family money income was $51,246, which is lower than the average because extreme high income values increase the average. The median income is a better measure of the midpoint. Sources of income varied widely by family money income groups. The highest earners earned about 45% of their family money income from wages and about 40% of their income from investments. In contrast, the lowest and middle income groups earned the large majority of their income from wages, about 62% and 76%, respectively, with less than 5% of income coming from investments.



Furthermore, lower income households paid a higher share of taxes than their share of family money income in Colorado. Notably, the highest income group paid less state and local taxes than its share of income. This means that, in effect, Colorado's overall taxing structure is regressive. A regressive tax structure is one in which the effective tax rate decreases as income increases.

The lowest income group had the highest overall effective rate, paying nearly 29% of their income in state and local taxes. However, the highest income group had the lowest overall effective tax rate, paying nearly 7% of their income in state and local taxes. The effective tax rates for local taxes were substantially more regressive than the effective tax rates for state taxes, largely due to local residential real property taxes and local sales and use taxes. For all tax types except state income and occupational privilege, the lowest income households paid a higher percentage of their earnings to Colorado than the highest earning groups.

Introduction

The Colorado Tax Profile Study is a multi-faceted look at Colorado taxes prepared by the Colorado Department of Revenue (the Department). This is the 16th in the series of Colorado Tax Profile Studies, first published in 1973. The current study is broken into three parts, where each part discusses aspects of the overall tax structure and distribution of tax burden in 2020. Part 1 compares Colorado tax revenue and selected expenditures to those of other states and briefly summarizes state and local tax revenue collections for reference. The biggest section is Part 2, which is an in-depth examination of the distribution of income and tax burden in Colorado. The study concludes with Part 3, which discusses tax equity considerations for policy making.

This study does not examine how Colorado's state and local tax structure affects households' economic status. Nor does it attempt to assess the impact of taxes or tax expenditures on work incentives, economic growth, or their effects on industries in the state.

For contextual information on the Colorado economy in 2020, the Department recommends looking at the quarterly economic forecasts from Colorado's Legislative Council Staff (https://leg.colorado.gov/EconomicForecasts) and Office of State Planning and Budgeting (Go to the "Older Forecasts" link on this page: https://www.colorado.gov/governor/economics).

Colorado Income, Tax Revenue, and Expenditures Compared to Other States

This section describes how personal income, state and local tax revenue, and government expenditures in Colorado compare with other states. This section's data is from the United States Census Bureau's Annual Survey of State and Local Government Finances and the United States Department of Commerce's Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) Regional GDP and Personal Income Data. Note the Census data covers individual government fiscal years that ended between July 1, 2019, and June 30, 2020, and the BEA data is for calendar year 2020. All data is referred to as 2020 data throughout the study.

Exhibit 1 compares the state, local, and total tax revenue per $1,000 of personal income across all states. Coloradans paid lower taxes relative to their income than residents of 31 other states, ranking 32nd in the nation for combined state and local tax revenue per $1,000 of personal income. Colorado has a long tradition of having a decentralized local government tax system. Local taxes relative to personal income were among the highest in the country (7th), whereas state taxes relative to personal income were among the lowest (44th). Looking at local government tax revenue as a percentage of total tax revenue collected by both state and local governments placed Colorado among the top 10 states, ranking fifth highest.

Exhibit 3 shows the ranking of selected tax revenue sources for Colorado compared to other states. The main sources of tax revenue for Colorado are state individual income tax, state and local sales taxes, and local property taxes. Colorado's individual income tax revenue relative to the state's total personal income ranked near the bottom, being 31st out of 42 states that have an income tax. On the other hand, Colorado's state and local sales and other gross receipts ranked 28th in the nation, and Colorado's local property tax revenue ranked 21st in the nation.

Exhibit 4 demonstrates Colorado's expenditures on various programs relative to other states. In this case, the term "expenditure" means money spent by governments. This term does not include "tax expenditures," which are base deviations, deductions, credits, or special rates that apply to only certain taxpayers, transactions, property, or income sources. Compared to other states, Colorado tends to have higher expenditures per capita and lower total tax revenue relative to personal income. Colorado ranked first in the nation for per capita spending on fire protection and second in the nation for parks and recreation expenditures. Other per capita expenditures in the top ten in the nation were sewerage, housing and community development, and utilities. Per capita funding for higher education was 16th in the nation, while spending on elementary and secondary education per capita was 26th. Colorado's per capita expenditures on solid waste and health were in the bottom 10 states, ranking 49th and 42nd respectively.

Part 2

Distribution of Income and Taxes Paid In Colorado

Overview

This part of the study analyzes the distribution of income and tax burden in Colorado using estimates of state and local taxes paid by households at different income levels in the 2020 calendar year. Distribution refers to how income and taxes paid are spread out across nine income groups. To understand the distribution of income and tax burden, the Department examined how sources of income (e.g., wages; investment income or losses), average taxes paid by tax type (e.g., income; sales and use), and effective tax rates (i.e., taxes paid as a percentage of income) varied across and within income groups. The Department also compared the distribution of income versus the distribution of taxes paid to illustrate who bears the tax burden. In the sections that follow, estimates of income, taxes paid, and the distribution of taxes paid across households with different income levels is illustrated using tables and charts (exhibits).

The methodology used to produce these estimates is described in detail in the Methodology section below. It is crucial to note that income level is not associated with most Colorado taxes. For example, most vendors who collect and remit sales tax do not collect data on their customers' income levels. With the exception of state income tax data, the Department does not have state data on taxes paid by income level. Therefore, the Department developed a model using federal and state data sources to estimate taxes paid by income level. The primary source was the United States Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Expenditure Survey (CES). The CES is a nationwide household survey on consumers' demographics, incomes, and expenditures. Expenditures in this case refers to the dollar amounts that households report spending on various items.

Methodology

For this study, the Department estimated family money income (defined below) and taxes paid by Colorado households categorized into nine income groups. The Department does not have access to data on the actual taxes paid by each income group, except for state income taxes. The values presented in the following sections are estimates, which may differ from the actual amount of tax paid.

Estimating Income

This report defines income as family money income, which aims to capture all income available to Colorado households. Family money income includes some income that is not subject to income tax. The conceptualization of income in this report is based on the definition of income used by the CES.

The Department estimated family money income for Colorado households using Colorado and federal income tax return data and CES data. Family money income is composed of seven sources, which are listed and described in the table below.

| Income Source | Definition | Data Source(s) |
|---|---|---|
| Wages | Wages, salaries, and tips | Federal income tax returns |
| Retirement | IRA distributions, pensions, annuities, social security benefits | Federal income tax returns |
| Self-Employment Income or Loss | Profit or loss from sole proprietorships or farming; sales of business properties | Federal income tax returns |
| Investment Income or Loss | Capital gains or losses; interest; dividends; income or losses from rental real estate, royalties, partnerships, S corporations, trusts, etc. | Federal income tax returns |
| Public Assistance | Public assistance, Supplemental Security Income, Supplementary Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) | Consumer Expenditure Survey |
| Unemployment and Other Compensation | Unemployment and workers' compensation, veterans' benefits, and regular contributions for support | Consumer Expenditure Survey |
| Other Income or Loss | Combination of "Other Income" from the Consumer Expenditure Survey and the "Other Income" line on federal income tax returns | Consumer Expenditure Survey; federal income tax returns |

Average family money income is calculated by dividing the total amount of family money income by the number of full-year resident, non-dependent, individual Colorado income tax returns per income group. This methodology is limited in that it does not include Colorado residents that do not file income tax returns (e.g., very low-income taxpayers that are not required to file), nor part-year residents and nonresidents that may have Colorado income and influence on the economy. It also is only accurate to the extent that income tax filers report all of their income on their tax returns. Furthermore, households estimated to have net negative income associated with self-employment, investment, and other losses are excluded from the dataset.

Defining the Income Groups

This report uses nine income groups based on the CES Income categories:

- $0 under $15K
- $15K under $30K
- $30K under $40K
- $40K under $50K
- $50K under $70K
- $70K under $100K
- $100K under $150K
- $150K under $200K
- $200K and over

Estimating Taxes Paid by Income Group

The Department estimated the amount of state and local taxes paid by each income group. The state taxes estimated are individual income, sales and use, gasoline, driver license and vehicle registration fees, alcoholic beverages, and cigarettes and tobacco. Taxes on alcohol, cigarettes and tobacco, and gasoline are indirect taxes in that they are passed to the consumer by being included in purchase prices. The local taxes estimated are residential real property, sales and use, specific ownership, and occupational privilege. Specific ownership taxes are local property taxes on motor vehicles. State income taxes paid were estimated using data from state income tax returns. Other types of taxes paid were primarily estimated using data from the CES, but when the CES data were insufficient to make an estimate, actual Colorado tax revenue data and industry data were incorporated.

The CES groups households into income groups, and average annual family money income and expenses are reported for each group. While the CES does report values for some taxes paid, in general, the taxes summarized here were not available in the CES. Instead, the CES includes how much money consumers spent on a variety of items like food, gasoline, and alcohol.

To estimate sales and use, gasoline, alcohol, and cigarette and tobacco taxes, the Department aggregated the CES amounts spent on items subject to particular tax types and then multiplied those values by the applicable tax rates. When needed, the Department also used third party or industry data to estimate costs and quantities consumed in order to apply the tax rates. From there, taxes were calculated as a percentage of CES income for each income group. For every tax type, the percentages were applied to the average Colorado family money income values (see methodology on estimating income above) to estimate the average Colorado taxes paid by each income group.

Here is an example of how an estimate of tax paid was made using gasoline tax: If a given income group has on average $45,000 in income, spent $2,000 on gasoline (per the CES), and the average price of gasoline was $2.50 (per industry data), then it was estimated that they bought 800 gallons of gasoline. The state tax on gasoline is $.0.22 per gallon, which comes to $176 in gasoline tax paid. Then $176 was divided by $45,000 (the CES income amount) to determine what percentage of CES income was spent on gasoline tax (0.4%). Then that percentage (0.4%) was multiplied by the average Colorado family money income value for that group to get the estimate of average gasoline taxes paid.

All of the following sections, which discuss distributions of income and taxes paid, are only accurate insofar as the model accurately describes the actual tax situation of taxpayers in Colorado.

Data Describing the Distribution of Income and Taxes Paid in Colorado

Distribution of Income

Exhibit 5 shows the estimated cumulative distribution of family money income and households in Colorado. The graph depicts the percentage of Colorado households ordered by family money income (the horizontal axis) and their estimated share of family money income (the vertical axis). For example, the chart shows that the bottom 50% of Colorado households received 13.6% of all income. The diagonal line connecting the corners of the chart represents an equal distribution of income. The space between the bars and the diagonal line shows the gap in equality. The greater the space between the bars and the diagonal line, the greater the inequality of income.

Exhibit 6 shows the share of family money income across deciles (10 equally sized groups ordered by family money income). The horizontal line shows an equal distribution of income, Notably, nearly half of all income is attributed to the top 10% (the tenth decile) of households.

The estimated average family money income of all households in Colorado was $96,925. The estimated median family money income was $51,246, which is lower than the average because extreme high income values increase the average. The median income is a better measure of the midpoint.

Sources of Income

Exhibit 7 lists the seven sources of family money income and the average amount of income obtained from each source per income group. Exhibit 8 illustrates the proportions of income sources within the lowest, middle, and highest income groups. Households in the lowest and middle income groups obtain most of their income from wages, 61.5% and 75.8% respectively. In contrast, households in the highest income group receive nearly 45% of their income from wages, and just under 40% from investments.

Distribution of Taxes Paid

Average Taxes Paid for Each Tax Type by Each Income Group

Exhibit 9 estimates the average amount of state and local taxes paid by Colorado households. The average total state and local taxes paid was $8,047. The average state taxes paid was $4,051, and the average amount of local taxes paid by Colorado households was $3,995. However, when households in the two highest income groups are removed, the average amount of state taxes paid drops to $2,282 and the average amount of local taxes paid lowers to $2,732. Generally, as income increased so did the average taxes paid.

Exhibit 10 shows the proportion of taxes paid for each tax type within each income group. For orientation, the percentages sum to 100% within each income group (each column). Exhibit 11 illustrates the proportions of taxes paid for each tax type by income group. Households in the lowest income group paid the largest proportion of their taxes on residential real property (41.6%) and state and local sales tax (35.3%). Households in the middle income group paid about equal proportions of their taxes on individual income tax (31.0%) and residential real property tax (31.7%). Households in the highest income group paid 48.0% of their taxes on income and 31.5% of their taxes on residential real property.

Distribution of Households, Family Money Income, and Taxes Paid Across Income Groups

Exhibit 12 shows the share of households and share of family money income per income group. Of note, 8.4% of households were in the highest income group, yet these households made up 44.6% of the total family money income. Exhibit 13 shows the share of tax paid by each income group for each tax type. For orientation, the percentages sum to 100% across income groups (each row). Generally, as income increased, so did the proportion of tax paid. # Comparing the Distribution of Taxes Paid to the Distribution of Income

Exhibit 14 looks at the distribution of family money income relative to the distribution of taxes paid across income groups. The left columns show the share of family money income within each income group, and the right columns show the share of state and local taxes paid. When these two columns are the same height for an income group, that group's share of total taxes paid is in proportion to their share of total income. The share of taxes paid is similar to the share of income for all groups, except the highest income group, whose share of taxes paid is lower than their share of income. This indicates that a larger tax burden is placed on the income groups with less than $200,000 in income.

Effective Tax Rates

Effective tax rates measure how much people pay in taxes as a percentage of their income. This section looks at the distribution of effective tax rates by tax type and income group. Looking at the distribution of effective tax rates across income groups reveals the nature of the tax – whether the effective tax rates are proportional, regressive, or progressive. For this model, the Department considered the tax base to be family money income. Thus, a proportional tax is one in which the effective tax rate is fixed, with no change in rate as income increases or decreases. A regressive tax is one in which the effective tax rate decreases as income increases. A progressive tax is one in which the effective tax rate increases as income increases. For more on proportional, regressive, or progressive taxes see Part 3: Tax Equity Considerations for Policy Making.

Exhibit 15 shows the effective tax rate by tax type within each income group. Some of the tax types were progressive, such as individual income taxes, and some of the tax types were regressive, such as state and local sales and use taxes.

Exhibit 16 illustrates the overall state and local effective tax rates for each income group. Local effective tax rates are shown in the top part of the columns and state effective tax rates are shown in the bottom part of the columns. The state and local effective tax rates were regressive because the rates decreased as income increased. The lowest income group had the highest effective tax rates and the highest income group had the lowest effective tax rate. The distribution of local effective tax rates was substantially more regressive than that of state effective tax rates across the income groups. Local effective tax rates declined from 20.0% for the lowest income group to 3.0% for the highest income group. The state effective tax rate was 8.7% for the lowest income group and for the remaining income groups the state effective tax rates were around 4%.

Tax Equity Considerations for Policy Making

Purposes of Taxation

To better understand the impacts and equity of taxation, it is helpful to first discuss the various purposes of taxation. Governments impose taxes for many reasons, including funding of public goods and services, addressing externalities, and incentivizing public behavior.

In some cases, taxes are imposed directly on users of particular goods and services. It can be difficult for governments to determine how much to charge in user fees, yet it is requisite for governments to know the monetary value of the services they are offering and how to measure and assess the charges for those services. For example, the Environmental Protection Agency has the responsibility of safeguarding the environment, and they have to answer questions like, "What is the price of clean air?" and "Who should be charged and how should they be charged?"

Some taxes, such as excise taxes, are charged based on consumption. For instance, excise tax is applied to gallons of gasoline, the number of cigarettes in a package, and gallons/liters of spirits, wine, and beer. The types of products that are customarily subject to excise taxes are items for which the amounts consumed do not vary widely among income groups. Therefore, excise taxes typically result in people with lower incomes paying a larger share of their income than people with higher incomes.

Governments may use taxes as a tool to rectify market failures such as negative or positive externalities. Externalities occur when the purchase price of a good does not fully reflect the costs or benefits of that good's consumption to society. Cigarette use, which has been proven to increase the chance of cancer in individuals, is an example of a negative externality. Some states impose a steep excise tax on cigarettes in an effort to pay for the higher costs of medical care that result from the use of cigarettes and to curtail cigarette smoking in order to avoid future additional medical care costs.

Just as taxes can be used to curtail certain types of consumption, tax credits or deductions can be used to induce or subsidize certain types of behavior. For example, in the early 2000s, Colorado provided a tax incentive for those who purchased long-term care insurance policies. This incentive was aimed at people taking an interest in the expense of their health care needs later in life, thus incentivizing persons to take an interest in providing for their own health care.

Tax Equity

Given the subjective quality of determining tax equity, it is the goal of this study only to provide the tools for policy makers and citizens to make informed decisions regarding the structure of major state and local taxes. The model presented in Part 2 of this study provides a foundation for an informed discussion on the distributive effects of tax policy in law and the equity of the distribution of state and local taxes on the residents in Colorado.

The issue of tax equity—or tax fairness in terms of who should pay and how much taxes should be paid—is a challenging policy issue that lawmakers deal with in all levels of government. The decision ultimately depends on the values of society.

A fair system of taxation to some could be one in which every person would spend the same percentage of their income on taxes, regardless of income; thus, the tax burden would be equally proportional. This equity is thought to be achieved through "flat tax" rates. However, in practice a flat tax rate on income can become disproportionate due to various tax reductions allowed to different income groups. Additionally, flat tax rates on tangible goods can also become inequitable because the prices and quantities of purchased goods will influence the amount of taxes paid relative to a person's income.

Another version of a fair tax system might focus on a taxpayer's "ability to pay." Proponents of this concept argue the wealthiest, who have the greatest accumulation of income/wealth and therefore have the greatest "ability to pay" for the goods and services provided by state and local governments, should pay more taxes than those of lesser income. Taxes in this case would function as a tool to reduce household income differences. Federal and many state's income taxes fall under this progressive tax structure.

To others, tax fairness is a tax based on use, where people are taxed according to the benefits received from government services. For example, Colorado's 2004 additional excise taxes on cigarettes and tobacco products addressed tax "fairness" based on use. In 2004, voters imposed a constitutional levy of an additional 64¢ per pack of 20 cigarettes and an additional 20% of the manufacturer's list price on other tobacco products. The revenue from these taxes is distributed to designated health-related programs administered by the state with several goals, including mitigating health-related problems associated with smoking and providing smoking prevention and cessation programs for Colorado residents. Generally, those who do not use cigarettes or tobacco products would have less use for these programs. Therefore, those who do use cigarettes or tobacco products provide more financial support for these programs through the tax.

Other concepts of tax equity include horizontal and vertical equity. Horizontal equity indicates that households of similar income pay an equal amount of taxes. Horizontal equity can be difficult to achieve because of tax credits, deductions, and any other type of tax reduction. Vertical equity pertains to the manner in which taxes paid vary among households of different income groups. Discussions of vertical equity often involve the concepts of proportional vs. progressive or regressive taxation.

Because of the various strategies involving taxation/non-taxation, assessing the equity of the distribution of the burden of taxes is very complex. Taxes must first be examined individually regarding the intention or objective of the tax and whether the objectives are being met. Then the burden of combined taxes needs to be examined to determine whether a group of taxpayers is being inadvertently and/or unjustifiably burdened by taxes.

Introduction

The Colorado Individual Statistics of Income (SOI) is a collection of data describing federal and state individual income tax returns filed by full-year Colorado residents. Colorado's Individual SOI report complements the Individual SOI report published by the Internal Revenue Service and serves as a useful tool for researchers and policy makers. The Colorado Individual SOI is an annual report available on the Department's website. Highlights and selected data tables from the complete report are provided in this biennial Tax Profile and Expenditure Report. The complete SOI report with additional data tables and links to downloadable spreadsheets is available on the Department's Data and Reports website: CDOR.Colorado.gov/data-and-reports/income-tax-data/individual-statistics-of-income-reports

The Individual SOI report includes various income and tax data that is generally bucketed by income group. The key SOI statistics summarized here focus on basic elements of income and tax data such as size of income, filing status, age distribution, and federal deductions. The complete SOI report includes additional data on these basic elements, as well as further data from federal returns on sources of income, adjustments, itemized deductions, and federal credits, and Colorado specific data on location, additions, subtractions, prepayments, and credits.

This Individual SOI report summarizes income tax year 2020 data, which generally represents individuals' income tax returns for calendar year 2020. A few charts and several data tables are provided in this abbreviated version of the SOI report. There are additional tables available on the CDOR Data and Reports website. The charts visualize key observations from the dataset, whereas the tables summarize the dataset in depth. The Highlights section analyzes the charts, and the Selected Data Tables section presents the key tables. Further information about the methodology and data source is available on the website.

Highlights

This section showcases differences between single and joint returns in age, income, and standard versus itemized federal deductions.

Single and Joint Returns

Single returns are cases where a spouse is not listed on the Colorado tax return, and joint returns are cases where a spouse is listed on the Colorado tax return. It is worth noting that each joint return is counted once, even though it represents two people in one household. In general, single returns represent Coloradans that use federal filing statuses of single, head of household, married filing separate, or qualifying widow(er). Joint returns generally represent Coloradans that are using the federal filing status of married filing jointly. However, the Colorado return categorization of single and joint does not always match up with the federal return's associated filing status.

The 2020 Single and Joint Returns infographic below shows single returns accounted for 66% of full-year resident 2020 income tax returns. Federal adjusted gross income (AGI) tended to be lower for single returns than joint returns. Nearly 70% of single returns had AGI under $50,000, whereas 80% of joint returns had AGI over $50,000.

Age of Taxpayers

Chart 1 presents the number of single and joint returns by age of the primary filer. Notably, the distribution of single returns skews younger, meaning there were more single returns for younger ages than older ages. The number of single returns peaks at age 27, and then declines as the population ages. This declining number of single returns after age 27 corresponds with the increasing number of joint returns between the ages of 18 and 40, demonstrating the pattern of single individuals becoming married as they age.

Chart 1. Number of Single and Joint Returns by Age (18 - 100), Tax Year 2020

Chart 2. Average Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) on Single and Joint Returns by Age (18 - 100), Tax Year 2020

Standard or Itemized Deductions

Individuals subtract standard or itemized deductions from their federal AGI to reduce their federal taxable income. The standard deduction, which is the default deduction for all taxpayers, is a fixed amount based on federal filing status. In 2020, the standard deduction amounts were $12,400 for single or married filing separately, $18,650 for heads of households, and $24,800 for married filing jointly or qualifying widow(er)s. Taxpayers may subtract itemized deductions instead of the standard deduction and generally will if the sum of their itemized deductions is greater than the standard deduction. Itemized deductions consist of various subtractions, including medical expenses, state and local taxes, home mortgage interest, charitable contributions, and others.

The prevalence of standard and itemized deductions is fairly similar on single and joint returns. Chart 3 shows that the majority of single (88%) and joint returns (81%) used standard deductions. Itemized deductions were used in about 10% of single returns and about 17% of joint returns in 2020.

[1] The Colorado Taxable Income (CTI) reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The CTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or subtractions greater than their income and additions. Negative values do not reduce their tax liability to be less than $0.

[2] Colorado Gross Tax is determined based on Colorado Taxable Income greater than zero. To calculate positive Colorado Taxable Income, divide the Colorado Gross Tax by the income tax rate.

[1] Colorado returns are categorized as single if a spouse is not listed on the return.

[2] The Colorado Taxable Income (CTI) reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The CTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or subtractions greater than their income and additions. Negative values do not reduce their tax liability to be less than $0.

[3] Colorado Gross Tax is determined based on Colorado Taxable Income greater than zero. To calculate positive Colorado Taxable Income, divide the Colorado Gross Tax by the income tax rate.

NA - Not applicable

[1] The type of deductions used is inferred using federal rules and taxpayer return data. The relationship between the applicable standard deduction compared to reported federal AGI, federal taxable income, and itemized deductions were used to categorize returns as Standard or Itemized. Returns with zero or negative federal AGI are not categorized as Standard or Itemized because their taxable income cannot be reduced further.

[1] Actual amounts used for standard deductions, itemized deductions, and qualified business income deductions are not available. The amounts shown in this table are inferred using federal rules, federal AGI, and federal taxable income.

[2] The number of returns counted in total deductions are not a sum of the number of standard deductions, itemized deductions, and qualified business income deductions presented. The total represents the number of returns where taxable income is less than AGI due to the application of standard deductions, itemized deductions, and/or qualified business income deductions. A return can't have both standard and itemized deductions. The qualified business income deduction can be claimed in addition to the standard deduction or itemized deductions.

Introduction

The Colorado Corporate Statistics of Income (SOI) is a collection of data describing Colorado state income tax returns filed by C corporations that conduct business in Colorado. The Colorado Corporate SOI is an annual report available on the Department's website. Highlights and selected data tables from the complete report are provided in this biennial Tax Profile and Expenditure Report. The complete SOI report with additional data tables and links to downloadable spreadsheets is available on the Department's Data and Reports website: CDOR.Colorado.gov/data-and-reports/income-tax-data/corporate-statistics-of-income-reports

The complete report consists of tables that present corporate income and tax data by Colorado taxable income group, federal taxable income group, or industry. This data is useful for policy makers, researchers, or anyone who would like an overview of Colorado corporate income tax data.

This Corporate SOI report summarizes income tax year 2021, which is generally defined as a tax year that began in 2021. An infographic and a few data tables are provided in this abbreviated version of the SOI report. There are additional tables available on the CDOR Data and Reports website. Further information about the methodology and data source is also available on the website.

Highlights

Corporations in this report are categorized in two ways: those that conduct business only in Colorado and those that conduct business within and outside of Colorado. In 2021, the share of returns coming from corporations that conduct business only in Colorado was 48%, which is slightly less than the 52% of returns coming from corporations conducting business within and outside of Colorado. However, 91% of state corporate income taxes in 2021 came from corporations that conduct business within and outside of Colorado. The most common industry (categorized using the North American Industry Classification System, NAICS) in 2021 for corporations that conduct business only in Colorado was Real Estate and Rental and Leasing, whereas the most common industry for those that also conduct business outside of Colorado was Professional, Scientific, and Technical Services.

[1] The Colorado Taxable Income (CTI) reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The CTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or subtractions greater than their income and additions. Negative values do not reduce their tax liability to be less than $0.

[2] Federal taxable income (FTI) includes income from outside of Colorado because this table includes corporations that conduct business within and outside of Colorado. The FTI reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The FTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or deductions greater than their income. When the FTI data is aggregated by size of Colorado Taxable Income, the values include positive and negative numbers.

[3] Colorado Gross Tax is determined based on Colorado Taxable Income greater than zero. To calculate positive Colorado Taxable Income, divide the Colorado Gross Tax by the income tax rate.

[1] The Colorado Taxable Income (CTI) reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The CTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or subtractions greater than their income and additions. Negative values do not reduce their tax liability to be less than $0.

[2] Federal taxable income (FTI) includes income from outside of Colorado because this table includes corporations that conduct business within and outside of Colorado. The FTI reported on Colorado returns can be positive, zero, or negative. The FTI is negative when the taxpayer reports losses and/or deductions greater than their income. When the FTI data is aggregated by size of Colorado Taxable Income, the values include positive and negative numbers.

[3] Colorado Gross Tax is determined based on Colorado Taxable Income greater than zero. To calculate positive Colorado Taxable Income, divide the Colorado Gross Tax by the income tax rate.

INTRODUCTION

Statutory Requirements

CGS Sec. 12-7b(e) requires the Office of Fiscal Analysis, on or before February 1st of every other year, to report on tax expenditures, which the law defines as any exemption, exclusion, deduction, or credit created under the general statutes or a public act which result in less tax revenue to the state or municipalities than they would otherwise receive. Such report shall contain:

1. A description of each expenditure,
2. The year in which the expenditure was enacted,
3. The purpose for its enactment,
4. A summary of any amendments to the expenditure since its enactment,
5. The estimated state and municipal fiscal impact of the expenditure during each fiscal year of the current biennium,
6. An estimate of the revenue that would result from repeal of the expenditure and
7. An estimate of the number of taxpayers receiving benefit from the expenditure.

This report is submitted to satisfy the February 2024 requirement. It is arranged as follows:

I. Introduction
II. Summary table of major expenditures
III. Details of each expenditure by tax type

Methodology

Overview
The term "tax expenditure" may appear to be a contradiction. "Tax" denotes money coming into the government; "expenditure" denotes money going out. How can money be coming in and going out at the same time?

With tax expenditures, the money does not come in and go out again; rather, it does not come in at all. This is because the law has provided for an exemption, exclusion, deduction or credit that lowers the amount of tax revenue that would otherwise be collected.

A tax expenditure can be used to accomplish public policy goals. It may be enacted either to encourage certain activity or to limit the tax burden on certain taxpayers. For example, government can attempt to encourage economic development directly by providing financial assistance to businesses through grants or indirectly through tax expenditures, such as Corporation Tax credits or Sales Tax exemptions.

A tax expenditure does not need to be re-enacted. Unless a sunset date is placed on a tax expenditure provision, it continues until amended or repealed.

Criteria
We have developed six criteria to evaluate tax expenditure provisions for this report. Some are concepts used in the preparation of federal tax expenditure reports and others are based on a logical application of the tax expenditure concept.

A provision can generally be considered a tax expenditure if it:

1. Impacts a statewide tax;
2. Results in reduced tax revenue;
3. Is not an appropriation;
4. Is included in the definition of the tax base;
5. Is not subject to an alternative tax; and
6. Can be amended or repealed by a change in state law alone.

This report lists exemptions and exclusions from each state tax. Exemptions would otherwise be taxed but are exempted by specific legislative action. Exclusions are not taxed simply because they are not part of the base defined by the tax law.

Rationales
We used the following categories to classify the rationale behind each exemption or exclusion.

1. Perceived Equity - The tax expenditure was created to remedy a perceived inequity or unfairness in tax burden. It is often used as a rationale for reducing taxes on the consumption of basic necessities because the tax burden is viewed as excessive relative to the income of poor or disadvantaged (such as the handicapped or elderly) persons. The sales tax exemptions on food, clothing, and medicine are examples of this rationale.

2. Efficiency - The cost of adequately collecting and administering the tax is high in comparison to the potential revenue that could be gained from taxation. For example, an exemption from the real estate conveyance tax was created for property conveyances of less than $2,000 because the amount of revenue that would be collected was considered too small to justify the administrative cost of collecting it.

3. Incentive - The expenditure is intended to encourage the performance of certain desirable activities such as economic growth and development, charitable or nonprofit work, or conservation of resources. The corporation business tax credits for expenditures on research and development, hiring displaced workers, donation of open space land and rehabilitation of historic homes are examples of this rationale.

4. Redundancy - The entry is included in the base of one tax and excluded from the base of another to avoid over taxation. For example, redundancy is avoided on sales of gasoline because they are only subject to the motor fuels excise tax and exempt from the Sales and Use Tax

5. Cascading - Cascading (or pyramiding) occurs when a tax is imposed on a good or service at more than one stage of the production process so that the total tax incorporated into the final price of the good or service is greater than the legislated tax rate. For example, Sales Tax exemptions are provided for business inputs like raw materials, tools, machinery and equipment so that the taxes are not incorporated into the cost of making the final product and passed along to consumers in the form of higher prices.

6. Clarification - The entry clarifies the definition of what is taxable. For example, the sales tax exemption for property tax payments under motor vehicle leases clarifies that the tax is levied only on the portion of the lease payment that covers the use of the motor vehicle.

7. Conformity - The entry conforms the state statute to one of the following: (1) U.S. constitutional or other federal requirements (for instance, the U.S. Constitution prohibits the state from levying taxes on the federal government); (2) the federal taxation policy (for instance, the state has chosen to adopt the same tax exemptions or exclusions for certain types of businesses or business activities as the federal government); or (3) a general policy of taxation adopted by the state (for instance, the state has chosen not to tax itself or its political subdivisions).

8. Expediency - Expenditures of this type violate one or more of the principles of a high-quality revenue system without any apparent counterbalancing or compensating precept.[1] The sales tax exemption for puzzle magazines provided by PA 94-4 (May Special Session) is an example of this rationale.

Caveats

This report estimates each tax expenditure provision in isolation, with other provisions in that tax and in other taxes held constant. The secondary impact of one provision over another provision is not taken into account. Because estimates measure the impact of the provision as it exists and not what would happen if it were repealed, no change in taxpayer behavior is assumed.

The precision of the estimates varies with the source of the data and with the applicability of the data to the tax expenditure provision. Data from Connecticut tax returns were used whenever possible. Other sources included federal tax expenditure estimates, data from federal tax returns, and other data for Connecticut and the nation. In some cases, because data were unavailable or too indirect, an estimate of the amount could not be determined.

Please note that in the case of tax credits, information is provided by tax type only for credits that are estimated to be taken. This is because data indicate that not all tax credits eligible to be taken against a given tax type are actually utilized. Consequently, there may be instances in which certain credits that are eligible to be taken against a certain tax type are not listed for that tax type.

Unless otherwise noted, all revenue estimates presented in this report are effective for FY 24 and FY 25. Differences between figures provided in this document and in previous versions of this document and other documents are generally due to revised data becoming available.

For certain tax expenditures, the FY 24 estimated revenue loss does not equate to the estimated FY 25 revenue gain from the repeal of the policy. In such cases, it is assumed that the application of a tax would partially decrease the current level of consumption or payment by an individual or entity on a certain good or service and therefore partially decrease the potential revenue gain. That is, the inclusion of a tax, would increase the overall cost to the individual or entity. The individual or entity may elect to purchase less of such a good or service if the overall cost increased. A lower consumption of the good or service results in a lower revenue gain.

Taxpayers benefitting are defined as those persons who receive a direct, monetary benefit as a result of the tax expenditure.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX

During the legislature's 1991 June Special Session, the General Assembly enacted Public Act 91-3, which imposed a tax on the income of resident individuals, trusts and estates and on the income of nonresident individuals, trusts and estates derived from sources within the state at a rate of 4.5% for the 1992 income year. (The tax rate for the 1991 income year was set at 1.5% because the tax was not levied for 12 months.) PA 95-160 created a two-tier tax rate structure by lowering the tax rate from 4.5% to 3% for taxable income below certain levels. PA 03-2 increased the 4.5% rate to 5.0% for the 2003 income year and thereafter. Beginning with the 2009 income year, PA 09-3 JSS increased the 5.0% tax rate to 6.5% for income above certain levels.

PA 11-6 increased marginal income tax rates and phased out the lowest (3.0%) income tax bracket for filers at certain taxable income levels by subjecting more taxable income to the 5.0% bracket. In addition, PA 11-6: (1) imposed a "benefit recapture" provision to eliminate the benefits that certain filers receive from having a portion of their taxable income taxed at lower marginal rates; and (2) altered the property tax credit against the personal income tax by reducing, from $500 to $300, the maximum property tax credit and phasing out the credit at a steeper rate than prior law. PA 11-6 also established a refundable state earned income tax credit equal to 30% of the federal credit. Subsequently, PA 13-184 reduced the rate to 25% and 27.5% in income years 2013 and 2014, respectively; PA 15-244 extended the 27.5% rate to the 2015 and 2016 income years; PA 17-2 JSS reduced the rate to 23% for the 2017 through 2020 income years; PA 21-2 JSS increased the rate to 30.5% for the 2021 and 2022 income years; and PA 22-118 permanently increased the rate to 41.5% beginning with the 2023 income year.

PA 15-244 increased marginal income tax rates for those with taxable incomes over (1) $500,000 for joint filers, (2) $250,000 for single filers and married people filing separately, and (3) $400,000 for heads of household. It did so by (1) increasing the 6.7% marginal tax rate to 6.9% and (2) adding a seventh, higher-income tax bracket subject to a 6.99% marginal tax rate. It also established new "benefit recapture" schedules to reflect the new marginal rates and income bracket and made various changes to the property tax credit including lowering the amount from $300 to $200 in 2016.

PA 23-204 reduced the bottom two marginal income tax rates for all filers from (1) 3% to 2% and (2) 5% to 4.50% and established a new "benefit recapture" provision to gradually eliminate the benefit of the tax rate reduction for taxpayers with taxable incomes exceeding $105,000 (single or married filing separately), $210,000 (married filing jointly), or $168,000 (head of household). The recapture fully phases in, and thus fully eliminates the benefit of the rate reductions under PA 23-204, for single/separate, joint, and head of household filers with income exceeding $150,000, $300,000, or $240,000, respectively.

The tax is levied on Connecticut taxable income, which is defined as adjusted gross income for federal income tax purposes with certain modifications and exemptions.

Computation of Tax

Tax Basis

The tax is levied on Connecticut adjusted gross income (AGI) above basic personal exemption levels that vary according to taxpayer status and which phase out at higher income levels. Income below the personal exemption threshold is excluded from the tax base under the rationale that income needed for bare sustenance should be free from tax. Thus, for the purpose of this document, personal exemptions are not listed as tax expenditures.

Connecticut AGI is defined as adjusted gross income for federal income tax purposes, subject to certain additions and deletions. Additions include such things as interest and dividends from obligations (such as bonds) from other states or subdivisions of other states unless federal law exempts them from state income taxes. Subtractions include items such as: (1) income included in adjusted gross income that federal law exempts from state taxation, (2) refunds or credits for overpayments of income tax, (3) exempt dividends paid by a regulated investment company and (4) Tier One railroad retirement benefits.

Special rules are established for determining whether the income of the following taxpayer types is derived from sources within the state and how income gains, losses, and deductions are allocated: (1) a non-resident or a part-year resident, (2) a partner's distributive share of partnership income, (3) a shareholder's pro rata share of S corporation or limited liability company (PA 93-267, effective 10/1/93) income and (3) a beneficiary's share of trust or estate income.

The tax imposed on income earned by resident and nonresident trusts and estates is similar to the one applied to individuals except that the trusts and estates do not receive the exemptions and credits that individuals receive. The tax must be paid by the fiduciary. Special rules are established for determining what income is derived from sources within the state for nonresident and part-year resident estates, trusts and beneficiaries and how income, gains, losses, and deductions are allocated.

Tax Rate

PA 91-3 JSS imposes the tax on the income of individuals, trusts and estates derived from sources within the state at 1.5% for the 1991 income year and 4.5% for the 1992 income year and thereafter. PA 95-160 reduces the rate for certain income levels from 4.5% to 3% (see below). PA 97-309 and PA 97-322 increases the income levels to which the 3% rate applies for the 1997, 1998 and 1999 income years and thereafter (see below). The rate for income above these levels is 4.5% for income years from 1992 to 2002. For the 2003 income year, the rate on the additional income is increased to 5% (PA 03-2). PA 23-204 reduces the bottom two marginal income tax rates for all filers from (1) 3% to 2% and (2) 5% to 4.50%.

[1]PA 11-6 established a Tax Rate Phase-Out Add-Back which effectively reduces or eliminates the amount of income to which the lowest rate applies.

For the 2009 and 2010 income years, the 5.0% tax rate was increased to 6.5% above certain income levels (PA 09-3 JSS) as follows:

Tax Rates and Taxable Income for the 2009 through 2010 Income Years

| Tax Rate | Type of Filer | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | Joint | Head of Household | Single |
| 3.00% | $0 - 20,000 | $0 - $16,000 | $0 - $10,000 |

| 6.50% | Over $1 million | Over $800,000 | Over $500,000 |

Beginning with the 2011 income year, the 6.5% rate was increased to 6.7% above certain income levels (PA 11-6), and additional marginal rates were added between the 5% and 6.5% rates for certain income levels. The following tables compare marginal rates prior to and following the passage of the income tax changes included in PA 11-6:

PA 11-6 also established a Tax Rate Phase-Out Add-Back that phases out the lowest (3%) marginal rate for taxpayers starting with Connecticut adjusted gross income over $100,500 for joint filers, $56,500 for singles, $78,500 for heads of household, and $50,250 for married couples filing separately. It does so by subjecting less taxable income to the 3% income tax rate as adjusted gross income increases, thus subjecting more taxable income to the 5% bracket.

The following tables illustrate the degree to which the phase-out decreases the amount of income to which the 3% rate applies as adjusted gross income levels increase:

PA 11-6 also included a Marginal Rate Benefit Recapture provision for taxpayers whose annual Connecticut AGI exceeds specified thresholds. This provision eliminates the benefits affected taxpayers receive from having a portion of their taxable income taxed at lower marginal rates. It does so by requiring taxpayers with higher incomes to add specified amounts to their tax liability. These "recapture" amounts phase in as CT AGI increases, until a taxpayer's income is effectively taxed at the highest marginal rate (then 6.7%).

The table on the following page shows these recapture amounts by filing status and income level.

Additionally, a 6.99% rate was added for filers with income over (1) $1.0 million for joint filers, (2) $500,000 for single filers and married people filing separately, and (3) $800,000 for heads of household. Beginning with the 2024 income year as enacted in PA 23-204, the 3% rate was lowered to 2% and the 5% rate was lowered to 4.5%. The following table compares marginal rates prior to and following the passage of the income tax changes included in PA 23-204:

As described above, PA 23-204 also established a new "benefit recapture" limiting the impact of the lowered rates to filers with income below certain levels.

Minimum Tax

Taxpayers are required to pay the higher of their liability under the state personal income tax or the Connecticut minimum tax, effective 1/1/93 (PA 94-4 MSS). The Connecticut minimum tax is the lesser amount of 19.0% of adjusted federal tentative minimum tax or 5.0% of adjusted federal alternative minimum taxable income.

Exemptions

Taxpayers are eligible for two exemptions, depending on their income level: (1) a personal exemption and (2) a personal tax credit. Personal credits and exemptions are used to determine the basis of taxation for the income tax, and therefore are not considered to be tax expenditures for purposes of this report.

Unused credits may be carried forward for five years. New eligibility certificates for insurance businesses, which enable investors to claim a Corporation Business Tax credit cannot be issued after July 1, 2010. Any new eligibility certificates issued on or after July 1, 2010 qualify investors for the Second Insurance Reinvestment Fund tax credit applicable against the Insurance Premiums Tax.

SALES AND USE TAXES

The trend toward states enacting general sales taxes began in the 1930s, and Connecticut became a sales tax state in 1947. As in other states, the relatively simple policy goal of the tax was to restore solvency to the state's treasury with a minimum of administrative problems and expenses. To accomplish this, the tax was imposed on retail sales of tangible goods, which could be collected with relative ease. Since then, the tax has evolved into a complex structure with a lengthy list of taxable goods and services and an even lengthier list of items that are exempt. Since 2011, a percentage of the tax on room occupancy and the tax on rental cars directly funds accounts supporting regional performance grants, a percentage of sales tax supports the Special Transportation Fund, and a percentage of sales tax supports municipal specific programs.

Regarding sales by remote sellers (e.g. retailers selling goods online), the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled in the past that state statutes requiring the collection of a use tax by a remote vendor with no nexus in the state are in violation of the Commerce Clause of the U.S. However, in 2018 the court handed down the South Dakota v. Wayfair decision, which eliminated the requirement that businesses must have a physical presence in a state to have sales tax collection responsibilities.

Computation of Tax

Connecticut levies sales and use taxes on the gross receipts of retailers from the sale of tangible personal property and on the gross receipts from the rendering of certain business services. The treatment of services under the Sales and Use Tax differs fundamentally from the treatment of tangible personal property because sales of the latter are taxable unless specifically exempted, while sales of services are excluded unless enumerated under CGS Section 12-407(a)(37). The list of service exemptions under Item C includes those that were explicitly subject to the tax and then repealed or were thought to be subject to the tax and it was clarified that they were not.

Rates and Basis:

- On gross receipts from the sale, rental, or leasing of tangible personal property, and rendering of certain business services the tax rate is 6.35%.
- On the rental of hotel rooms in a hotel or lodging house, the tax rate is 15%.
- On the rental of rooms at bed and breakfast establishments, the tax rate is 11% for both the room and any meals included in the occupancy.
- On motor vehicles, jewelry, clothing, and footwear costing more than a certain amount, the luxury tax rate is 7.75%.
- On car rentals of thirty days or less, the tax rate is 9.35%.
- On sales and purchases of vessels, motors for vessels, and trailers used for transporting a vessel, the sales tax rate is 2.99%.
- On meals and certain drinks, the effective sales tax rate is 7.35%.
- On computer and data processing services, the tax rate is 1%.
- On the sale of motor vehicles to a nonresident member of the U.S. armed forces serving on active duty in Connecticut, the tax rate is 4.5%.

Sales Tax Revenue Diversions

Regional Performance Incentive Program – PA 11-61 allocates one percentage point of the 15.0% rate and one percentage point of the 9.35% rate towards accounts supporting regional entities. However, PA 15-244 and PA 17-2 of the June Special Session eliminated this transfer for FY 17-19 and resumes the transfer in FY 20.

Municipal Revenue Sharing Fund – PA 15-244 requires a portion of the 6.35% rate be transferred to the Municipal Revenue Sharing Account (MRSA) to support various municipal grants beginning in October 2015. Subsequent legislation (PA 15-5 of the June Special Session, PA 15-1 of the December Special Session) delayed the implementation of this transfer to May 2016. PA 16-2 JSS suspended the transfer for FY 17 and swept the balance of the FY 16 transfer and instead provided a transfer out of the Resources of the General Fund. PA 17-2 JSS delayed the transfer to FY 20. PA 18-81 further delayed the transfer in FY 21. The 0.5 percentage point transfer began in FY 22. PA 23-204 shifted the transfer from MRSA to the appropriated Municipal Revenue Sharing Fund.

Special Transportation Fund - PA 15-244, as amended by PA 15-5 of the June Special Session and PA 15-1 of the December Special Session, requires a portion of the 6.35% rate be transferred to the Special Transportation Fund. As of FY 18, the transfer is 0.5 percentage points. Additionally, PA 17-2 JSS, amended by PA 18-81 and PA 19-117, transfers a portion of revenue from sales tax on motor vehicles to the Special Transportation Fund. The transfer equaled 75% of the total motor vehicle sales tax in FY 22 and 100% in FY 23 and beyond.

Tourism Fund – PA 17-2 of the June Special Session directs 10% of the revenue generated by the Room Occupancy Tax into the Tourism Fund beginning in FY 19.

The following six sections list exemptions and exclusions to the Sales and Use Tax with the rationale, a brief legislative history, fiscal estimates, and an estimate of benefitting taxpayers for each.

The fiscal estimates in this section include the impact to all state and municipal funds in aggregate unless otherwise noted.

A. Consumer Goods Exemptions

Food

1. Sales of food products for human consumption

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-412(13)

Description: "Food products" include cereals and cereal products, milk and milk products, oleomargarine, meat and meat products, fish and fish products, eggs and egg products, vegetables and vegetable products, fruit and fruit products, spices and salt, sugar and sugar products other than candy and confectionery, coffee and coffee substitutes, tea, and cocoa and cocoa products other than candy and confectionery. "Food products" do not include spirituous, malt or vinous liquors, soft drinks, sodas or beverages such as are ordinarily dispensed at bars and soda fountains, or in connection therewith, medicines except by prescription, tonics and preparations in liquid powdered, granular, tablet, capsule, lozenge, and pill form sold as dietary supplements or adjuncts. "Food products" also do not include meals sold by an eating establishment or caterer.

History: Separate exemptions for food products and meals under $1 were provided when the tax was first imposed. In 1971, take-out meals were excluded from the food products exemption and included in the meals under the $1 exemption. PA 83-18 repealed the exemption for meals under $1. PA 84-415 clarified that meals served at eating establishments are not exempt from the tax. PA 86-397 added an exemption for meals under $2. PA 87-177 amended the food products exemption to provide that a meal under $2 may include a nonalcoholic beverage that is not a food product. It also clarified the definition of a taxable meal. PA 89-251 repealed the exemption for meals under $2. PA 98-262 made a technical change.

Fiscal Estimates: Combined estimates for Items 1 and 2: $584.8 million in FY 24 and $599.5 million in FY 25.

*Taxpayers Benefitting: At least 1 million.

3. Items purchased with Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) Benefits

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-412(57)

Description: Sales of any items purchased with federal SNAP benefits (i.e. food stamps).

This federal law disallows states that are participating in the program from applying the sales tax to such purchases. PA 09-9 made a technical change to conform with a federal law that changed the food stamps program's name to the "supplemental nutrition assistance program."

Utility company gross receipts are taxable under the Utility Companies Tax at the rate of 4.0% for residential utilities, 5.0% for water and steam service, and 4.5% for telegraph service. Incentive as it relates to businesses. The manufacturing and agriculture exemption is intended to reduce cascading. The portion exempting charges under $150/month is intended to reduce the cost of doing business for small firms.

Fiscal Estimates: $597.9 million in FY 24 and $612.8 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: At least 1 million.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive, the exemption is intended to encourage the use of multiple-occupancy commuter vehicles. Taxpayers who qualify for a Motor Fuels Excise Tax exemption and who apply for a refund are subject to Sales Tax on the amount exempted from the excise tax. This exemption prevents taxpayers who qualify for the Motor Fuels Excise Tax exemption on high-occupancy commuter vehicle fuel from paying Sales Tax on their excise tax refund.

Fiscal Estimates: $10 million in FY 24 and $10.3 million in FY 24.

2. the sale of and the acceptance, use, or consumption in the state of any taxable service that is used and consumed in developing, acquiring, constructing, rehabilitating, renovating, repairing, or operating such a facility; and

History: Prior to 1986, the Department of Revenue Services (DRS) did not view these services as taxable even though they were not specifically exempted in statute. DRS's policy changed in 1986, which resulted in the passage of PA 87-1. The act exempted the services but this exemption was to sunset on 6/30/88. PA 88-307 repealed the sunset date. PA 97-243 allowed companies to use the exemption for profit purposes and made technical changes. It also exempted telecom services and CATV services rendered between patent companies and wholly owned subsidiaries. PA 01-6 of the June Special Session extended this exemption to include federally recognized Indian tribes. PA 02-103 made technical changes. PA

17-2 of the June Special Session expands the sales and use tax exemption for services rendered between parent and subsidiaries from businesses that own a 100% controlling interest in the other, to at least 80% ownership threshold, for media businesses organized as corporations or single-member LLCs, and who are principally located in the state, effective July 1, 2019.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive/Clarification. Incentive because the exemption is intended to reduce cascading. Enumerated services, as defined in CGS 12-407(2), are taxable when provided by one unaffiliated business entity to another, but nontaxable when divisions of a single entity provides these services for internal use. The exemption provides horizontal equity for firms that are organized into a parent company with wholly-owned subsidiaries, rather than divisions. Clarification because it was created in response to efforts by the Department of Revenue Services (DRS) to tax the services.

PA 99-173 expanded the exemption to sales in connection with the organization or termination of limited liability companies. PA 00-174 eliminated a provision regarding the federal treatment of casual sales and made technical changes.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Expediency/Clarification. Expediency with regard to transfers to family members. The Clarification is with regard to business-related transfers.

9. Mobile manufactured home, modular or prefabricated home subject to sales tax when sold by manufacturer and subject to tax as a conveyance of realty when sold at its location in a mobile manufactured home park

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-412c.

Description: (a) The sale of a new mobile manufactured home and the sale of a new modular or prefabricated home from a manufacturer shall be subject to sales and use taxes, except that for purposes of said taxes the sales price of such new mobile manufactured home or new modular or prefabricated home shall be deemed to be seventy per cent of the manufacturer's sales price applicable with respect to such sale.

(b) The resale of any mobile manufactured home located in a mobile manufactured home park licensed pursuant to chapter 412 or located on a single-family lot as a permitted nonconforming use or as otherwise permitted by the zoning regulations of the municipality in which the home is located and the resale of any modular home, shall be exempt from the sales and use taxes imposed by this chapter and shall be taxed as a conveyance of realty in accordance with the provisions of chapter 223.

History: PA 85-512 created the resale exemption and PA 86-310 created the 30% exemption. PA 88-364 made a technical correction. PA 93-332 added new modular or prefabricated homes.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Clarification/Redundancy. Clarification as it relates to 30% of a new unit's price. Sales Tax is due on the tangible personal property used in new home construction but not on the cost of labor. The 30% exemption represents the approximate labor cost for this type of dwelling. Redundancy as it relates to resale of mobile homes. The exemption prevents the double taxation of such transactions since they are subject to the Real Estate Conveyance Tax.

F. Items Subject to a Lower Sales Tax Rate or Basis

1. Motor vehicles sold to members of the armed forces

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-408(1)(C) and 12-411(1)(C)

Description: Motor vehicles sold to members of the armed forces on full-time active duty in the state but whose permanent residence is elsewhere (4.5%).

History: The exemption was created by PA 84-545. PA 97-243 added the requirement that the retailer maintain an affidavit or other evidence with respect to sales of motor vehicles to members of the armed forces concerning the buyer's state of residence and made technical and renumbering changes. PA 98-244 allowed a reduction in the tax rate and exemption for military when the name of the spouse is on the title of the motor vehicle. PA 00-170 eliminated the affidavit requirement for motor vehicle sales to armed forces personnel.

Fiscal Estimates: $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Under 500 service members.

Rationale: Incentive. The lower rate is intended to encourage military personnel to buy and register their motor vehicles in-state.

2. Trade-in of motor vehicles, snowmobiles, vessels or farm tractors

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-430(4)

Description: Where a trade-in of a motor vehicle is received by a motor vehicle dealer, upon the sale of another motor vehicle to a consumer, or where a trade-in of an aircraft, as defined in subdivision (5) of section 15-34, is received by an aircraft dealer, upon the sale of another aircraft to a consumer, or where a trade-in of a farm tractor, snowmobile or any vessel, as defined in section 15-127, is received by a retailer of farm tractors, snowmobiles or such vessels upon the sale of another farm tractor, snowmobile or such vessel to a consumer, the tax is only on the difference between the sale price of the motor vehicle, aircraft, snowmobile, farm tractor or such vessel purchased and the amount allowed on the motor vehicle, aircraft, snowmobile, farm tractor or such vessel traded in on such purchase. When any such motor vehicle, aircraft, snowmobile, farm tractor or such vessel traded in is subsequently sold to a consumer or user, the tax provided for in this chapter applies.

History: The exemption was added to the statutes prior to 1961. In 1961 it was limited to Connecticut motor vehicle dealers. In 1969 snowmobiles were added, references to in-state dealers were eliminated, and a special provision for computing the tax between 1969 and 1971 was added. The 1971 acts eliminated the special tax computation provision. PA 73-518 added vessels. PA 74-338 made a technical change. PA 94-4 of the May Special Session added the exemption for aircraft trade-ins.

Fiscal Estimates: Combined estimates for Items 2, 3, 4, and 5 and 3: $87.6 million in FY 24 and $89.8 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive.

3. Determination of sales tax on certain construction equipment or machinery when such equipment or machinery is traded in on purchase

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-430a

Description: In any sale at retail of construction equipment or machinery, the source of power for which is an integral part of any individual unit of such equipment or machinery, which sale is made by a retailer of such equipment or machinery who accepts a trade-in of such equipment or machinery in such sale, the sales tax with respect to such sale shall not be applicable to the entire purchase price of such equipment or machinery but shall be imposed on the difference between such purchase price and the amount allowed by the retailer on such equipment or machinery traded in as a credit against the entire purchase price of such equipment or machinery purchased. When any such equipment or machinery traded in is subsequently sold to a consumer or user, the tax imposed under this chapter shall be applicable to such sale.

History: PA 85-457 created the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: See Fiscal Estimate for Item 2.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive.

4. Coupons and discounts and battery deposits and trade-ins of like kind

Citation: CGS Secs. 12-407(8) and 12-407(9)

Description: Coupons and discounts and battery deposits and trade-ins of like kind are excluded from the definition of "sales price" and "gross receipts."

History: PA 98-110 added coupons and discounts, battery deposits and trade-ins of like kind, effective 7/1/98.

Fiscal Estimates: See Fiscal Estimate for Item 2.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Expediency.

5. Trade in of core parts

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-412j

Description: In any sale at retail of any new or remanufactured part of an item of tangible personal property to a purchaser, which sale is made by a retailer of such parts who will accept in return from such purchaser a core component or core part of such tangible personal property, the sales or use tax with respect to such sale shall be imposed on the difference between the purchase price and the amount allowed by the retailer on the returned core component or core part, provided the retailer shall collect the tax, at the time of sale, on the purchase price and, when the core component or core part is returned, shall refund such tax on the amount allowed by the retailer on the returned core component or core part. When any such core component or core part traded in is subsequently sold to a consumer or user, the taxes imposed under this chapter shall be applicable to such sale.

History: PA 95-327 created the exemption. PA 96-172 expanded exemption to motor bus parts. PA 98-110 clarified when the tax must be collected by the retailer.

Fiscal Estimates: See Fiscal Estimate for Item 2.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Expediency.

6. Licensed motor vehicle dealers

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-430(6)

Description: When a licensed motor vehicle dealer replaces a motor vehicle which has been registered to such dealer and the replaced motor vehicle is no longer in the possession of or used by such dealer, the tax imposed by this chapter shall be applicable only with respect to the difference between such dealer's cost for the new motor vehicle being registered, which motor vehicle is the replacement for said replaced motor vehicle, and the wholesale value of said replaced motor vehicle at the time of its replacement, determined in accordance with a standard reference book for such values acceptable to the Commissioner of Revenue Services.

History: PA 73-520 created the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive. The exemption is intended to reduce the cost of doing business for in-state firms. It parallels the exemption for consumers (above), which permits trade-in allowances to be deducted from the purchase price of motor vehicles.

7. Vessels, motors for vessels, trailers used for transporting a vessel, and marine dyed diesel fuel

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-408(1)(E)(ii) and (iii) and CGS 12-411(1)(D)(ii)(II) and (III)

Description: Vessels, motors for vessels, trailers used for transporting a vessel, and marine dyed diesel fuel are taxed at 2.99%.

History: PA 18-81 created the exemption. PA 19-117 lowered the rate for marine dyed diesel fuel from 6.35% to 2.99%.

Fiscal Estimates: $11 million in FY 24 and $11.3 million FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Indeterminate.

Rationale: Incentive.

Tax Credits Claimed Against the Sales and Use Tax

1. Film production

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217jj

Description: The credit is available to companies that produce qualified entertainment content wholly or in part in this state. Qualified activities include the production of: (1) motion pictures, (2) television programming, (3) sound recordings, (4) music videos, (5) video games, (6) commercials (infomercials are ineligible) and (7) certain interactive websites. The credit is administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). The credit is as follows:

Film Production Credit

| Income Year | Minimum Production Expenditure | % Credit |
|---|---|---|
| 2007 to 2009 | $50,000 | 30% |
| 2010 & after | $100,000 to $500,000 | 10% |
| | $500,000 to $1 million | 15% |
| | Over $1 million | 30% |

Beginning with the 2010 income year, credits may be: (1) sold or transferred to other eligible companies and (2) resold for a maximum of three transfers. Credit buyers and sellers must jointly notify DECD of a sale or transfer. Credit vouchers may be claimed in the year the costs were incurred or the three succeeding years after the year the costs were incurred. However, tax credit vouchers issued on or after July 1, 2015, may be claimed in the year the expenses were incurred or in the next five income years. Credits are not refundable.

History: PA 06-83 enacted the credit effective with the 2006 income year. PA 06-186 amended the language. PA 07-236: (1) allowed the credit to be applied against the insurance premium tax as well as the corporation tax and (2) changed the types of productions and expenses that are eligible. PA 07-4 (JSS) eliminated a partial credit for out of state expenditures that was added by PA 07-236. PA 08-142: (1) made the insurance premiums tax credit retroactive to income years beginning between January 1, 2006, and January 1, 2007, and (2) permitted insurance premiums tax and corporation tax credits for income years between January 1, 2006, and January 1, 2007, to be resold or transferred up to three times. PA 09-3 (JSS): (1) changed the minimum project expenditure and percentage of the credit beginning with the 2010 income year, (2) changed the requirements for eligible production expenditures beginning with the 2010 income year and (3) made infomercials ineligible for the credit. PA 11-61 specified that: (1) qualified productions must conduct no less than 50% of principal photography days within the state or expend no less than 50% of post-production costs within the state or expend not less than $1.0 million of post-production costs within the state, (2) for income years beginning on or after January 1, 2011, and prior to January 2, 2012, a production company may not transfer more than 50% of the film production tax credit in any one income year, (3) for income years beginning on or after January 1, 2012, a production company may not transfer more than 25% of the film production tax credit in any one income year, and (4) any production that is created in whole or in significant part at a "qualified production facility"[3] within the state shall not be subject to transfer limitations. PA 11-1 (OSS) expanded the types of qualified productions that are eligible for film production tax credits to include "relocated television productions." It defined a relocated television production as an eligible production company's ongoing television program that (1) has filmed all its prior seasons outside Connecticut, (2) may include certain current events shows, and (3) is created at a qualified production facility that meets specified investment and job creation thresholds on or after January 1, 2012. Productions featuring current events are not currently eligible for film production tax credits. PA 13-247 established a two-year moratorium on film production tax credits for FY 14 and FY 15 by barring the issuance of tax credit vouchers during those years for motion pictures that have not been designated as state-certified productions prior to July 1, 2013, with certain exceptions; PA 15-244 extended the moratorium for an additional two years through FY 17; PA 17-2 JSS made the moratorium permanent. PA 15-5 JSS extended the length of time in which entities must claim all or part of the credits from three to five years following the year in which the qualified expenditures were incurred for vouchers issued on or after July 1, 2015. PA 17-2 JSS allowed any film production tax credit that is sold, assigned or otherwise transferred, to be claimed at a discount against the gross receipts tax on cable, satellite, and competitive video services under certain circumstances. PA 21-2 JSS allowed film and digital media production tax credits to be claimed at a discount (78%) against the sales and use tax under certain circumstances; PA 23-204 temporarily increased this amount to 92% for the 2024 and 2025 income years.

[3]A "qualified production facility" means a facility: (1) located in Connecticut, (2) intended for film, television, or digital media production and (3) that has a minimum investment of $3 million, or less if the DECD Commissioner determines such facility otherwise qualifies.

Fiscal Estimates: $2.3 million in FY 24 and $4.4 million FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

BUSINESS TAXES

Business entities are taxed for the privilege of: (1) doing business within the state, (2) owning or leasing in-state property, or (3) maintaining an office within the state. Connecticut has three business taxes that apply to different organizational structures.

Unrelated Business Income Tax (applicable to nonprofit corporations)

The tax is imposed on nonprofit corporations with income from businesses unrelated to their nonprofit status. It uses the same rate (CGS Sec. 12-242bb(a)) as the corporation business tax's net income base (see below) and a 3-factor apportionment formula (CGS Sec. 12-242bb(b)).

Pass-Through Entity Tax

The tax is levied at a flat rate of 6.99% on partnerships, including limited liability companies that are treated as partnerships for federal income tax purposes (but excluding publicly traded partnerships), and S corporations, including limited liability companies that are treated as S corporations for federal income tax purposes (CGS Sec. 12-699). Members of a pass-through entity subject to the tax are entitled to a credit based upon their respective shares of the entity's tax liability, which may be taken against the personal income tax or corporation business tax. For the 2018 income year the credit was equal to 93.01% of the member's share of the tax; PA 19-117 lowered the credit to 87.5% beginning with the 2019 income year. PA 23-204 makes the tax optional beginning with the 2024 income year.

Tax Credits Claimed Against the Pass-Through Entity Tax

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217g

Description: The credit is available to businesses in the manufacturing trade that employ apprentices. It is administered by the Department of Labor. The credit is the lesser of: (1) 50% of the actual wages paid to apprentices in the income year or (2) up to $7,500 per apprenticeship. There are no carryback or carryforward provisions.

History: PA 79-475 enacted the credit for the machine tool and metal trades. PA 94-4 MSS changed the hourly wage requirements. PA 95-284 extended the credit to plastics trades. PA 97-295 substituted "manufacturing trades" for machine tool and metal trades, and extended the credit to the construction trades. PA 06-174 changed the construction trades credit: (1) nonunion businesses qualify for the credit, (2) the credit is awarded in the year the apprentice completes a 4-year program, (3) the credit amount is based on the number of hours completed by the apprentice, and (4) the credit limit is raised from $1,000 to $4,000. PA 13-265 increased the manufacturing apprenticeship credit limit from $4,800 to $7,500. PA 14-217 allowed pass-through entities to earn apprenticeship tax credits for manufacturing trades and sell, assign, or transfer them to other taxpayers, including corporations that may in turn claim the tax credits to reduce their corporation tax liability. PA 15-1 DSS allowed pass-through entities to sell, assign, or transfer the credits to other taxpayers for use against their utility companies or petroleum products gross earnings tax liability. PA 22-118 extended the manufacturing apprenticeship tax credit to the pass-through entity tax for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2022.

Fiscal Estimates: $5 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Approximately 670.

Rationale: Incentive.

Corporation Business Tax (applicable to corporations)

Tax Rate and Basis: Corporations are subject to tax on income derived from in-state sources. The tax has three bases (see below). A taxpayer's liability is the greatest amount computed under any of the three.

1. Net Income Base: Liability under this base is calculated by multiplying the portion of a corporation's total net income that is taxable in this state (determined by apportionment) by the tax rate and surcharge that are applicable in that income year. This amount may be further reduced by subtracting any tax credits that a corporation is eligible to claim

   Tax rates: The table below shows tax rates and surcharges for the net income base by income year:

Apportionment of Net Income: Net income equals gross income, as defined in the Internal Revenue Code, minus any deductions for which a corporation qualifies. The amount of a corporation's total net income that is taxable in Connecticut is calculated by a process called apportionment. This process compares the amount of income that is derived from the corporation's business activities carried on in-state versus the amount derived from business carried on everywhere. The resulting fraction is multiplied by the corporation's total net income to determine the portion that is subject to tax in this state. The statutes provide specific rules indicating how corporations in different economic sectors are required to apportion their income.

1. Three factor apportionment: Through the 2015 income year, corporations that derive their income from the sale or use of tangible personal or real property use a 3-factor formula for determining taxable net income in Connecticut. The 3 factors are: (1) sales (which is double weighted), (2) payroll and (3) property (CGS Sec. 12-218(c), PA 15-1 DSS).

2. One factor apportionment: Beginning with the 2016 income year, most corporations determine their net income based only on unweighted ("single factor") sales (PA 15-1 DSS). Receipts for sales of service and intangible property are required to be sourced on a market basis (PA 16-3 MSS).

   Through the 2015 income year, a one-factor formula is used for the following business sectors:

   a. Sales of services – apportionment is based on gross receipts assignable to the state. CGS Sec. 12-218(b)
   b. Bus companies that transport passengers and motor carriers that transport property for hire – apportionment is based on the relative number of miles driven in state. CGS Secs. 12-218(d) & 12-218(e)
   c. Management, distribution or administrative services provided to or on behalf of a regulated investment company (mutual fund) – apportionment is based on the proportion of shares in the fund owned by shareholders domiciled in Connecticut. CGS Sec. 12-218(f)
   d. Securities brokerage service companies – apportionment is based on the proportion of commissions and margin interest paid to accounts owned by clients domiciled in Connecticut. CGS Sec. 12-218(g)
   e. Banks that issue credit cards and regularly engage in credit card activities – apportionment is based on the proportion of receipts derived from credit card holders located within Connecticut. CGS Sec. 12-218(j)
   f. Manufacturers and broadcasters – apportionment is based on gross receipts assignable to the state. CGS Secs. 12-218(k) & (l)
   g. Financial service companies – apportionment is based on total receipts assignable to the state (CGS Sec. 12-218b(b)(1)). PA 98-110 excludes financial services companies from using the capital base to calculate their tax liability or paying the minimum tax.

2. Capital Base: Liability under this base tax is calculated by multiplying: (1) the average value of issued and outstanding capital stock and surplus reserves, and (2) the tax rate of .0031% (3.1 mills) plus any surcharge applicable in that income year (CGS Sec. 12-219(a)(1)).[4] This amount may be further reduced by subtracting any tax credits that a corporation is eligible to claim. The maximum tax liability under the capital base is $1 million (CGS Sec. 12-219(a)(1)(C)).

Capital Base Surcharges

| Income Year | Tax Rate CGS Sec. 12-219(a)(1) | Surcharge CGS Sec. 12-219(b) | Legislation |

| 2005 | 0.0031% | none | |
| 2006 | 0.0031% | 20% | PA 05-251[3] |

[4]Per PA 21-2 JSS the capital base tax rate is reduced to 2.6 mills in 2024, 2.1 mills in 2025, 1.6 mills in 2026, 1.1 mills in 2027, and zero mills in 2028 and beyond.

[1]PA 03-2 imposed a 20% surcharge for the 2003 income year.
[2]PA 03-1 (JSS) imposed a 25% surcharge for the 2004 income year.
[3]PA 05-251 imposed a 20% surcharge for the 2006 income year and a 15% surcharge for the 2007 income year.
[4]PA 06-186 eliminated the 15% surcharge for the 2007 income year.
[5]PA 09-3 (JSS) imposed a 10% surcharge for the 2009, 2010 and 2011 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax.
[6]PA 11-6 imposed a 20% surcharge for the 2012 and 2013 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax.
[7]PA 13-184 imposed a 20% surcharge for the 2014 and 2015 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax.
[8]PA 15-244 imposed a 20% surcharge for the 2014 and 2015 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax, or (3) that file as part of a combined or unitary return.
[9]PA 19-117 imposed a 10% surcharge for the 2019 and 2020 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax, or (3) that file as part of a combined or unitary return.
[10]PA 21-2 JSS imposed a 10% surcharge for the 2021 and 2022 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax, or (3) that file as part of a combined or unitary return.
[11]PA 23-204 imposed a 10% surcharge for the 2023, 2024, and 2025 income years for companies that have: (1) $100 million or more in annual gross income for those years and (2) a tax liability that exceeds the $250 minimum tax, or (3) that file as part of a combined or unitary return.

3. Minimum Tax: Corporations owing less than $250 under either the net income or the capital base are required to pay the minimum tax of $250. No surcharge is imposed on minimum tax payers. Companies paying the minimum tax are not permitted to use tax credits to reduce their liability below the $250 minimum tax (CGS Secs. 12-219(a)(1)(C) &12-223c).

Combined Returns: Through the 2015 income year if a corporation is permitted to file a federal consolidated return, it may elect to file a combined return in Connecticut (CGS Sec. 12-223a). Corporations filing combined returns are not entitled to the first $500,000 of tax savings over what they would have paid if they filed separately (CGS Sec. 12-223f as amended by PA 09-3 (JSS)). Taxpayers may no longer file combined returns for income years beginning on or after January 1, 2016 (PA 15-244, PA 15-5 JSS).

Elective Unitary Returns: Elective unitary returns measure the entire net income of all of the corporations included in the unitary group as if they were one corporation. Corporations that are subject to the add-back of interest expenses paid to related members may elect to calculate their tax on a unitary basis provided there are substantial intercorporate business transactions among the included corporations (CGS Sec. 12-218d). Taxpayers may otherwise petition the Commissioner of Revenue Services for approval. The combined entire net income of the unitary group is apportioned to Connecticut as if it was one corporation. Taxpayers may no longer file elective unitary returns for income years beginning on or after January 1, 2016 (PA 15-244, PA 15-5 JSS).

Mandatory Unitary Combined Reporting: Effective for income years beginning on or after January 1, 2016, commonly owned corporations that are engaged in a unitary business, where at least one corporation is subject to the corporation business tax, are required to file their returns on a unitary basis (PA 15-244, PA 15-5 JSS, PA 15-1 DSS).

Corporations exempt from the tax:

1. Insurance companies

   Citation: CGS Sec. 12-214(a)(2)(A)

   Description: The exemption is for domestic and foreign[5] insurance companies.

   Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

   Taxpayers Benefitting: Approximately 1,360.

   Rationale:

   - Domestic insurance companies – Redundancy: These companies are subject to taxation under the insurance premiums tax.
   - Foreign insurance companies – Expediency: Connecticut does not tax companies headquartered in other states to avoid having retaliatory taxes imposed by those states on insurance companies headquartered in Connecticut.

[5]Foreign or nonresident insurance companies are incorporated under the laws of another state or foreign government but must be licensed by the insurance department in order to issue policies in this state.

PA 94-4 broadened the exemption to include cooperative housing corporations that had federal taxable income, retroactive to the 1990 income year.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Conformity (1965 & 1969 exemptions) and Expediency (1994 exemption).

History: PA 96-175 phased out the tax on the net income of Subchapter S corporations by reducing the taxable percentage. 10. Regulated investment companies[7] (RICs) and real estate investment trusts (REITs)

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(1)(B) and 217(a)(3) exempt these entities from the net income base of the tax and CGS Sec. 219(c) exempts them from the capital base and the minimum tax.

Description: Regulated Investment Company (RIC) means a regulated investment company as defined in I.R.C. §851. DRS Ruling 93-24 states that distributions paid by the RIC to the company that are "exempt-interest dividends," as defined in 26 U.S.C. § 852(b)(5), and "capital gain dividends," as defined in 26 U.S.C. § 852(b)(3)(C), are not "dividends as defined in the federal income tax law" because federal law transforms their character from dividend income to exempt-interest income and capital gain income, respectively. Therefore, "exempt-interest dividends" and "capital gain dividends" may not be deducted under Conn. Gen. Stat. § 12-217(a)(D). Distributions paid by the RIC to the company that are not "exempt-interest dividends" or "capital gain dividends" may be deducted under Conn. Gen. Stat. § 12-217(a)(D), provided that such distributions are "dividends" as defined in 26 U.S.C. § 316 and no provision of federal income tax law expressly transforms their dividend character, and provided that the RIC is a domestic corporation.

History: PA 93-74 enacted the exemption effective with the 1993 income year.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

[6]Subchapter S is a section of the federal income tax code.
[7]Regulated investment companies are mutual funds.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

12. Municipal risk management agencies

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-219(c)

Description: The exemption is for associations formed by two or more municipalities or other local government units to insure against public liability, automobile and property risk.

History: PA 94-4 MSS clarified that municipal risk management agencies are exempt from the capital base and the minimum tax, effective with the 1980 income year. This type of organization does not have a tax liability under the net income base.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Conformity.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

14. Companies located in an insurance and financial services export zone

Citation: CGS Sec. 32-538(a)

Deductions available under the net income base: These deductions are used in the calculation of a corporation's net income. They are not available under the capital base because they do not relate to capital stock or surplus reserves.

1. Earnings from international banking facilities (IBFs)

   Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(1)(C)

   Description: International banking facilities (IBFs) are defined in federal regulations, which dictate state tax treatment of these entities. IBFs enable U.S. banks to use their domestic U.S. offices to offer foreign customers.

   Citation: DISCs: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(1)(D). FSCs: CGS Sec. 12-213(a)(9)(B)

   Description: Domestic international sales corporations (DISCs) are U.S. companies whose income is derived primarily from foreign sales. Foreign sales corporations (FSCs) no longer exist. FSC rules were repealed as of 9/30/00 after a determination by the World Trade Organization (WTO) that FSCs were an illegal export subsidy. Federal tax law formerly allowed U.S. companies to receive a tax reduction for profits derived from exports received through an offshore FSC subsidiary.

   History: PA 81-245 enacted the deduction.

   Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

   Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

   Rationale: Conformity.

3. Net operating loss (NOL) carryforward

   Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(4)(A)

   Description: Loss carryforwards smooth out fluctuations in corporate profits, which may change dramatically with economic conditions. Like federal law, prior year losses must be applied against income to the maximum extent possible and in a consecutive fashion during the carryover period, so that losses from the earliest years are used first. Federal law allows losses to be carried forward 20 years or carried back two years; the state deduction can be carried forward for 20 years.

   History: PA 73-350 created the deduction. PA 99-173 extended the carryforward period from five years to 20 years. PA 15-244 limited the applicability of loss carryforwards to 50% of net income in any income year. PA 15-5 JSS allowed certain filers with over $6 billion in NOLs from pre-2013 tax years to elect to use NOLs sooner than the limitations included in PA 15-244 would otherwise allow; PA 15-1 DSS established a minimum tax liability of $2.5 million for any filer making such an election.

Fiscal Estimates: $190 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Approximately 7,100.

Rationale: Conformity.

4. Net capital loss carryforward

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(4)(B)

Description: The deduction is for net capital losses, as defined by federal corporate income tax law. The deduction can be carried forward for 5 years.

History: PA 73-350 enacted the deduction.

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217(a)(5)

Description: An unpaid loss reserve is an estimate of the unpaid amounts required to settle a defined group of claims as of a particular accounting date. The deduction is for the unpaid loss reserve adjustment for non-life insurance companies that is required by the federal code.

History: PA 93-74 enacted the deduction.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Clarification and Conformity.

Description: The deduction is for capital gains realized from the sale of open space or land to: (1) the state, (2) a municipality, (3) a non-profit land conservation organization, or (4) a water company. The land must be permanently preserved space or as Class I or Class II water company land to qualify for the deduction.

History: PA 99-173 enacted the deduction.

Fiscal Estimates: Less than $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

7. Manufacturing reinvestment accounts

Citation: CGS Sec. 32-9zz

Description: The Manufacturing Reinvestment Account (MRA) program allows manufacturers with 150 or fewer employees to deposit to 100% of their domestic gross receipts up to a maximum of $100,000 each year for five years in an interest-bearing MRA to save for various qualified purposes. Under the program, corporation taxes on the MRA funds are lowered through an exemption of 100% of the total funds deposited.

History: PA 11-140 established the program. PA 11-1 (OSS) increased the number of allowable participants from 50 to 100 and the maximum set-aside amount from $50,000 to $100,000. PA 14-69 increased the MRA exemption from 50% to 100% of qualified withdrawals, reduces from 100 to 50 the number of manufacturers that may participate in the program, and increases from 50 to 150 the maximum number of employees a manufacturer may have to be eligible for the program.

Fiscal Estimates: Less than $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Up to 50.

Rationale: Incentive.

8. Federally disallowed business expense deductions for cannabis businesses

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217

Description: The deduction is for taxpayers holding medical marijuana or adult-use cannabis licenses to deduct, for state tax purposes, the amount of ordinary and necessary business expenses that would be eligible for a federal tax deduction under federal law (26 U.S.C. § 162(a)) but are disallowed because marijuana is a banned controlled substance under the federal Controlled Substance Act.

History: PA 23-204 established the deduction.

Fiscal Estimates: Less than $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 30.

Rationale: Perceived Equity.

Tax Credits Claimed Against the Corporation Tax

The most recent data indicates the following credits are used to reduce corporations' tax liability. Companies are prohibited from using the credits to reduce their tax liability below the $250 minimum tax, beginning with the 2002 income year (CGS Sec. 12-219(a)(3) and 223(c)). Through the 2014 income year, the total value of credits allowed in any income year was limited to 70% of pre-credit tax liability under either the net income or the capital base (CGS Sec. 12-217zz). Beginning with the 2015 income year the limit is reduced to 50.01% of pre-credit liability (PA 15-244), though the limit was gradually raised over four years back to the 70% level by the 2019 income year with respect to the Research and Development and Urban and Industrial Site Reinvestment tax credits only. PA 19-117 reduced the limit from 70% to 50.01% for Research and Development and Urban and Industrial Site Reinvestment tax credits effective with the 2019 income year. PA 21-2 JSS increased the limit for Research and Development tax credits to 60% for the 2022 income year and 70% for the 2023 income year and each year thereafter. PA 23-204 allowed corporations to use the 25% human capital investment tax credits (i.e., credits for the childcare-related investments) to reduce up to 70% of their corporation business tax liability each year.

1. $2.5 million limit on tax liability increases due to unitary filing

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-218e(k)(1)

Description: The credit establishes a $2.5 million cap on the amount a combined group's tax, calculated on a unitary basis, can exceed the tax it would have paid on a separate basis (i.e., its nexus combined base tax).

History: PA 15-1 DSS enacted the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $40 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Between 10 and 15.

Rationale: Expediency.

2. ABLE account contributions

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217tt

Description: The credit is for contributions employers make to employees' Achieving Better Life Experiences (ABLE) accounts, capped at $2,500 per employee per year.

History: Rationale: PA 23-137 established the credit.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and $1 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not yet available.

Rationale: Incentive.

3. Apprenticeship training credit in construction, manufacturing, and plastics trades

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217g

Description: The credit is available to businesses in the construction, manufacturing, plastics and plastics-related trades that employ apprentices. It is administered by the Department of Labor. For the manufacturing and plastics trades, the credit is the lesser of: (1) 50% of the actual wages paid to apprentices in the income year or (2) up to $7,500 per apprenticeship. For the construction trades, the credit is the lesser of: (1) 50% of the actual wages paid to the apprentice or (2) up to $4,000 per apprenticeship. The construction trades credit is awarded in the year the apprentice completes a 4-year program. There are no carryback or carryforward provisions.

History: PA 79-475 enacted the credit for the machine tool and metal trades. PA 94-4 MSS changed the hourly wage requirements. PA 95-284 extended the credit to plastics trades. PA 97-295 substituted "manufacturing trades" for machine tool and metal trades, and extended the credit to the construction trades. PA 06-174 changed the construction trades credit: (1) nonunion businesses qualify for the credit, (2) the credit is awarded in the year the apprentice completes a 4-year program, (3) the credit amount is based on the number of hours completed by the apprentice, and (4) the credit limit is raised from $1,000 to $4,000. PA 13-265 increased the manufacturing apprenticeship credit limit from $4,800 to $7,500. PA 14-217 allowed pass-through entities to earn apprenticeship tax credits for manufacturing trades and sell, assign, or transfer them to other taxpayers, including corporations that may in turn claim the tax credits to reduce their corporation tax liability. PA 15-1 DSS allowed pass-through entities to sell, assign, or transfer the credits to other taxpayers for use against their utility companies or petroleum products gross earnings tax liability. PA 22-118 extended the manufacturing apprenticeship tax credit to the pass-through entity tax for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2022.

Fiscal Estimates: $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 15.

Rationale: Incentive.

4. Cash donations to eligible youth development organizations

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217rr

Description: The tax credit is for cash contributions individuals and businesses make to eligible youth development organizations to fund programs like afterschool tutoring, mentoring, and workforce preparedness training. The credit is available for the 2024 and 2025 income and tax years and may be applied against the corporation business or personal income tax. The credit equals 50% of the qualifying contribution, up to a maximum credit amount of $100,000 per income year for corporation business taxpayers or $20,000 per tax year for personal income taxpayers. The credit is capped at $2.5 million per fiscal year.

History: Rationale: PA 23-205 established the temporary credit.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and $2.5 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not yet available.

Rationale: Incentive.

5. CHESLA Loan Repayment

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217qq

Description: The credit is available to businesses that make eligible education loan payments on a qualified employee's behalf. The credit equals 50% of the payments an employer makes on the outstanding principal balance of an eligible employee's education loan up to a maximum credit of $2,625 per employee per income year. Eligible loans are those issued by the Connecticut Higher Education Supplemental Loan Authority (CHESLA).

History: PA 19-86 enacted the credit. PA 22-118 expanded the loan to any CHESLA loan (rather than only refinanced loans) and allows "qualified small businesses" to apply to the Department of Revenue Services to exchange the credit for a refund.

Fiscal Estimates: $9.9 million in FY 24 and $10.4 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 200.

Rationale: Incentive.

6. Donation of land for educational use

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217ff

Description: The credit is for land donated without any financial consideration or sold at a discounted price to a municipality or political subdivision of the state for educational use. The credit is 50% of the difference between fair market value and the amount received for the donated land. Unused credits may be carried forward 55 years.

History: PA 04-200 enacted the credit effective June 3, 2003. PA 13-232 extended, from 15 to 25 years, the maximum time during which taxpayers may carry forward the corporation business tax credit for donating land for educational uses.

Fiscal Estimates: Less than $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 5.

Rationale: Incentive.

7. Electronic data processing

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217t

Description: The credit is available for 100% of the local property tax paid on electronic data processing equipment, including computers, printers, peripheral computer equipment, bundled software and any other related equipment reported as Code 20 on the Personal Property Declaration. The credit is only for property tax liability and excludes any interest or penalties that the taxpayer may also be required to pay. It may only be taken when filing a final return and may not be used to calculate estimated payments. Unused credits may be carried forward for five years.

History: PA 94-4 MSS enacted the credit. PA 95-160 delayed the effective date of the credit from the 10/1/94 grand list to 10/1/96 grand list. PA 96-144 reinstated the original effective date of 10/1/94 grand list.

Credit vouchers may be claimed in the year the costs were incurred or the three succeeding years after the year the costs were incurred. However, tax credit vouchers issued on or after July 1, 2015, may be claimed in the year the expenses were incurred or in the next five income years. Credits are not refundable.

Productions featuring current events are not currently eligible for film production tax credits. PA 13-247 established a two-year moratorium on film production tax credits for FY 14 and FY 15 by barring the issuance of tax credit vouchers during those years for motion pictures that have not been designated as state-certified productions prior to July 1, 2013, with certain exceptions; PA 15-244 extended the moratorium for an additional two years through FY 17; PA 17-2 JSS made the moratorium permanent. PA 15-5 JSS extended the length of time in which entities must claim all or part of the credits from three to five years following the year in which the qualified expenditures were incurred for vouchers issued on or after July 1, 2015. PA 17-2 JSS allowed any film production tax credit that is sold, assigned or otherwise transferred, to be claimed at a discount against the gross receipts tax on cable, satellite, and competitive video services under certain circumstances. PA 21-2 JSS allowed film and digital media production tax credits to be claimed at a discount (78%) against the sales and use tax under certain circumstances; PA 23-204 temporarily increased this amount to 92% for the 2024 and 2025 income years.

PA 13-232 allowed taxpayers to whom film infrastructure investment tax credits have been assigned (i.e., assignees) to claim the credits during the year in which the expenditures were made or in the three immediately succeeding income years, rather than only in the income year in which the expenditures were made.

Description:

- Historic home rehabilitation: The credit is available for expenses associated with rehabilitating owner-occupied historic homes. It is administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to qualify, the property must: (1) have 1 to 4 dwelling units, one of which is the principal residence of the owner, and (2) be listed individually on the National Register of Historic Places or located in a district listed in the National or State Register of Historic Places. In addition, DECD must certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. A minimum qualified rehabilitation expenditure of $15,000 must be incurred, the minimum amount for which a credit is available is $15,000, the credit limit per dwelling unit is $30,000, [10] and the annual limit for all taxpayers is $3 million. The owner must occupy the home for at least five years following the completion of the rehabilitation work. Unused credits may be carried forward for four succeeding income years.

- Historic structure rehabilitation: The credit was available to individuals, limited liability companies, and nonprofit and for-profit corporations for expenses associated with rehabilitating historic commercial and industrial properties for residential use. It was administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to have qualified, the property must either be: (1) listed individually on the National Register of Historic Places or (2) located in a district listed in the National or State Register of Historic Places. In addition, DECD had to certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. The credit was up to 25% of the qualified rehabilitation costs; the limit per structure was $2.7 million, and the annual limit for all taxpayers was $15 million. Owners can claim the credit themselves or transfer it to others. Credit holders may claim a credit in the tax year when the property receives its certificate of occupancy. For multiphase projects, credit holders may claim a part of the credit in proportion to that part of the project that received a certificate of occupancy. Unused credits may be carried forward for five succeeding income years.
- Historic preservation: The credit was available to individuals, limited liability companies, and nonprofit and for-profit corporations for expenses associated with rehabilitating historic property used for both residential and commercial purposes.[11] It was administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to have qualified, the property must be a historic commercial or industrial property: (1) individually listed on the National or State Register of Historic Places or (2) located in a historic district listed on the National or State Register of Historic Places. In addition, the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) must certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. The credit was up to 25% of the qualified rehabilitation costs; the credit increases to 30% if a portion of the units are affordable[12] to low- and moderate-income people. The total credit amount was up to $50 million per three-year cycle, beginning with FY 09 through FY 11. Unused credits may be carried forward for five succeeding income years.

History:

- Historic home rehabilitation: PA 99-173 established the credit. PA 13-266 expanded the credit by making the credit available statewide, reducing the minimum amount that must be spent, and increasing the maximum amount of the credit that businesses may claim when contributing to nonprofits rehabilitating historic homes. PA 14-217 required that 70% of the credits annually be reserved for rehabilitating historic homes in the 24 municipalities designated as "regional centers" in the state's current five-year plan of conservation and development. PA 23-204 changed the taxes against which historic homes rehabilitation tax credits may be claimed beginning January 1, 2024 and made credits claimed against the personal income tax refundable.

[10] The maximum credit is limited to $50,000 for owners that are nonprofit corporations.
[11] The residential portion must comprise at least 33% of the total floor area in the rehabilitated property.
[12] A project is considered affordable if: (1) at least 20% of the units are affordable rental units or (2) 10% are affordable homeownership units. A unit is affordable if it costs a moderate-income household no more than 30% of its income. A household falls into this category if it earns no more than the median income of the town where the unit is located.

- Historic structure rehabilitation: PA 06-186 established the credit. PA 14-217 specified that no credits may be reserved under this program effective July 1, 2014.
- Historic preservation: PA 07-250 established the credit and specified that the first 3-year period for which the credit is available is FY 09 through FY 11. PA 14-217 specified that no credits may be reserved under this program effective July 1, 2014.
- Historic rehabilitation: PA 14-217 established the credit.

A business may receive credits in up to seven successive years, beginning with the second year after it is accepted into the program. The rebate is refundable if it exceeds the business's tax liability and may exceed the existing insurance premiums and corporation business tax credit limits. The act caps the total rebate amount awarded at $40 million per fiscal year.

Citation: CGS Sec. 32-9t

Description: The credit is available for investments associated with urban site remediation. It is administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) and is allowable over 10 years. The credit amount may not exceed the amount of state revenue that DECD determines will be generated by the site. There is a recapture provision if the actual amount of revenue generated is less than the total sum of tax credits claimed. The credit is limited to $100 million per project and $950 million for all projects. Unused credits may be carried forward for five years or assigned to another taxpayer.

The credit may be used against corporation tax, insurance premium tax, public service companies tax and other miscellaneous tax liabilities.[18]

History: PA 00-170 enacted the credit. PA 01-9 (JSS) extended the credit to taxpayers investing in eligible environmental remediation and urban sites reinvestment projects through Community Economic Entities (CDEs). PA 06-187 expanded the credit's qualification criteria to include projects that: (1) are connected to an operation relocating from another state or (2) involve the expansion of an existing facility requiring a minimum $50 million investment. PA 11-86 increased the aggregate amount of tax credits available under the program to $750 million for all projects; PA 11-1 (OSS) later reduced that amount to $650 million. PA 13-184 (1) allowed the DECD Commissioner to pay taxpayers holding urban and industrial sites reinvestment tax credits for their credit eligibility certificates and (2) authorizes up to $40 million in bonds for this purpose, $20 million of which is available on July 1, 2014. PA 14-98 increased the aggregate amount of tax credits available under the program from $650 million to $800 million; PA 15-5 JSS further increased the cap from $800 million to $950 million.

PA 15-244 imposed a 50.01% limit on the amount of tax liability that certain eligible entities may reduce through the use of tax credits effective for calendar quarters commencing on or after July 1, 2015. PA 15-1 DSS raised this cap by 5% per year until it reaches 70% in 2019 for Urban & Industrial Sites tax credits utilized against the corporation business tax; this cap was subsequently lowered to 50.01% (PA 19-117).

Fiscal Estimates: $7.1 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Approximately 10.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

[18] Miscellaneous taxes include air carriers tax and dry cleaning tax. Prior to passage of PA 17-2 JSS, as amended by PA 17-4 JSS, the credit could also be utilized against the hospitals tax and ambulatory surgical centers tax.

INSURANCE PREMIUMS TAX

On Insurance Companies, Health Centers and Hospital & Medical Services Corporations

A tax is levied on insurance premiums and medical subscriber charges under the insurance premiums tax and the unauthorized (unlicensed) insurance company tax. The tax rate and base depend on the nature of the company issuing the insurance:

Rate & Basis

1. Domestic insurance companies[19]: 1.5% on all net direct insurance premiums derived from policies written in this state. CGS Sec. 12-202.

2. Health care centers: 1.5% on the total net direct subscriber charges received by such corporations. CGS Sec. 12-202a.

3. Foreign insurance companies[20]: 1.5% on all taxable net direct premiums derived from policies written in this state. CGS Sec. 12-210(b).

4. Hospital and medical service companies[21]: 2% on the total net direct subscriber charges received by such corporations during the preceding year. CGS Sec. 12-212a.

5. Unauthorized insurance[22] companies: 4% on gross premiums derived from policies written in the state (CGS Sec. 38a-743(a)). These companies are taxed under a separate statutory section and are not eligible for any deductions or tax credits that are available under the insurance premiums tax.

6. Captive insurance[23] companies: An amount derived from the tables below, with a minimum tax of $7,500 annually and an aggregate maximum tax of $200,000 annually (CGS Sec. 38a-91nn(a)). These companies are taxed under a separate statutory section and are not eligible for any deductions or tax credits that are available under the insurance premiums tax.[24]

[19] Domestic insurance companies are incorporated under Connecticut state law and licensed by the Insurance Department to issue policies. PA 17-125 allows the Insurance Commissioner to designate a domestic insurance company as a domestic surplus lines insurer, which is subject to a 4% gross premiums tax.
[20] Foreign or nonresident insurance companies are incorporated under the laws of another state or foreign government but must be licensed by the Insurance Department in order to issue policies in this state.
[21] There are currently no taxpayers remitting this tax in the state of Connecticut.
[22] Unauthorized insurance companies are not licensed by the insurance department but must register with it to be able to offer lines generally unavailable from licensed insurers (i.e., surplus lines).
[23] A captive insurance company is wholly owned and controlled by a parent company or association and operates to insure the parent's own risks.
[24] PA 23-15 exempted dormant captive insurers from captive insurance premium taxes.

PA 11-1 (OSS) expanded the types of qualified productions that are eligible for film production tax credits to include "relocated television productions." It defined a relocated television production as an eligible production company's ongoing television program that (1) has filmed all its prior seasons outside Connecticut, (2) may include certain current events shows, and (3) is created at a qualified production facility that meets specified investment and job creation thresholds on or after January 1, 2012. Productions featuring current events are not currently eligible for film production tax credits. PA 13-247 established a two-year moratorium on film production tax credits for FY 14 and FY 15 by barring the issuance of tax credit vouchers during those years for motion pictures that have not been designated as state-certified productions prior to July 1, 2013, with certain exceptions; PA 15-244 extended the moratorium for an additional two years through FY 17; PA 17-2 JSS made the moratorium permanent. PA 15-5 JSS extended the length of time in which entities must claim all or part of the credits from three to five years following the year in which the qualified expenditures were incurred for vouchers issued on or after July 1, 2015. | | $150,000 to $1 million | 15% |
| | $1 million & above | 20% |
| 2010 & after | $3 million & above | 20% |

Credits may be: (1) sold or transferred to other eligible companies and (2) resold for a maximum of three transfers. Credit buyers and sellers must jointly notify DECD of a sale or transfer. Credits are not refundable. Credits may be claimed for the income year in which the eligible expenditures are made or may be carried forward for three years.

PA 11-1 (OSS) allowed taxpayers to claim all or part of the tax credits either in the income year in which the infrastructure investments were made or in any of the three immediately succeeding income years. PA 13-232 allowed taxpayers to whom film infrastructure investment tax credits have been assigned (i.e., assignees) to claim the credits during the year in which the expenditures were made or in the three immediately succeeding income years, rather than only in the income year in which the expenditures were made.

Fiscal Estimates: $275,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

limited to $100 million per project and $950 million for all projects. Unused credits may be carried forward for five years or assigned to another taxpayer.

The credit may be used against corporation tax, insurance premium tax, public service companies tax and other miscellaneous tax liabilities.[27]

PA 13-184 (1) allowed the DECD Commissioner to pay taxpayers holding urban and industrial sites reinvestment tax credits for their credit eligibility certificates and (2) authorizes up to $40 million in bonds for this purpose, $20 million of which is available on July 1, 2014. PA 14-98 increased the aggregate amount of tax credits available under the program from $650 million to $800 million; PA 15-5 JSS further increased the cap from $800 million to $950 million.

PA 15-244 imposed a 50.01% limit on the amount of tax liability that certain eligible entities may reduce through the use of tax credits effective for calendar quarters commencing on or after July 1, 2015. PA 15-1 DSS raised this cap by 5% per year until it reaches 70% in 2019 for certain credits utilized against the corporation business tax; this cap was subsequently lowered to 50.01% (PA 19-117) then raised back to 70% (PA 21-2 JSS).

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 15.

Additional Real Estate Conveyance Tax on the Farm, Forest and Open Space Land

In 1963, the legislature established the Farm, Forest and Open Space Program to encourage preservation through preferential taxation. The program permits landowners to pay a reduced amount of property tax on land that has been classified as farm, forest or open space by assessing the land's value based on its current use rather than its market value. The reduction is available for a period of 10 years.

In an attempt to prevent abuse of the program and to help recover abated taxes, an additional real estate conveyance tax is levied on the sale of such land while it is in the program. For open space land, additional tax is due if the land is sold within 10 years of when it is classified for the program (CGS Sec. 12-504a(a)). For farm or forestland, additional tax is due if the period of ownership of the land is 10 years or less (CGS Sec. 12-504a(b)). The rate of additional tax begins with 10% in the first year and declines at the rate of 1% per year (the rate in the tenth year is 1%). If the property is sold after the tenth year, the real estate conveyance tax is imposed at the normal rate.

The exemptions to the additional tax on farms, forests and open spaces parallel those for the real estate conveyance tax, with the following exceptions:

Controlling Interest Transfer Tax

The tax was enacted in 1989. It is levied on the transfer of a controlling interest[28] in a corporation, partnership, association, trust or other entity, where an entity owns an interest in Connecticut real property with a value of at least $2,000. CGS Sec. 12-638b(a)

Rate & Basis - A tax of 1.11% is imposed upon the value of any real property held by any corporation, partnership, association, trust or other entity when the interest in the real property is transferred. CGS Sec. 12-638b(a)(1)

CGS Secs. 12-638l(a) and 638l(b) impose an additional tax of 1% to 10% on property classified as farmland, open space or forest if the controlling interest is transferred within 10 years of when the land is classified for the program. The provisions are the same as those listed above under "Additional Real Estate Conveyance Tax on the Farm, Forest and Open Space Land." The exemptions are the same except that there are no exemptions for: (1) transfers made pursuant to mergers of corporations and (2) transfers made by corporate subsidiaries. CGS Sec. 12-638n

UNIFIED ESTATE AND GIFT TAX

Inheritance taxes are excise taxes levied on the transfer of wealth at the time of death. There are two principal types: a succession tax, which is levied on the separate shares of an estate passed to beneficiaries, and an estate tax, which is levied on the value of the estate. A gift tax applies to the transfer of personal and real property situated within the state by residents or nonresidents of this state.

During the 2005 session, the legislature passed PA 05-251 and PA 05-3 JSS which: (1) repealed the succession tax, the estate tax and the gift tax, and (2) established new taxes on estates or gifts for deaths occurring and gifts made on or after January 1, 2005, with a value exceeding $2 million. PA 09-3 JSS increased the exemption to $3.5 million beginning with deaths occurring and gifts made on or after January 1, 2010. PA 11-6 rolled the exemption level back to $2 million. PA 17-2 JSS increased the exemption level to $2.6 million on January 1, 2018, to $3.6 million on January 1, 2019, and matched the federal exemption level on January 1, 2020; PA 18-81 adjusted exemption levels to $5.1 million on January 1, 2020, to $7.1 million on January 1, 2021, to $9.1 million on January 1, 2022, and to the federal exemption level on January 1, 2023. PA 15-244 established a lifetime cap of $20 million on total unified gift and estate tax liability; PA 17-2 JSS reduced the lifetime cap to $15 million beginning January 1, 2019.

Computation of Tax

Tax Basis - A Connecticut taxable estate is: (1) a person's gross estate minus all federally allowable deductions except the one for state death taxes paid, plus (2) the aggregate value of all Connecticut taxable gifts the decedent made during his life starting on January 1, 2005, and (3) the amount of gift tax paid on any gift made by the decedent or the decedent's spouse during the three-year period preceding the decedent's death. For state tax purposes, a person may take advantage of the optional deduction for the value of a qualifying life income interest in property passing to a surviving spouse, even if he or she does not do so for the federal estate tax. However, the gross estate must include any such qualifying life income interest that the decedent held (CGS Sec. 12-391(c)).

A Connecticut taxable gift is: (1) any federally taxable gift made by a Connecticut resident, excluding real estate or tangible personal property located outside the state, and (2) any federally taxable gift made by a nonresident of real estate or tangible personal property located in Connecticut (CGS Sec. 12-643).

Tax Rate – Table 1 shows the tax rates on taxable gifts made and taxable estates of those who die after January 1, 2011. To find the tax on any taxable gift or estate value in a bracket above the exemption threshold, subtract the amount in Column A from the total value, multiply the result by the tax rate in Column D, and add the dollar amount in Column C.

Exemptions

1. Calculated tax amounts due in excess of $15 million

   Citation: CGS Sec. 12-391(d)(1)(D), CGS Sec. 12-391(e)(1)(C) and CGS Sec. 12-642(c)(1)

Description: The exemption establishes a $15 million lifetime cap on total unified gift and estate tax liability.

History: PA 15-244 established the exemption. PA 17-2 JSS reduced the lifetime cap, from $20 million to $15 million, beginning January 1, 2019.

Fiscal Estimates: $12.5 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Expediency.

Credits

1. Certain inheritance taxes paid to other jurisdictions

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-391

Description: The credit is for similar inheritance taxes paid to any other state or the District of Columbia on property under the other states' jurisdiction. The credit is the lesser of (1) the actual taxes paid in the other states or (2) the full Connecticut transfer tax, excluding any gift tax credits that would otherwise be due multiplied by the percentage of the gross estate that is under the jurisdiction of other states.

History: PA 97-165 established the credit.

Fiscal Estimates: Indeterminate.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Data not available.

Rationale: Conformity.

2. Qualifying investments in a Connecticut Innovations investment program

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-391(i)

Description: The credit allows for a reduction in the estate tax for decedents that make qualifying investments through a Connecticut Innovations (CI) investment program for state residents and is applicable to estates of decedents who die on or after January 1, 2021. Decedents qualify for amounts they invested for at least 10 years in a private investment fund through the CI program. The estate tax reduction is equal to half of the eligible investment, up to $5 million per decedent. The aggregate amount of reductions is capped at $30 million.

History: PA 16-3 MSS established the reduction.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: None.

Rationale: Incentive.

Taxes Eliminated

During the 2005 session, the legislature passed PA 95-298, which phased out the succession and gift taxes between January 1, 1997 and January 1, 2010. The act phased out the succession tax[29] on Class A heirs (immediate family such as parents and children) as of January 1, 2001; Class B heirs (collateral relatives of the deceased, such as siblings, nieces, and nephews) as of January 1, 2006, and Class C heirs (more remote relatives and unrelated people) as of January 1, 2008. The act also phased out the gift tax between January 1, 2001, and January 1, 2010.

During the 2005 session the legislature passed PA 05-251, which repealed the remaining phase outs[30] for the succession tax and old gift tax, effective as of January 1, 2005, and replaced them with the new estate and gift taxes.

Connecticut's former estate tax was effectively eliminated on January 1, 2005, by a 2001 federal law, which phased out the federal estate tax credit over four years (the change was enacted in "The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Recovery Act (EGTRRA) of 2001"). Connecticut's tax was referred to as a "sponge tax" because it was intended to preserve revenue for the state that would otherwise have gone to the federal government. The tax was equal to 100% of the maximum federal credit for the amount of state inheritance taxes that were paid.

[29] It should be noted that the succession tax did not apply to Class AA (surviving spouse).
[30] PA 05-251 eliminated the estate tax on Class B and C heirs and the Gift Tax on gifts between $75,000 and $1 million.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANIES TAX

The tax is imposed on the gross earnings of public service companies.

Computation of Tax

Rate & Basis - The basis for the tax is gross earnings from which the following deductions are made: (1) all sales for resale of steam, gas and electricity to public service corporations and municipal utilities, and (2) any federal BTU energy tax. The following companies are taxed at the rates listed (CGS Sec. 12-249, 251, 255, 264, 265, 268a):

Tax Rates for the Public Service Companies Gross Earnings Tax

| Type of Public Service Company | Tax Rate | CGS Section |
|---|---|---|
| Community Antenna and Cable & Satellite TV Systems | 5.0%[1] | 12-258 |
| Gas | 5.0%[2,3] | 12-265(b) |
| Gas -- sales to residential customers | 4.0%[2,3] | 12-265(b) |
| Transmission & Distribution of Electric Power | 8.5%[2] | 12-265(c) |
| Residential Transmission & Distribution of Electric Power | 6.8%[2] | 12-265(c) |
| Railroad Companies | 2-3.5%[4] | 12-251(b) |

[1]Effective October 1, 2007, through September 30, 2009, Certified Competitive Video Service Providers, Community Antenna TV, and Satellite TV service providers were subject to an additional 0.5% tax for a total tax rate equal to 5.5%. Effective October 1, 2009, the additional tax has been 0.25%. State law requires funds from this surtax to be deposited into the Public, Educational and Governmental Programming and Education Technology Investment Account established under Public Act 07-253. PA 17-2 JSS subsequently diverted $3.5 million of total annual PEGPETIA deposits to the General Fund until PA 19-117 eliminated this provision for FY 22 and beyond.

[2]Effective January 1, 2000, the gross receipts tax on generation services was eliminated. However, the rate on transmission and distribution was increased to 6.8% for residential customers and to 8.5% for non-residential customers other than manufacturers.

[3]PA 22-118 exempted municipal gas companies effective July 1, 2022.

[4]The tax rate varies with the amount by which net operating income exceeds gross earnings. When income does not exceed 8% of gross earnings, the tax rate is 2%. The tax rate increases by 0.25% for each additional 2% that income exceeds gross earnings. When income exceeds 18% of gross earnings, the rate is 3.5%.

Deductions from gross earnings

1. Sales for resale

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-265(b)(1)

Description: All sales for resale of water, steam, gas and electricity to public service corporations and municipal utilities, whether or not the purchasers are Connecticut public service corporations or Connecticut municipal utilities, and whether or not they are subject to the public service companies tax.

History: Established prior to 1949. PA 04-180 extended the exemption for natural gas sold for use as fuel in the operation of a cogeneration facility providing electricity or steam to a company engaged in manufacturing processes but operated by a third party.

Fiscal Estimates: $29.5 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 20.

Rationale: Incentive and Cascading. The exemption is intended to reduce cascading.

2. Appliance sales

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-265(b)(1)

Description: The deduction is for the net invoice price plus transportation costs of appliances using water, steam, gas or electricity, sold by utility companies. "Net invoice price" means invoice price less trade discounts.

History: The exemption was created prior to 1949.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: None.

Rationale: Redundancy. Appliances are taxable under the sales and use tax.

3. Real property taxes paid by railroad companies

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-251(b)

Description: The deduction is for the amount of taxes paid in any town in Connecticut on real estate not used exclusively in the business of the corporation and is deductible from the amount of tax on gross earnings.

History: 1871 ch. 89 created the deduction for property taxes paid on real property that was not used exclusively for the railroad company's business. 1915 ch. 292 expanded the exemption to include property taxes paid by any corporation whose property the railroad company operates. 1917 ch. 70 made a technical change.

Fiscal Estimates: Less than $100,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive.

4. Federal BTU energy tax

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-265(b)(1)

Description: The deduction is for gross earnings from any federal British Thermal Unit (BTU) energy tax included in the adjustment clause and base-rate revenues.

History: PA 93-74 established the deduction.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and FY 25 (no federal BTU tax has been established).

Taxpayers Benefitting: None.

Rationale: Conformity.

Exemptions

1. Manufacturing

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-265(c)

Description: The tax on gas and electricity supplied to manufacturing customers in SICs 2000-3999 was phased out and is now exempt.

History: PA 93-73 and PA 93-332 enacted it. The exemption was extended to include gas used to operate cogeneration facilities providing electricity or steam used in manufacturing, and the cogeneration facility is located entirely on the manufacturer's premise (PA 04-180).

Fiscal Estimates: $24.4 million in FY 24 and $24.6 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Between 15 and 20.

Rationale: Incentive and Cascading. The exemption is intended to reduce cascading.

2. Electricity production

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-264

Description: The exemption is for the gross earnings a gas company makes by selling gas to an existing combined cycle generating plant comprised of three gas turbines with a total capacity of 775 megawatts that is used to generate electricity. In a combined cycle plant, the heat created by burning fuel to produce electricity is recycled to produce more electricity.

History: PA 04-180 enacted the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $3.7 million in FY 24 and $3.9 million in FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Expediency.

3. Railroad companies when certified by the DOT

Citation: CGS Secs. 13b-226 through 13b-233

Railroads seeking this exemption must annually submit to the Transportation Commissioner a list of the preservation and improvement projects they intend to undertake to qualify for the exemption.

History: 1961 PA 11 created the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $1.1 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive.

4. Municipal gas companies

Citation: CGS Secs. 12-264(a)(1) & (b)(1)(B) and 12-265

Description: Exempts municipal gas utilities from the utility companies tax. Under prior law, municipal gas utilities paid a 4% tax on gross receipts from their residential customers and 5% on those from nonresidential customers.

History: PA 22-118 created the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $1.3 million in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Expediency.

Rate Reductions

1. Residential utilities

Citation: CGS Sec. 265(b) and CGS Sec. 265(c)

Description: Companies and municipal utilities are taxed at the rate of 4%, rather than 5% for gas and 6.8% rather than 8.5% on electricity, on gross earnings from manufacturing, selling or distributing gas or transmission and distribution of electricity for residential light, heat or power.

History: PA 85-159 created the rate reduction. PA 98-28, effective January 1, 2000, eliminated the gross receipts tax on generation services as part of the deregulation of the electric industry in Connecticut. However, the rate on transmission and distribution was increased to 6.8% for residential customers and to 8.5% for non-residential customers other than manufacturers.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive and Perceived Equity.

2. Historic home rehabilitation, historic structures rehabilitation, historic preservation, and historic rehabilitation

Citation: CGS Sec. 10-416 (Historic home rehabilitation), CGS Sec. 10-416a (Historic structure rehabilitation), CGS Sec. 10-416b (Historic preservation), and CGS Sec. 10-416c (Historic rehabilitation)

Description:

- Historic home rehabilitation: The credit is available for expenses associated with rehabilitating owner-occupied historic homes. It is administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to qualify, the property must: (1) have 1 to 4 dwelling units, one of which is the principal residence of the owner, and (2) be listed individually on the National Register of Historic Places or located in a district listed in the National or State Register of Historic Places. In addition, DECD must certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. A minimum qualified rehabilitation expenditure of $15,000 must be incurred, the minimum amount for which a credit is available is $15,000, the credit limit per dwelling unit is $30,000,[31] and the annual limit for all taxpayers is $3 million. The owner must occupy the home for at least five years following the completion of the rehabilitation work. Unused credits may be carried forward for four succeeding income years.
- Historic structure rehabilitation: The credit was available to individuals, limited liability companies, and nonprofit and for-profit corporations for expenses associated with rehabilitating historic commercial and industrial properties for residential use. It was administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to have qualified, the property must either be: (1) listed individually on the National Register of Historic Places or (2) located in a district listed in the National or State Register of Historic Places. In addition, DECD had to certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. The credit was up to 25% of the qualified rehabilitation costs; the limit per structure was $2.7 million, and the annual limit for all taxpayers was $15 million. Owners can claim the credit themselves or transfer it to others. Credit holders may claim a credit in the tax year when the property receives its certificate of occupancy. For multiphase projects, credit holders may claim a part of the credit in proportion to that part of the project that received a certificate of occupancy. Unused credits may be carried forward for five succeeding income years.

- Historic preservation: The credit was available to individuals, limited liability companies, and nonprofit and for-profit corporations for expenses associated with rehabilitating historic property used for both residential and commercial purposes.[32] It was administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD). In order to have qualified, the property must be a historic commercial or industrial property: (1) individually listed on the national or state Register of Historic Places or (2) located in an historic district listed on the national or state Register of Historic Places. In addition, the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) must certify that the property contributes to the district's historic character. The credit was up to 25% of the qualified rehabilitation costs; the credit increases to 30% if a portion of the units are affordable[33] to low- and moderate-income people. The total credit amount was up to $50 million per three-year cycle, beginning with FY 09 through FY 11. Unused credits may be carried forward for five succeeding income years.

- Historic rehabilitation: The credit, which effectively consolidates the provisions of the Historic Preservation and Historic Structure Rehabilitation tax credits effective January 1, 2014, is for qualified expenditures associated with the rehabilitation of a Certified Historic Structure for either: (1) residential use of five units or more, (2) mixed residential and nonresidential use, or (3) nonresidential use consistent with the historic character of such property or the district in which such property is located. The credit is up to 25% of the qualified rehabilitation costs; the credit increases to 30% if at least 20% of the units are rental units and qualify as affordable housing or at least 10% of the units are individual homeownership units and qualify as affordable housing. The credit is subject to an aggregate cap of $31.7 million per fiscal year. Unused credits may be carried forward for five succeeding income years or may be transferred in whole or in part no more than three times.

History:

- Historic home rehabilitation: PA 99-173 established the credit. PA 13-266 expanded the credit by making the credit available statewide, reducing the minimum amount that must be spent and increasing the maximum amount of the credit that businesses may claim when contributing to nonprofits rehabilitating historic homes. PA 14-217 required that 70% of the credits annually be reserved for rehabilitating historic homes in the 24 municipalities designated as "regional centers" in the state's current five-year plan of conservation and development. PA 23-204 changed the taxes against which historic homes rehabilitation tax credits may be claimed beginning January 1, 2024, and made credits claimed against the personal income tax refundable.

[32]The residential portion must comprise at least 33% of the total floor area in the rehabilitated property.
[33]A project is considered affordable if: (1) at least 20% of the units are affordable rental units or (2) 10% are affordable homeownership units. A unit is affordable if it costs a moderate-income household no more than 30% of its income. A household falls into this category if it earns no more than the median income of the town where the unit is located.

- Historic structure rehabilitation: PA 06-186 established the credit. PA 14-217 specified that no credits may be reserved under this program effective July 1, 2014.
- Historic preservation: PA 07-250 established the credit and specified that the first 3-year period for which the credit is available is FY 09 through FY 11. PA 14-217 specified that no credits may be reserved under this program effective July 1, 2014.
- Historic rehabilitation: PA 14-217 established the credit.

Fiscal Estimates: $19.9 million in FY 24 and FY 25 (cumulative).

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

3. Electronic data processing

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-217t

Description: The credit is available for 100% of the local property tax paid on electronic data processing equipment, including computers, printers, peripheral computer equipment, bundled software and any other related equipment reported as Code 20 on the Personal Property Declaration. The credit is only for property tax liability and excludes any interest or penalties that the taxpayer may also be required to pay. It may only be taken when filing a final return and may not be used to calculate estimated payments. Unused credits may be carried forward for five years.

History: PA 94-4 MSS enacted the credit. PA 95-160 delayed the effective date of the credit from the 10/1/94 grand list to 10/1/96 grand list. PA 96-144 reinstated the original effective date of 10/1/94 grand list.

Fiscal Estimates: $300,000 in FY 24 and FY 25.

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Perceived Equity.

4. Urban and industrial reinvestment

Citation: CGS Sec. 32-9t

Description: The credit is available for investments associated with urban site remediation. It is administered by the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) and is allowable over 10 years. The credit amount may not exceed the amount of state revenue that DECD determines will be generated by the site. There is a recapture provision if the actual amount of revenue generated is less than the total sum of tax credits claimed. The credit is limited to $100 million per project and $950 million for all projects. Unused credits may be carried forward for five years or assigned to another taxpayer.

The credit may be used against corporation tax, insurance premium tax, public service companies tax and other miscellaneous tax liabilities.[34]

History: PA 00-170 enacted the credit. PA 01-9 (JSS) extended the credit to taxpayers investing in eligible environmental remediation and urban sites reinvestment projects through Community Economic Entities (CDEs). PA 06-187 expanded the credit's qualification criteria to include projects that: (1) are connected to an operation relocating from another state or (2) involve the expansion of an existing facility requiring a minimum $50 million investment. PA 11-86 increased the aggregate amount of tax credits available under the program to $750 million for all projects; PA 11-1 (OSS) later reduced that amount to $650 million. PA 13-184 (1) allowed the DECD Commissioner to pay taxpayers holding urban and industrial sites reinvestment tax credits for their credit eligibility certificates and (2) authorizes up to $40 million in bonds for this purpose, $20 million of which is available on July 1, 2014. PA 14-98 increased the aggregate amount of tax credits available under the program from $650 million to $800 million; PA 15-5 JSS further increased the cap from $800 million to $950 million.

PA 15-244 imposed a 50.01% limit on the amount of tax liability that certain eligible entities may reduce through the use of tax credits effective for calendar quarters commencing on or after July 1, 2015. PA 15-1 DSS raised this cap by 5% per year until it reaches 70% in 2019 for certain credits utilized against the corporation business tax; this cap was subsequently lowered to 50.01% (PA 19-117) and then raised back to 70% (PA 21-2 JSS).

Taxpayers Benefitting: Fewer than five.

Rationale: Incentive and Expediency.

5. Housing program contribution

Citation: CGS Sec. 8-395

Description: The credit is available to firms making cash contributions to nonprofit organizations that develop, sponsor, or manage housing programs for families with low or moderate incomes. It is administered by the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority (CHFA). The credit is equal to the amount contributed. The minimum amount for which a credit is granted is $250 per firm. The annual total limit for all firms is $10 million (of this total, $2 million is set aside for the Supportive Housing Pilots Initiative or the Next Steps Initiative and $1 million is set aside for workforce housing). The maximum amount a nonprofit organization may receive in the aggregate is $500,000. Unused credits may be carried backward or forward for 5 years.

History: PA 87-377 enacted the credit effective with the 1988 income year. PA 99-173 increased: (1) the credit limit per business from $50,000 to $75,000; (2) the limit for the total annual amount allowed for all businesses from $1 million to $5 million; and (3) the amount an entity can receive in the aggregate from $300,000 to $400,000. PA 00-170 required eligible contributions to be in cash and removed the per-business limit on credits. PA 01-8 JSS set

Petroleum products include gasoline, kerosene, diesel fuel (after 7/1/07 diesel fuel used exclusively for or by motor carriers are excluded), benzyl, distillate fuels, residual fuels, crude oil and derivatives of petroleum such as paint, detergents, antiseptics, fertilizers, nylon, asphalt, plastics and other similar products. The table below presents the rate changes since the inception of the tax in FY 81

| July 1, 2013 | and after | 8.1% |

A use tax of the equivalent rate is imposed on companies that import petroleum products into the state for their own consumption if the value of these products in any quarter is more than $100,000.

CIGARETTE AND TOBACCO PRODUCTS TAX

Computation of the Tax

The cigarette tax is levied on cigarettes held by distributors in the state (CGS Sec. 12-296) and on the use or storage of unstamped cigarettes (CGS Sec. 12-316). An electronic cigarette tax is imposed on sales of electronic nicotine delivery systems, liquid nicotine containers, vapor products, and electronic cigarette liquids products by wholesalers. The tobacco products tax is imposed on all tobacco products held in the state by distributors or unclassified importers. Distributors, dealers and vending machine operators must obtain a license from the Department of Revenue Services for both taxes.

Rate & Basis - The cigarette tax is levied at a rate of 217.5 mills ($4.35 per pack of 20) effective 12/1/17 (PA 17-2 JSS). Thirty distributors pay the tax.

The cigarette tax increased from 150 mills per cigarette ($3.00 per pack of 20) to 170 mills per cigarette ($3.40 per pack) effective July 1, 2011 (PA 11-6); the rate increased to 182.5 mills ($3.65 per pack) effective 10/1/15 and to 195 mills per cigarette ($3.90 per pack) effective 7/1/16 (PA 15-244). PA 12-1 JSS makes anyone who has or allows someone to use a "cigarette rolling machine," also known as a "roll-your-own" machine, to make cigarettes at his or her retail or commercial premises a tobacco product manufacturer, subject to existing laws and restrictions governing such manufacturers who sell cigarettes in Connecticut.

A tax on the sales of electronic cigarette (e-cigarette) products by e-cigarette wholesalers is levied at a rate of (1) 40 cents per milliliter of e-cigarette liquid, for any e-cigarette product that is pre-filled, manufacturer-sealed, and not intended to be refillable, and (2) 10% of the wholesale price for all other e-cigarette products (PA 19-117).

The tobacco products tax is levied at a rate of 50% of the wholesale price on such tobacco products as cigars[36], cheroots, stogies, periques, and chewing tobacco (PA 11-6). Cigarettes are excluded from the tax. The tax on snuff was increased from one dollar per ounce (PA 11-6) to three dollars per ounce effective 12/1/17 (PA 17-2 JSS). The tax has been in effect since 7/1/89 (PA 89-251) and is paid by approximately 300 distributors.

ADMISSIONS AND DUES TAXES

The admissions and dues taxes (formerly admissions, dues and cabaret taxes) are separate taxes that were enacted by PA 71-837. The admissions tax is levied on the admissions charge to a place of amusement, entertainment or recreation (CGS Sec. 12-541). The dues tax is levied on the amount paid as membership dues or initiation fees to a social, athletic or sporting club (CGS Sec. 12-543).

PA 99-173 repealed the cabaret tax, effective 7/1/99. Originally, the cabaret tax was levied on the amount charged for admission, refreshment service or merchandise at a cabaret or similar place furnishing music, dancing privileges, or other entertainment for profit, at the rate of 5% (CGS Sec. 12-542--REPEALED) and was due only during the time that the entertainment was offered. PA 00-170 exempts establishments from the admission tax that were subject to the cabaret tax before 7/1/99.

Rate & Basis

- Admissions Tax - The admission charge to any place of amusement, entertainment or recreation is taxed at 10% (CGS Sec. 12-541). PA 00-170 reduced the tax on movie theater tickets from 10% to 8% effective July 1, 2000, and to 6%, effective July 1, 2001, and thereafter. PA 21-2 JSS sunsets the tax for all venues except movie theaters beginning July 1, 2021; PA 22-118 extends the sunset to movie theaters beginning January 1, 2023.

Fiscal Estimates: None in FY 24 and FY 25.

HEALTH PROVIDER TAXES

Hospital Tax

In Connecticut, the hospital user fee was first instituted in April 1994 and was eliminated in April 2000. PA 11-44 and PA 11-61 implemented a user fee on hospital inpatient and outpatient revenue levied at a rate of 6.0% on inpatient revenue and 3.83% on outpatient revenue which were further amended by PA 17-2 of the June Special Session and PA 17-4 of the June Special Session.

PA 19-1 of the December Special Session (i.e. the hospital settlement) currently set the tax for inpatient service at 6% of each hospital's FY 16 audited net revenue attributable to such services. The Act outlines the outpatient tax rates by fiscal year based on a calculation of total tax due from the hospitals in aggregate less the inpatient service portion of the tax divided by FY 16 audited net revenue for outpatient services. The table below lists the total tax due from the industry by fiscal year and the effective tax rate for inpatient and outpatient services.

Hospital Tax Rates by Fiscal Year

| Fiscal Year | Total Tax Due | Inpatient Tax Rate | Outpatient Tax Rate |
|---|---|---|---|
| FY 18-19 | 900,000,000 | 6% | 12.3325% |
| FY 20 | 890,000,000 | 6% | 12.0942% |
| FY 21 | 882,000,000 | 6% | 11.7503% |
| FY 22 - 25 | 850,000,000 | 6% | 11.0976% |
| FY 26 + | 820,000,000 | 6% | 10.4858% |

1. Financially distressed hospitals

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-263b

Description: Distressed hospitals that have experienced an average net loss of more than 5% of aggregate revenue over a five-year period and are approved for the exemption by Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). These hospitals are exempt from the tax on outpatient revenue. The exemption is limited to FY 18-20.

History: PA 11-61 established the exemption from the tax on payment earned for the provision of outpatient services based on financial hardship. PA 17-4 of the June Special Session increases the threshold at which a hospital is considered financially distressed to one that has experienced an average net loss of more than 5% of aggregate revenue over a five-year period, rather than more than 1%. PA 19-1 of the December Special Session limits the exemption for financially distressed hospitals to FYs 18, 19, and 20, and sets the five-year period used to determine whether a hospital qualifies for the exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $0 in FY 24 and FY 25. The law requires a recalculation of the effective tax rates on remaining non-exempt hospitals in order to attain the total tax due from the industry each fiscal year.

Taxpayers Benefiting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Perceived Equity.

2. Other hospitals

Citation: CGS Sec. 12-263q

Description: Specialty hospitals, children's general hospitals, and state-run hospitals.

History: PA 17-2 of the June Special Session, as amended by PA 17-4 of the June Special Session requires the Department of Social Services (DSS) commissioner to seek CMS approval to authorize an exemption from the hospital tax. PA 19-1 of the December Special Session specifies that any hospital for which CMS denies an exemption must pay the tax at the same effective rates established under the Act.

Fiscal Estimates: $0 in FY 24 and FY 25. The law requires a recalculation of the effective tax rates on remaining non-exempt hospitals in order to attain the total tax due from the industry each fiscal year.

Taxpayers Benefiting: Fewer than 20.

Rationale: Expediency.

3. Sole community hospitals

Citation: PA 19-1 of the December Special Session

Description: Beginning in FY 21, the DSS commissioner must seek CMS's approval to exempt "sole community hospitals" from the tax on outpatient hospital services. Under federal law, CMS classifies a hospital as a "sole community hospital" if it is more than 35 miles from similar hospitals or located in a rural area and meets one of several other conditions (42 C.F.R. § 412.92).

History: PA 19-1 of the December Special Session creates this exemption.

Fiscal Estimates: $0 in FY 24 and FY 25. The law requires a recalculation of the effective tax rates on remaining non-exempt hospitals in order to attain the total tax due from the industry each fiscal year.

Taxpayers Benefiting: Fewer than 10.

Rationale: Expediency.

Tax Eliminated

Effective October 1, 2015, the law imposed a 6% gross receipts tax on Department of Public Health-licensed and Medicare-certified ambulatory surgical centers, facilities where surgery and related services take less than a day without subsequently requiring patients to be admitted to a hospital. Public Act 21-2 JSS sunset the existing 6% ASC tax on June 30, 2023 and established a new 3% ASC tax for calendar quarters commencing on or after July 1, 2023. However, PA 22-118 (1) sunset the existing 6% ASC tax, effective July 1, 2022; and (2) eliminated the 3% ASC tax scheduled to take effect on July 1, 2023.

MOTOR VEHICLE FUELS AND MOTOR CARRIER ROAD TAXES

The Motor Vehicle Fuels Tax is an excise tax imposed on motor vehicle fuel sold in the state. The Motor Carrier Road Tax is levied on motor vehicle fuel used in the state by licensed motor carriers, at the same tax rate as the Motor Vehicle Fuels Tax. (See CGS Sec. 12-479)

Motor Vehicle Fuels Tax

Rate & Basis - The tax is levied on distributors of fuel sold or used within the state.

Motor Fuels Taxes[1]

| Tax | Amount $ |
|---|---|
| Gasoline | 25 cents/gallon |
| Diesel Fuel[2] | 49.2 cents/gallon |
| Natural Gas or Propane | 26 cents/gallon |

[1] Taxes are levied pursuant to CGS Sec. 12-458 and 12-479.
[2]Diesel rate is generally set annually by DRS pursuant to CGS Sec. 12-458h. However, PA 23-204 set the rate at 49.2 cents/gallon for FY 24.

Motor Carrier Road Tax

Rate & Basis - The tax is imposed on motor carriers using state highways and is based on the amount of fuel used within the state as determined by proportionate mileage. The tax rate is equal to the current per gallon rate on diesel fuel. A credit is allowed for taxes paid on motor fuels purchased in state. (See CGS Sec. 12-478 to 493)

On 1/1/96, Connecticut entered into a cooperative agreement among most U.S. states and Canadian provinces called the International Fuel Tax Agreement (IFTA) to simplify the collection and reporting of fuel use tax by interstate motor carriers (CGS 12-486). Under IFTA, fuel tax returns are filed in the base jurisdiction[37] of the motor carrier. For the purpose of IFTA reporting, a qualified motor vehicle: (1) is designed to transport persons or property; (2) has two axles and a gross vehicle weight or registered gross vehicle weight over 26,000 pounds; (3) has three or more axles regardless of weight; or (4) when used in combination, has a combined gross vehicle weight over 26,000 pounds. Motor carriers who qualify and travel solely within the state are not required to file a return, but instead are subject to state tax at the time of fuel purchase. CGS Sec. 12-478(4)

Refund - A refund is due when the credit for Motor Fuels Tax paid exceeds amount of Motor Carrier Road Tax that is due. (See CGS Sec. 12-480)

PROPERTY TAX

Taxation of property predates most other forms of taxation in the United States because property taxes were levied before the US Constitution was written. Thus, exemptions to property taxes have had a lengthy and well-documented history. The nature and breadth of modern property tax exemptions vary widely from state to state, due at least in part to the fact that the Constitution is silent on what types of exemptions are specifically granted or prohibited.[39]

Property Tax exemption policy is primarily based on the nature of the owner of the property. The following discussion deals with the exemptions granted to different classes of property owners in the state of Connecticut.

Federally-owned Property

CGS Sec. 12-81(1) grants an exemption for federally owned property. This is based on the rationale that only Congress has the power to authorize tax payments on federal property to lower level governments. Since Congress has not authorized such payments, the only circumstances under which federally-owned property is taxable by state and municipal governments is when such property is leased to a private business.[40]

State and Municipal Property

The rationale behind the exemption of state and municipal property (CGS. Sec. 12-81(2) and (4)) is that it would only transfer public funds within the state. This reasoning is strained with respect to state property, which imposes un-reimbursed costs on the municipalities. In recognition of this, Connecticut reimburses municipalities in a payment in lieu of taxes (PILOT) formula for state-owned property.

The "public purpose" clause is absent in the state exemption (CGS Sec. 12-81(2)) but present in the municipal exemption (CGS Sec. 12-81(4)). This difference has not been clarified by court cases. Courts have disallowed exemptions for property owned by a city in another town which is devoted to a non-public use[41], and for municipal property available for use by only a limited number of persons.[42]

Property Devoted to Scientific Educational, Literary, Historical or Charitable Purposes

Under CGS Sec. 12-81(7), the exemption applies to organizations devoted to these uses provided "any officer, member, or employee does not receive financial reward in excess of 'reasonable compensation for services'." This language is similar to the wording used by other states for statutes with analogous clauses. What tends to differ among states are the types of organizations that qualify for this exemption.

[39] Even the immunity of federally-owned property from taxation was not guaranteed; it was not until the Supreme Court ruled, in McCulloch v. State, 17 U.S. 316(1819), that taxation of federal property by states was an interference with the former's sovereignty.

The rationale for this type of exemption is that such organizations perform functions that government would have to undertake in their absence, or that such functions are socially desirable, but are not within the scope of government activities. Instead of taxing such institutions and providing subsidies, the state grants a tax exemption.

To qualify for the exemption, an educational organization must clearly demonstrate that there is no opportunity for private gain from the existence or dissolution of its operations. Restrictive admission practices or high tuition are not sufficient reasons to deny exemption. However, the curriculum should consist of "systematic instruction and training for the young in preparation for the work of life." [43] Other court rulings have maintained this limitation of instructional latitude to correspond with instruction in government-supported schools within the state.

Qualification for an exemption for charitable purposes has been interpreted more liberally by the courts. A charitable purpose "no longer is restricted to mere relief of the destitute or the giving of alms, but comprehends activities ... which are intended to improve the physical, mental and moral condition of the recipients and make it less likely that they will become burdens on society and more likely that they will become useful citizens .... Charity embraces anything that tends to promote the well doing and the well-being of social man."[44] Only political activity and the opportunity for private gain appear to circumscribe tax exemptions for organizations devoted to charitable purposes.

College Property

Colleges and universities qualify for exemption under CGS Sec. 12-81(7). In addition, the "funds and estate" of seven private Connecticut colleges [45] "respectively invested and held for the use of such institutions, with the income thereof" are exempt from taxation under CGS Sec. 12-81(8) "Provided none of said corporations shall hold in this state real estate free from taxation affording an annual income of more than six thousand dollars Connecticut reimburses municipalities in a payment in lieu of taxes (PILOT) formula for college property.

The exempt status of these schools is also specified by the General Assembly in their charters. Since the state granted the exemptions in the charters of these institutions, it cannot revoke them without impairing its contract obligations. Exemptions of dormitories and dining halls[46] as well as temporary housing for married students[47] owned by Yale University have been upheld in two court challenges.

The $6,000 limitation on income from real estate has been interpreted to apply only to relevant income-yielding property; other college-owned property does not lose its exempt status if this income limitation provision is violated. [48]

Cemetery Property

For reasons similar to charitable and educational property, cemetery property has been exempted from taxation (CGS Sec. 12-81(11)). Since no serious objection to this exemption has been raised, there have been no landmark court cases in this area. Cemetery property is frequently owned by religious organizations. Also, in New England, many municipalities own cemeteries. In such cases, the religious or municipal exemption would probably take precedence, which may explain the absence of challenges to this exemption.

Religious Property

CGS Sec. 12-81(12) exempts personal property of religious organizations. In CGS Sec. 12-81(13), "houses of religious worship, the land on which they stand, their pews, furniture and equipment" are exempted. Also, "real property and equipment" of "any religious organization and exclusively used as a school, a Connecticut non-profit camp or recreational facility for religious purposes, a parish house, an orphan asylum, a home for children, a thrift shop, the proceeds of which are used for charitable purposes, a reformatory or an infirmary" are exempted in CGS Sec. 12-81(14). Finally, "dwelling houses and the land on which they stand" used by "officiating clergymen" are exempted in CGS Sec. 12-81(15).

Exemption of property used for religious purposes has a longer history than other exemptions. Before the Constitution was written, there was no doctrine of separation of church and state, but because churches were generally considered as related to government, they were exempted as public agencies. The exemption practice simply continued after the Constitution was written. Statutes specifically exempting religious property were generally not enacted until the nineteenth century.[49]

The First Amendment of the Constitution -- which states that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof" -- can be interpreted as either encouraging or prohibiting the taxation of churches. A Supreme Court decision upholding property tax exemption for churches[50] relied principally on arguments other than the establishment and free exercise clauses in the First Amendment. Yet, the wording and near-unanimity of that decision imply that any state, which repealed its exemption of church property, is likely to have its action reversed.

In Connecticut, relatively few court-mandated restrictions have been placed on property used for religious purposes. A Masonic Temple was denied a religious exemption because, among other reasons, it "meets in secret", as a membership "dependent in part at least on social considerations" and its property was not "devoted to the practice of religious worship as it is customarily carried on in this state."[51] Recreational facilities of religious organizations were denied exemptions before they were specifically included in CGS Sec. 12-81(14) in 1955.

[48] Yale v. New Haven (1899)

[49] Connecticut's exemption originated in the Statute of Charitable Uses, adopted in 1684 and revised in 1702, which exempted property "for the maintenance of ministries of the Gospel." The wording has changed over time: in 1822 "churches" were exempted by the statute, but other religious, organizations were not mentioned; in 1851, properties of benevolent organizations were also included. In 1925, the wording was altered so that "houses of religious worship" were exempted.

Hospital and Sanatoriums

The state exempts hospitals and sanatoriums (CGS Sec. 12-81(16)) provided that "no officer, member or employee thereof" receives "any pecuniary profit except reasonable compensation for services." Where an institution had become financially successful, the court ruled that under the statute, success alone (meaning that the institution was using sound financial management) did not transform the institution's purpose from one devoted exclusively charitable purposes. [52]

This exemption is analogous to that of educational, scientific and other such property. The rationale is the same: hospitals and sanatoriums provide services that would otherwise have to be provided by government. In many states, hospitals are operated by state or municipal government to a greater extent than in Connecticut. For example, New York City possesses an extensive municipal hospital system. Connecticut reimburses municipalities in a payment in lieu of taxes (PILOT) formula for hospital property.

Other Governmental and Benevolent Exemptions

A number of exemptions similar to those outlined above are included in CGS Sec. 12-81. They are more specific in nature and in many cases, exempt an organization that would otherwise have qualified for the governmental or educational/charitable exemptions. Because the rationales for these have already been discussed, the items are only listed in the footnote below.[53]

Other Exempt and Non-Taxed Properties

In classifying property that is not subject to taxation, a distinction can be made between exempt and non-taxed property. Exempt property is not taxed under the existing ownership, but would be taxed under other ownership. The use to which the property is put or the nature of the owner gives exempt status to the property. Non-taxed property is not taxed regardless of ownership. For example, most personal property not taxed in Connecticut retains this, status regardless of ownership. Much property that is not taxed, but does not appear on any exempt grand list can more accurately be called non-taxed.

Some business-owned properties possess exempt status. For example, provisions are made for special treatment of the property of common carrier motorbus companies and railroad companies. For the former, buses used for carrying passengers are exempt; if the carrier is a Connecticut bus company, fifty percent of property taxes on the assessed value of its real estate and relevant personal property used directly in the conduct of its motor bus business is waived. All property of railroads, if used exclusively for railroad purposes, is exempt from taxation.

The statutes allow towns to abate property taxes for certain types of property and require them to abate the taxes for other types. Some of these abatements are intended to stimulate business activity, such as redeveloping abandoned industrial sites; others have narrower aims, such as preserving historic properties, but may have economic development spin-offs.

Exemptions to Individuals

Partial exemptions for property occupied as dwelling places are granted to the blind, veterans, disabled veterans, elderly and specified relatives. Also exempted are a limited amount of property of United States army instructors (CGS Sec. 12-81(28)) and one motor vehicle of a serviceman "if ... garaged outside the state" (CGS Sec. 12-81(53)).

Exemptions for the blind and veterans have a long history in Connecticut. Exemption provisions for the blind first appeared in the Connecticut General Statutes in 1867 and a veterans, exemption first appeared in 1887. Relief for elderly homeowners was initiated in 1965 with a tax freeze program. In 1973, circuit breaker legislation was added as an option for elderly taxpayers. The freeze program option for new participants was eliminated in 1980. The last significant revision of the circuit breaker program was in 1985.

These exemptions have different rationales behind them. When the veterans' and servicemen exemptions were originally enacted they represented payment in recognition of services rendered to one's country. The rationale for the various expansions of local options was expediency with some attempt at perceived equity by imposing certain income limits. The exemption for the blind attempts to recognize the handicap such people possess in earning a living and owning a house. The elderly exemption attempts to ease the property tax burden on a class of people who generally must live on a reduced income when they retire, but do not find their property taxes reduced commensurately.

Most non-business tangible and intangible personal property is not taxed. Some categories are specifically exempted by law among CGS Sec. 12-81(30)-(35), (43) and (47)[54]; others are not mentioned. The major reason that non-business personal property is not taxed is that the difficulties in identifying and taxing such property are deemed to outweigh the possible revenue.

Much of this personal property was taxable in earlier times. In 1851, the general rule was adopted that all property not exempted by statute would be taxed. After this declaration, exemptions proliferated, particularly on personal property. The property tax on boats (CGS Sec. 12-81(64)) was eliminated in 1981. The property tax on aircraft (CGS Sec. 12-71(f)) was eliminated in 1993, effective with the 1992 Grand List, and replaced with an annual fee.

A final non-taxed category consists of streets and waterways. They represent the difference between what is called the total gross area and total net area of a municipality. Streets are truly public domain; thus, the "value" of streets is normally considered to be reflected in the value of facing property. Water areas represent (unless filled in) non-developable property. Neither, therefore, is subject to appraisal or assessment.

The following tables provide statewide aggregate information on various property tax exemptions. The tables indicate the effect on the grand list, whether the exemptions are mandatory or discretionary and whether the state reimburses the municipality and for exemptions affecting individuals.

[1]CGS 12-19a-c requires the state to reimburse municipalities at a rate of 45% for most state-owned property. Prison property, and the portion of the UConn Health Center used to provide medical care to prisoners, is reimbursed at 100%. Land owned by the Connecticut Valley Hospital is reimbursed at 65%. PA 21-3 established a method of prorating these grants, in the event that appropriations are insufficient to fully fund, that guarantees higher reimbursement rates for towns with less property wealth. The FY 24 and FY 25 budget funds this grant through the Municipal Revenue Sharing Fund.

Tax Preference Report

2025 Edition

DELAWARE DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Department of finance
Division of Revenue

1103/8585

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Report, required by §8305(6), Title 29, Delaware Code, assesses the impact of tax preferences on the personal income tax, corporate income tax, motor fuel/special fuel tax, and public utility tax.

Tax preferences are no different from state spending in terms of their budgetary implications and are sometimes referred to as "tax expenditures." A reduction in revenues has the same fiscal impact as a direct expenditure – both consume finite public resources. Tax preferences are often established to pursue public policies that are not directly related to the tax system itself. For example, the tax-exempt status of employer-provided health insurance is primarily a health care policy that is administered through the tax system. In these cases, the effectiveness of a tax preference should be subject to the same cost-benefit analysis that direct expenditures undergo.

Using cost-benefit analysis to evaluate tax preferences is more complex than conducting similar analyses of direct expenditures. The analysis must weigh how the policy affects the tax system through which it operates. The impacts of tax preference policies are often in conflict with the goals of an "ideal" tax system. The proliferation of these policies can undermine the fairness of a tax system, erode the tax base, distort private economic incentives, and generate unnecessary complexity within the tax code.

Given their budgetary and policy equivalence to direct expenditures, the burden they may place on the tax system, and the upward trend in their use, tax preferences represent a significant component of Delaware's fiscal environment. As such, it is important that this Report receive serious attention from state policy makers.

Since the last Tax Preference Report was issued in 2023, Delaware has created a new tax preference. The tax preference changes can be found at the end of this executive summary.

INTRODUCTION

Legislative Background

Title 29, Delaware Code, §8305(6) requires that the Division of Revenue, under the supervision of the Secretary of Finance, prepare biennial reports that estimate the fiscal impact of all newly enacted and existing tax preferences for selected revenue sources. Reports are due in each odd-numbered year. This eighteenth Tax Preference Report is submitted to meet the requirements of that provision for Calendar Year 2025.

The reporting of tax expenditures was incorporated into the federal budget process through the enactment of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Act (CBIA) in 1974. CBIA requires the President to report on tax expenditures in the budget and requires Congressional committees to provide tax expenditure estimates for each tax bill that they report. Through this process, legislators may recognize the costs associated with tax expenditures and analyze such measures under comparable scrutiny to traditional expenditures.

Delaware took similar steps to analyze preferences within its tax system. In November 1986, a Tax Preference Report was submitted to meet the requirements of the original legislation. The Report was the state of Delaware's first published effort to identify tax preferences arising from provisions of the Delaware Code. The second Report, which the Department of Finance submitted to the General Assembly in November 1988, fulfilled the legislation's more comprehensive requirements by analyzing the impact of all state and federal tax preferences on Delaware revenues. Pursuant to Senate Bill No. 284 of the 136th General Assembly, beginning with the third Tax Preference Report – published in November 1993 – the reports have had a significantly narrower focus. Like more recent reports, this eighteenth Delaware Tax Preference Report examines statutory tax preferences within the categories of personal income tax, corporate income tax, motor fuel/special fuel tax, and public utility tax.

Purpose of the Tax Preference Report

The "Declaration of Policy" set forth in §8305(6)(a) acknowledges that state governmental policy objectives may be achieved through direct expenditures and indirectly through the use of tax preferences. Direct expenditures require annual appropriations and receive automatic, regular review through the budget process. Tax preferences do not. The primary purpose of this Report is to identify all tax preferences within specified revenue sources and assess them quantitatively and qualitatively.

A comprehensive review of tax preferences has value in its own right. Without thorough, long-term reviews, tax policy often becomes overly focused on immediate, short-term problems. In such an environment, more fundamental government goals may fall by the wayside. For example, day-to-day tax policy issues often involve the analysis of a single tax preference designed to address a particular perceived need. When viewed in isolation, a tax preference may have considerable merit and be motivated by the best of intentions. However, ad hoc preferences incrementally add to the complexity of the tax code and may threaten its fairness, distort decision-making, and gradually erode the tax base. Before long, the fundamental objectives of a tax system – equity, efficiency, simplicity and adequacy – may be compromised.[1]

Periodic review is necessary because time can dramatically alter the complexion of tax preferences. Tax breaks for a select and small group of people can quickly grow into expensive entitlements as demographic conditions or economic incentives induce change. Conversely, tax preferences can lose their usefulness as the income or business conditions the preferences are based on evolve.

Tax preference reports are useful tools in the annual budget process. They offer insight into foregone revenue that could be recovered, allowing budget shortfalls to be closed without resorting to tax rate increases or direct expenditure cuts. Incorporating tax preference reports directly into the budget process would enhance the visibility of these fiscal options.

The purpose of this Report is not to propose specific policy alternatives but rather to assist the tax policy debate in the state of Delaware by objectively highlighting the potential advantages and disadvantages of various tax preferences. It is our hope that this Report will help facilitate discussion of current tax preferences and the role they play in the tax system.

Components of the Tax Preference Report

As per the requirements of §8305(6), this Report provides the following information for each of the four designated tax types:

1. A description of each tax preference, its statutory basis, and its purpose.

2. An estimate of the revenue loss to the state, or one of its subdivisions, caused by each tax preference for the last fiscal year (FY 2025) and the estimated revenue loss caused by each tax preference for the current fiscal year (FY 2026).

3. An assessment of whether each tax preference is the most fiscally effective means of achieving the purpose for which it was enacted, and whether each tax preference has been successful in meeting the purpose for which it was enacted.

4. An assessment of whether each tax preference benefits those taxpayers originally intended to benefit from it and, if not, an explanation of those who do benefit.

5. A statement of any unintended or inadvertent effects, benefits, or harm caused by each tax preference, including whether each tax preference conflicts with any other state laws, regulations, or policies.

Definition of "Tax Preference"

An essential step in preparing tax expenditure reports is defining the term "tax preference." A provision of the tax code that one onlooker considers to be grossly unfair can be a provision that another observer considers absolutely equitable and fair.

Most commentators agree that a tax preference: 1) provides a benefit only to taxpayers; 2) operates through specific statutory provisions of the tax code; and 3) depends on certain criteria, such as age, income source, or expenditure decisions that not all taxpayers meet. In general, tax expenditures are tax code provisions that narrow the tax base or give credits to certain groups of taxpayers. The federal government uses the following definition, originally found in §3(3) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Act:

> "those revenue losses attributable to provisions of the federal tax laws which allow a special exclusion, exemption, or other deduction from gross income or which provide a special credit, a preferential rate of tax, or a deferral of tax liability."

The tax base for both the federal and state income tax is "net income" in the case of corporate income tax and "adjusted gross income" in the case of personal income tax. In either case, the base equals gross income less certain costs. Not all subtractions from "net income" can be called tax preferences. For example, costs of earning income are often deductible, but they are not considered tax preferences. These expenses are deductible by all taxpayers, so no preferential treatment occurs.

In addition, certain features of the tax code are considered integral parts of its basic structure and are not considered tax preferences even though they are subtractions from net income. These include differential rates based on income level, the standard deduction, and personal exemptions. Only exceptions to these basic tax rules can be properly identified as tax preferences.

In defining "tax preference," this Report uses the following operational guidelines found in §8305(6):

> ""Tax preferences' means any law of the United States or of the state of Delaware which exempts, in whole or in part, certain persons, income, goods, services or property from the impact of established taxes, including, but not limited because of a failure of enumeration, to those devices known as tax deductions, tax exclusions, tax credits, tax deferrals, and tax exemptions. Tax preferences shall not include variations in the rate of income tax...standard deductions...or personal exemptions."[2]

There are several types of tax preferences. It is important to understand how each works, because the value of a preference will differ based on the mechanics of its delivery. Types of tax preference include:

- Exemptions
  A tax exemption occurs when certain activities or goods, normally subject to taxation, are instead considered free of tax obligations. For example, the business activities of charitable organizations are tax exempt. Some exemptions are not required to be reported. Because of this, it can be difficult to estimate the value of these preferences.

- Exclusions
  A tax exclusion occurs when a portion of certain activities or goods, normally subject to taxation, are instead considered free of tax obligations. For example, $12,500 of pension/retirement income is excludable from taxable income for taxpayers 60 years and older. Pension/retirement income above that amount is subject to the income tax.

- Deductions
  A tax deduction reduces the base which is subject to taxation. For example, an income tax deduction will reduce the amount of income which is subject to tax. At a tax rate of 6.6%, a $100 deduction will have a value of $6.60.

- Credits
  A tax credit reduces a tax liability dollar-for-dollar. Tax credits may be either refundable or nonrefundable. Nonrefundable tax credits cannot reduce a tax bill below $0, while refundable tax credits can and may potentially result in a negative tax liability.

Review of Tax Preference Terminology

Tax systems are frequently evaluated according to several commonly accepted criteria. Tax preferences affect whether a tax system meets these criteria. Therefore, it is appropriate to assess tax preferences in terms of their effect on the tax system. Criteria used to assess a tax system include:

- Ability to raise revenues in a reliable manner, known as adequacy and stability;
- Fairness in terms of the distribution of the tax burden, known as horizontal equity (i.e., treating equals equally) and vertical equity (treating unequals fairly based on their ability-to-pay);
- Ease of administration, enforcement, and return preparation, known as simplicity;
- Amount of interference with individual decision-making, known as economic efficiency; and
- Potential to promote (or hinder) economic growth.

Adequacy and Stability

Tax preferences impact a tax system by reducing government revenues. They are often referred to as "tax expenditures" to indicate their net negative impact on the government's budget. Producing sufficient revenue, even during economic downturns, is one of the most important roles of any tax system. Tax preferences affect the adequacy of tax systems by narrowing the tax base and reducing certain taxpayers' liabilities. This then reduces the ability of a tax system to raise revenue in a stable and reliable manner through the peaks and troughs of the economic cycle. Tax preferences linked to certain income sources or investment activities increase revenue instability because taxpayers can change their economic behavior in unpredictable ways.

A related concept, which is often discussed in connection with adequacy, is the income elasticity of a particular revenue source. Tax elasticity refers to the percentage change in revenue attributable to a one-percent change in the income of taxpayers. Revenue sources are often assigned an income elasticity value and rated accordingly. For example, an income elasticity of 0.5 would mean that a one-percent change in income would result in a 0.5 percent change in tax revenue.

Elasticity is an important consideration in evaluating tax systems because it is desirable to have revenue sources in place which keep pace with inflation and the demand for public services. In most instances, an income elasticity of at least 1 is desired – this implies that a one percent increase in income will produce a one percent increase in tax revenue. Within a single revenue source, tax stability and sufficient tax income elasticity are often difficult to achieve simultaneously; the more income elastic a revenue source, the less stable and predictable it is likely to be. For this reason, a state's "revenue portfolio" should contain a diverse mix of taxes, creating a proper balance between revenue growth and stability. The DEFAC Advisory Council on Revenues issued a report in May 2015 suggesting a path towards a more properly balanced "revenue portfolio" for Delaware. For additional information on the tradeoffs between the evaluative criteria discussed in this section, please refer to the summary below.

Horizontal Equity

Horizontal equity means that taxpayers with similar ability-to-pay should have similar net tax burdens. Generally speaking, equal ability-to-pay is defined in terms of equal income, but income does not always equate with ability-to-pay. For example, if "Taxpayer A" and "Taxpayer B" have the same level of income, but Taxpayer A spends two-thirds of her income on unavoidable medical expenses, then Taxpayer A has less ability-to-pay than Taxpayer B. Horizontal equity, therefore, does not necessarily imply one set of rules for all. Tax rules can be adjusted to take account of special circumstances and maintain horizontal equity. The problem is determining which special circumstances justify special treatment for tax purposes. These special circumstances are typically unavoidable, catastrophic expenses that a taxpayer faces involuntarily. Large, voluntary, and common expenses are not usually considered in ability-to-pay calculations because of their controllability. When it is legitimate to deviate from a common definition of income, criteria defining these cases should be outlined, and tax preferences evaluated with respect to them.

Vertical Equity

Vertical equity is the principle that tax burdens should be distributed "fairly" among taxpayers with different abilities-to-pay. Tax systems may be progressive, proportional, or regressive. However, vertical equity is a subjective concept that is open to debate. Among policymakers and academics, there is general agreement that the tax system should not be regressive – taxpayers with lower incomes should not pay a larger proportion of their income in taxes than do those with higher incomes. Some tax preferences are clearly intended to benefit low-income groups.

The intent of these preferences, with respect to their effect on tax burdens, is different from horizontal equity. Tax preferences that improve horizontal equity are intended to equalize the tax treatment between individuals with similar incomes by recognizing differences in ability to pay. Typically, tax preferences that seek to address vertical equity are designed to increase the tax system's progressivity by reducing the tax burden on lower-income taxpayers relative to those with higher incomes. To the extent that they are successful, proponents of increased progressivity may claim that the tax preference improves vertical equity. However, several of Delaware's tax preferences provide significant tax benefits to middle- and upper-income taxpayers even though they were ostensibly established for the purpose of improving vertical equity.

Simplicity

Tax system simplicity decreases taxpayer and administrative costs and increases compliance with tax laws. Tax preferences may take the form of deductions, exemptions, credits, and exclusions, many of which make tax forms more difficult to understand, more time-consuming, and harder to complete accurately. Entitlement to special deductions often requires special recordkeeping by taxpayers and additional verification by revenue agents. Simple tax systems offer reduced administrative and collection costs due to their transparent, straightforward definition of taxable income.

Simplicity can affect voluntary and involuntary compliance rates. The possibility that taxpayers will make inadvertent mistakes calculating their liability increases with the number of deductions and credits available. Tax simplification can increase voluntary compliance rates. Fewer deductions and credits (which are often difficult to verify without conducting an audit) provide fewer opportunities to shelter income. Reducing the number of tax preferences reassures taxpayers that other citizens are "paying their fair share" and increases their willingness to comply voluntarily.

Economic Efficiency

An efficient tax system should be as neutral as possible with respect to economic decision-making. This requires that resources be allocated where they will receive the highest expected return. Tax preferences may interfere with economic decision making and erode economic efficiency because they explicitly favor certain activities over others.

Not only does society lose resources by limiting tax payments from certain taxpayers, but tax preferences also may shift economic resources towards less productive uses. Tax preferences can cause resources to be allocated where they can receive the most favorable tax treatment rather than where they can produce the goods and services most in demand by consumers, or earn the highest economic return. In the worst-case scenario, taxpayers may be able to take advantage of a tax preference without any change to existing activity. In these cases, the tax preference would act more as a "bonus" than an economic incentive.

Economic Growth

Many tax preferences are based on the argument that they will promote economic development by encouraging businesses to locate in Delaware or to invest in existing Delaware enterprises. Tax preferences can increase tax revenues if they attract investments that enlarge the economy. Whether preferences do enhance economic growth is questionable. Tax preferences for certain activities may impede growth if they result in higher tax rates for other, non-preferred activities. Higher rates hinder economic growth because they reduce the after-tax return available on investments.

Other Criteria

Tax preferences are often established for reasons other than improving the tax system and should be measured against criteria in addition to those listed above. Many preferences are designed to provide incentives to certain investment activities or to serve specific constituencies. In these cases, the tax system is being used as a mechanism to achieve public policy goals that are unrelated to tax administration. For example, the purpose of some business tax credits is to increase business investment in certain industries, locations, or production methods, such as expenditures on pollution abatement equipment. These external policy goals must be recognized in any assessment of a tax preference. The primary questions in these cases are whether the tax preference actually causes the behavioral change that society desires, and if another mechanism (aside from the Tax Code) is more appropriate in achieving the desired goal.

Summary

One final point to keep in mind is that, in practice, there are tradeoffs between these different criteria. For example, efforts to improve horizontal equity by instituting new tax deductions or credits to insulate taxpayers from unavoidable expenditures may erode simplicity. Tax structures designed to produce a more progressive distribution of tax burdens may violate the principal of economic efficiency. A tax system cannot achieve each of these goals to the same degree simultaneously. Ideally, these fundamental criteria are balanced in a way that reflects the desires of state taxpayers as expressed through their elected representatives.

Readers will likely form more fundamental questions as they read this Report. To list a few:

(i) Should the tax system go beyond its basic role of raising government revenues? If so, what are these roles?

(ii) If the tax code is being used to address a certain societal problem, would direct governmental expenditures or the imposition (or removal) of government regulations better address the problem?

(iii) To what degree should tax preferences be held to the traditional standards of tax administration (i.e., adequacy, equity, efficiency, and simplicity), even if a tax preference was not created for tax policy purposes?

Methodology – Measurement of Revenue Impacts

The revenue impacts of Delaware tax preferences are analyzed using a variety of sources and techniques. Estimates of losses in the personal income tax system rely primarily on databases that include information from state and federal personal income tax forms for individuals filing returns in Delaware. Because Delaware has a relatively small number of taxpayers, in many instances the Division of Revenue can analyze data for all resident and non-resident taxpayers, rather than resort to statistical samples of the population. Modern relational database software packages combine with the relatively small number of Delaware taxpayers to create substantially more accurate measures of specific tax preference impacts on individual income tax revenues.

Other sources of information for this Report include computerized data for corporate income and other tax sources; published and unpublished Department of Finance reports and fiscal notes; data and reports from other government agencies and private institutions; and, where necessary, direct sampling of Delaware tax returns.

Readers should be aware of several limitations with respect to the Report's fiscal impact calculations:

(i) Except where noted, revenue loss estimates for each tax preference are calculated in static terms without accounting for behavioral effects that may result from the elimination or modification of a specific tax preference. This limitation is most significant with respect to business tax credits whose primary purpose is to encourage behavioral change, such as different patterns of business investment.

(ii) Revenue loss estimates are calculated separately for each tax preference. No assessment has been made of the cumulative effect of a number of tax preferences on lost revenues. Interrelationships between different tax preferences can result in situations in which changing one preference has implications for the revenue loss estimates of other preferences. This limitation is most apparent with respect to tax preferences for the elderly. The elderly may claim up to four different, non-means-tested tax preferences. Due to Delaware's graduated rate structure, the revenue effect of claiming four tax breaks simultaneously is not necessarily the same as the sum of its parts. For example, an elderly couple that qualifies for three tax preferences may avoid any tax liability by taking only one of the three preferences available to them.[3]

(iii) Revenue estimates assume no change in the taxpayer's decision to itemize deductions or to take the standard deduction. If several preferred itemized deductions were eliminated, more taxpayers would possibly claim the standard deduction instead. As a result, the revenue impacts of other itemized deductions would fall. Conversely, elimination of the additional standard deduction for the elderly might cause an increase in itemized deductions, which would affect the fiscal impact of other tax preferences.

(iv) The fiscal impact of a particular provision only examines the revenue losses related to a specific tax covered in this Report. This is significant for several of the business tax credits, which may be taken against taxes other than corporate income tax or public utility taxes. For example, while a firm may have no corporate income against which to claim credits, it may claim the credits against the gross receipts tax, which is not covered in this Report.

(v) Economic performance directly affects these revenue loss estimates, especially those for corporate income tax preferences. For example, in economic downturns, corporations may not have any taxable income due to net losses. Corporations with no liability cannot claim the tax credits to which they may be entitled. As such, estimates of tax expenditures depend on the predictability of changes in taxable income that result from changes in the national economy.

(vi) Changes in the federal tax or regulatory system can also affect the revenue loss estimates for Delaware tax preferences. This is because changes at the federal level may induce behavioral changes that affect the state revenues.

(vii) Both federal and Delaware specific tax return data lags behind the Report's estimation period. As a result, estimates are generated using economic assumptions about fiscal year data that has not yet been finalized.

Despite these limitations, this Report's revenue loss estimates do provide useful information on the relative size and growth of various tax preferences. The estimates can show how widely a tax preference is being used and indicate the revenue implications associated with its repeal or modification.

Limitations of the Tax Preference Report – Incrementalism

This Report examines individual preferences within specific revenue categories. One of the shortcomings of this approach is that, in some instances, it fails to adequately convey the implications which can result from the cumulative effect of multiple tax preferences. The incremental nature with which some preferences develop can have unintended consequences on taxpayers and state revenues. Due to the efforts of state policymakers, Delaware has for the most part avoided this problem. Two areas where incrementalism has raised concerns are the complexity of the New Job Creation Credit (formerly, the "Blue Collar Jobs Act" credits) and personal income tax preferences based on age. The discussion below deals with personal income tax preferences based on age.

Over the past five decades, public policy makers at all levels of government have implemented proposals aimed at improving the welfare of elderly citizens. The creation of Medicare and indexing Social Security benefits are among the most notable federal policies aimed at assisting the elderly. Like other states, Delaware has enacted several personal income tax preferences to assist elderly taxpayers.

Evaluated individually, the unintended implications of these preferences (see the Personal Income Tax section below) may not have sufficiently outweighed the perceived benefits to prevent their enactment. Taken together, however, serious equity implications can arise. Because elderly taxpayers can utilize more than one of these preferences at a time, the combined effect of these preferences can result in dramatically different tax treatment of individuals with the same ability-to-pay.

Cumulative Effect of Non-means Tested Preferences

An illustration of the equity problems caused by the cumulative effect of these tax preferences can be seen in the following example. Consider the following two households:

| | Household A | Household B |
|---|---|---|
| Family size: | 4 | 2 |
| Both Spouses Age: | 35 | 65 |
| Number of Children: | 2 | 0 |
| Both Spouses Work: | Yes | No |
| Total Household Income: | $74,400 | $74,400 |

"Household A" receives its income exclusively from wages and interest, while "Household B" receives its income primarily from Social Security and pension income. The differences in sources of income between these two households will have a dramatic impact on their tax liability.

Household A

| | Spouse 1 | Spouse 2 |
|---|---|---|
| Pension: | $0 | $0 |
| Interest: | $500 | $500 |
| Dividends: | $0 | $0 |
| Wages: | $36,700 | $36,700 |
| Social Security: | $0 | $0 |
| Total Income: | $37,200 | $37,200 |

Household B

| | Spouse 1 | Spouse 2 |
|---|---|---|
| Pension: | $20,000 | $20,000 |
| Interest: | $7,200 | $7,200 |
| Wages: | $0 | $0 |
| Social Security: | $10,000 | $10,000 |
| Total Income: | $37,200 | $37,200 |

In computing taxable income, each spouse in Household A can reduce its taxable income by $3,250 (a total of $6,500 – the amount of the standard deduction). The couple in Household B, meanwhile, can eliminate taxable income almost completely because of the sources of their income and their age. This reduction represents the exclusion of Social Security benefits, the pension and eligible retirement income exclusion, the low-income elderly exclusion, the standard deduction and the additional standard deduction for persons 65 and over. (See table below.)

Tax Liability Comparison
Two-Earner Family of Four vs. Two Taxpayers Over 65

| | Household A | | Household B | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Type of Income | Spouse 1 | Spouse 2 | Spouse 1 | Spouse 2 |
| Total Income | $37,200 | $37,200 | $37,200 | $37,200 |
| Wages | $36,700 | $36,700 | $0 | $0 |
| Social Security Exclusion | $0 | $0 | -$10,000 | -$10,000 |
| Pension Income | $0 | $0 | $20,000 | $20,000 |
| Dividend Income | $0 | $0 | $0 | $0 |
| Interest Income | $500 | $500 | $7,200 | $7,200 |
| Total Pension/Retirement Income | $0 | $0 | $27,200 | $27,200 |
| Pension Exclusion | $0 | $0 | -$12,500 | -$12,500 |
| Delaware AGI | $37,200 | $37,200 | $14,700 | $14,700 |
| | | | | |
| Standard Deduction | -$3,250 | -$3,250 | -$3,250 | -$3,250 |
| Additional Standard Deduction | $0 | $0 | -$2,500 | -$2,500 |
| Taxable Income | $33,950 | $33,950 | $8,950 | $8,950 |
| | | | | |
| Gross Tax Liability | $1,497 | $1,497 | $220 | $220 |
| Personal Credit | -$330 | -$110 | -$110 | -$110 |
| Additional Personal Credit | $0 | $0 | -$110 | -$110 |
| Child Care Credit | $0 | -$250 | $0 | $0 |
| Net Liability | $1,167 | $1,137 | $0 | $0 |
| Total Household Liability | $2,304 | | $0 | |

In the end, Household A has a gross liability of $2,994 which is reduced to $2,304 through the use of four $110 personal credits and the child care credit.[4] Household B, on the other hand, has $440 in gross liability. This liability is completely eliminated because the couple in Household B qualifies for four $110 personal credits – two regular credits and two additional credits for persons age 60 or over. The retirees in Household B pay no income tax despite having the same income and no dependents, while the working family of four owes the state over $2,300.

This example is representative of the radically different tax treatment of similarly situated taxpayers possible through the cumulative effect of non-means tested tax preferences.

Long-Term Effect on State Revenues

The cost of these preferences is expected to increase dramatically in future years. Through 2040, the percentage of the population age 65 and over will continue to increase as baby-boomers transition into retirement. This will significantly increase the cost of age-based tax preferences as more and more elderly taxpayers become eligible for them. The number of Delaware residents age 65 and over is expected to increase to approximately 280,000 by the year 2040 – more than doubling in size since 2010 (see chart below). The percentage of all Delawareans over age 65 is expected to increase from 14.5 percent in 2010 to 24.7 percent in 2040.

[4] This couple can use four personal credits – one personal credit for each spouse and one for each dependent.

DELAWARE TAX PROVISIONS NOT INCLUDED

The following items are listed in the Delaware Code in a manner similar to other tax preferences detailed in this Report. Many of the items meet the criteria used to define a tax preference as highlighted above. However, these tax preferences have been excluded from the Report for the reasons noted below.

Personal Income Tax

1. Modification for Fiduciary Adjustment
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(c).

   Rationale for exclusion from Report:
   This modification is viewed as an appropriate adjustment to determine net income and, as such, should not strictly be defined as a tax preference.

2. Deduction of Interest or Dividends on U.S. Government Obligations
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(1).

   Rationale for exclusion from Report:
   This modification is required by the Supremacy Clause of the U.S. Constitution.

3. Deduction for Wages Paid for Which New Jobs Tax Credit is Claimed
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(5).

   Rationale for exclusion from Report:
   This provision is not technically a tax preference because a deduction is allowed for all wages paid, even when the taxpayer elects the federal preference of taking a credit for the same wages.

4. Credit for Income Taxes Paid to Another State
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1111.

   Rationale for exclusion from Report:
   This credit avoids double taxation of Delaware residents. Further, the Supreme Court ruled in Wynne v. The Comptroller of the State of Maryland that the Dormant Due Process Clause requires this credit to exist.

5. Favorable Tax Treatment of Distributions from Qualified Tuition Savings Plans
Title 14, Delaware Code, §3483.

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This is a preference authorized under the federal Internal Revenue Code (IRC). State taxpayers benefit by virtue of Delaware's "piggybacking" on the federal tax system.

6. Deduction of Health Insurance Costs Paid by Self-Employed Persons
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1109(a)(2)(b)

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This preference allows a state income tax deduction for amounts spent on health insurance over and above that which is allowed as a deduction on the taxpayer's federal return. Beginning in Tax Year 2003, the federal exclusion increased to 100% of qualified expenses and effectively eliminated any benefit associated with Delaware's "preference."

Corporate Income Tax

1. Deduction for Interest Received from U.S. Government Securities
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 19, §1903(a)(1).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This deduction is required by Constitutional provision.

2. Deductions for Gains or Losses From Sale of U.S. Government Securities
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 19, §1903(a)(2)(c).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
These deductions are required by Constitutional provision.

3. Deduction for Wages Paid for Which New Jobs Tax Credit is Claimed
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 19, §1903(a)(2)(e).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
As with the personal income tax exemption, this provision is not technically a tax preference because a deduction is allowed for all wages paid, even when the taxpayer elects the federal preference of taking a credit for the same wages.

4. Exemption of Foreign Interest, Dividends, and Royalties
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 19, §1903(a)(2)(a).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
These sources are not included due to Constitutional limitations.

5. Exemption for Homeowners' Associations
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 19, § 1902(b)(14).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
These entities are not considered part of the base of the tax, and therefore the exemption is not defined as a tax preference.

Motor Fuel/Special Fuel Tax

1. Motor Fuel Tax and Special Rates
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 51, §5110(c), §5132.

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This provision is not regarded as a tax preference because different tax rates are applied to technically different tax bases.

2. Exemption for Sales of Gasoline to the U.S. Government or Any of Its Subdivisions
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 51, §5111(a)(1).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This exemption is required by Constitutional provision.

3. Exemption for Sales of Gasoline to Anyone Protected by the Interstate Commerce Clause
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 51, §5111(a)(2).

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
These users are not considered part of the base of the tax, and therefore the exemption is not defined as a tax preference.

2. Exempt Tax Receipts Received From the Sale of Public Utilities to the State of Delaware or Any of Its Subdivisions

3. Exempt Internet Access Charges from Public Utility Tax
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 55, § 5502

Rationale for exclusion from Report:
This preference is effectively authorized under Delaware's own Tax Code. Authorization of this exemption became effective for Delaware taxpayers on January 1, 2005. As of November 1, 2005, however, an update to federal law effectively replicated Delaware's provision thereby eliminating any benefit associated with Delaware's "preference."

A SUMMARY OF TAX PREFERENCE CHANGES SINCE 2023

Since the last Tax Preference Report was issued in 2023, Delaware has created a new tax preference. Below is a summary of the legislative changes affecting tax preferences since the completion of the 2023 Report.

Tax Preference Created

Corporate Income Tax:

- Marijuana Tax Business Deduction
  Allowed marijuana establishments to deduct ordinary and necessary business expenses on Delaware state tax return, effective August 1, 2023; deduction not permitted if federal law later allows such expenses under § 280E.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX

- Statutory Provision

  Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11.

- Collection/Administrative Agency

  The Department of Finance, Division of Revenue, administers this tax.

- General Liability

  Resident

  Every resident of Delaware must file a personal income tax return whenever such resident:

  (a) Is required to file a federal tax return; or

  (b) Has adjusted gross income (after modifications) that exceeds the maximum filing thresholds. The maximum filing thresholds for each filing status are listed below:

| AGE/STATUS | FILING SINGLE | MARRIED FILING A JOINT RETURN (1) | MARRIED FILING SEPARATE | FILING AS A DEPENDENT ON ANOTHER PERSON'S RETURN |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Under 60 | $9,400 | $15,450 | $9,400 | $5,250 |
| 60 to 64 | $12,200 | $17,950 | $12,200 | $5,250 |
| 65 and over OR Blind | $14,700 | $20,450 | $14,700 | $7,750 |
| 65 and over AND Blind | $17,200 | $22,950 | $17,200 | $10,250 |

(1) This dollar amount represents a taxpayer's individual Adjusted Gross Income, NOT a total combined with anyone else.

Every resident must report all income earned during the taxable year to Delaware, regardless of the source.

Nonresident

Every nonresident must file a tax return to report all income earned within the state. This includes only income attributable to employment or personal services performed in Delaware, or to the ownership or disposition of any interest in real or tangible personal property in Delaware (i.e., wages, business income, capital, rents and royalties, partnerships, farm income and any other income derived from a Delaware source). Interest, dividends and pensions, even if attributable to Delaware employment, are excluded.

Nonresidents calculate their liabilities as if they were residents except that nonresidents' final liabilities are prorated according to their ratio of Delaware source income to total income.

Part-Year Resident

Part-year residents have the option of filing as a resident or a nonresident. By filing as a nonresident, final liability is reduced because it is prorated according to the taxpayer's ratio of Delaware source income to total income. Filing a resident return allows the taxpayer to make use of certain tax credits, such as the child care credit, that are not available to nonresidents. If large enough, these tax credits can produce a final liability that is lower than that which may be obtained by filing as a nonresident.

- Tax Rates

For Tax Years 2014 and after, taxable income is assessed at the following rates:

| If Taxable Income is Greater Than: | But Less Than: | Tax Liability is Calculated As: | Plus: | On Taxable Income Over: |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| $0 | $2,000 | $0.00 | 0.00% | $0 |
| $2,000 | $5,000 | $0.00 | 2.20% | $2,000 |
| $5,000 | $10,000 | $66.00 | 3.90% | $5,000 |
| $10,000 | $20,000 | $261.50 | 4.80% | $10,000 |
| $20,000 | $25,000 | $741.50 | 5.20% | $20,000 |
| $25,000 | $60,000 | $1,001.00 | 5.55% | $25,000 |

1.01 Low-Income Elderly Exclusion

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(2).

2. Description
   The law provides for exclusions from gross income to persons who meet certain qualifications. If a taxpayer is single, or married and filing separately, the law allows an exclusion of $2,000 to any person:

   a. Who is totally and permanently disabled, or who is 60 years of age or older;
   b. Whose earned income for the year is less than $2,500; and,
   c. Whose Delaware adjusted gross income (before this deduction) does not exceed $10,000.

   A husband and wife filing a joint return are entitled to an exclusion of $4,000 if the following conditions are met:

   a. Each is at least 60 years of age, or totally and permanently disabled;
   b. Their total earned income in the taxable year is less than $5,000; and
   c. Their Delaware adjusted gross income (without reduction of this exclusion) does not exceed $20,000.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: Negligible
   FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
   The purpose of this provision is to allow elderly or disabled taxpayers with low income to exclude a portion of their income from taxes. Because certain forms of income are not included in this means test, some higher-income elderly taxpayers may qualify for this preference. Conversely, elderly taxpayers who rely primarily on wage income may not qualify for this exclusion even though they otherwise meet the definition of "low-income."

5. Inadvertent Effects

This provision suffers from a number of defects, which at the time of its original enactment appear to have been overlooked. As the size and scope of other tax preferences expanded, these defects became more prominent.

The eligibility means test is poorly designed, resulting in an application of tax relief that follows no rational pattern. Though ostensibly targeted to help "low-income" elderly taxpayers, in practice, this provision was nearly as likely to help middle- and high-income taxpayers as it was to help the poor. For example, the fact that the income of a taxpayer's spouse is not taken into consideration in determining eligibility means that well-to-do couples may enjoy a "low-income" tax preference simply because their income is unequally distributed between spouses. Some low-income elderly taxpayers were denied relief (elderly wage earners, for example) simply because the composition of their income did not conform to the statute's requirements. Finally, the deduction was "all or nothing." If taxpayers meet the means test, the full deduction is awarded. If taxpayers exceeded the means test amount by one penny, they received nothing.

For taxpayers age 60 and over, events have rendered this tax preference practically useless. Other elderly tax preferences have expanded to such an extent that, beginning in tax year 2000, all taxpayers meeting this provision's eligibility requirement and using the standard deduction already have no tax liability.

Taxpayers who choose to itemize their deductions may still benefit from this provision, provided their itemized deductions are less than the standard deduction amount. Low-income taxpayers who would choose to do so are rare and are most likely the spouse of a high-income taxpayer who makes use of most of the couple's itemized deductions. Because this provision's intended beneficiaries are age 60 and over and already have no tax liability, policymakers should seriously consider its elimination or limit its application to disabled taxpayers.

Modifying the provision's means test to be more inclusive would merely result in the extension of tax relief to middle- and upper-income elderly taxpayers. If policymakers desire such a result, it could be more efficiently achieved through simpler and more targeted means.

1.02 Exclusion of Pension and Eligible Retirement Income

1. Statutory Provision
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(3).

2. Description
Certain amounts of income received as pensions from employers or meeting the definition of "eligible retirement income" are excludable from Delaware taxable income. This exclusion is limited to $12,500 a year for taxpayers 60 years and older.

As defined in §1106(b)(3)c. of Title 30, eligible retirement income includes:

- Distributions from qualified retirement plans defined under §4974 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC);
- Distributions from cash or deferred arrangements described in §401(k) of the IRC;
- Distributions from government deferred compensation plans described in §457 of the IRC;
- Dividends;
- Capital gains;
- Interest; and
- Net rental income

Taxpayers under 60 years of age may exclude up to $2,000 of pension income per year. Effective beginning in TY 2022, taxpayers under 60 years of age may exclude $12,500 of military pension income per year. These taxpayers may not exclude eligible retirement income.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
FY 25: $87.2
FY 26: $89.3 - $92.0 million

4. Assessment
Unlike the low-income elderly exclusion, the pension exclusion is not means-tested. Any taxpayer with pension or eligible retirement income is entitled to claim this tax preference, regardless of his or her ability-to-pay. The purpose of this provision is to provide a tax reduction to recipients of pension or eligible retirement income; it clearly serves only the intended group.

5. Inadvertent Effects

Delaware's progressive income tax rate structure implies that any non-means-tested, lump-sum exclusion from taxable income – such as the pension and eligible retirement income exclusion – provides a larger tax benefit to higher-income taxpayers than to lower-income taxpayers. For example, "Pensioner A" has $112,500 in income, $100,000 in taxable income once the exclusion is taken. This exclusion will provide Pensioner A with an $825 reduction in tax liability in tax year 2022 ($12,500 x 6.60%). "Pensioner B" has $20,000 in income, $7,500 in taxable income once the exclusion is taken. Because Pensioner B is subject to a lower marginal tax rate, the same $12,500 exclusion will reduce Pensioner B's tax liability by only $578 in tax year 2022 ($10,000 x .048 + $2,500 x.039); significantly less benefit than for the high-income Pensioner A.

With respect to other states in the region, Delaware's maximum pension exclusion of $12,500 may appear to be relatively small. New York allows a maximum pension exclusion of $20,000 and complete exclusion for federal, state, and military pensions.[1] Pennsylvania provides complete exclusion for public and private pension benefits.[2] Some observers argue that elderly taxpayers will migrate to states such as New York and Pennsylvania in order to benefit from their favorable tax treatment of retirement income. There is some anecdotal evidence to support this claim. However, demographic data suggest that it is not a major phenomenon. Academic demography offices in New York and Pennsylvania estimate that the percent of residents over 65 will rise from 13.5% and 15.4% in 2010 to 21.7% and 23.5% by 2040, respectively. The percent of Delawareans over 65 is expected to increase similarly during the same time period: from 14.5% to 24.7%. (See chart below.)

This suggests that factors other than the tax treatment of retirement income have a more profound impact of the location decisions of retirees. Another real possibility is that the combined impact of Delaware's many retirement tax preferences are, in fact, very competitive relative to other states in the region. Delaware has distinct advantages over neighboring states with respect to property and sales taxes. For the majority of retirees, Delaware's overall tax burden is lower than that of surrounding states.

Proponents of tax preferences for the elderly argue that an increased elderly concentration provides an economic stimulus, especially with respect to service markets. Unless tax preferences for the elderly are significant enough to generate a net increase in tax revenues, then the direct revenue losses imply that marginal tax rates have to be higher than they would be without the preferences in order to generate the same revenues. The effect of elderly preferences, therefore, may be to reduce taxes for taxpayers over age 60 at the cost of increasing taxes for wage earners (whose labor supply decisions are most responsive to changes in after tax wages). Proponents also argue that tax relief based on age is justified because these taxpayers have, after a lifetime of tax paying, paid their "fair share" and at some point deserve relief.

Critics of tax preferences based solely on age disagree with these points for several reasons. Due to the growth in benefit payments and longevity after retirement, many government programs for the elderly are paying significantly more to beneficiaries than the recipients ever paid into the system in taxes. Estimates show, for example, that most current Social Security recipients will receive many times more in benefits than they and their employers paid into the Social Security system. Because elderly services have grown in cost and total quantity, it takes longer for a person to pay a "fair share" than it did 30 years ago. Another concern is that some exclusions may be taken by persons still in the workforce. This pension exclusion, for example, allows workers who begin to draw a pension at age 45 to exclude $2,000 of income from taxation while other similarly situated taxpayers get no such break.

Finally, preferences that depend only on age or income source are not as closely linked to ability-to-pay as they were at their inception, when persons over age 60 were the poorest segment of society (see discussion below). All elderly preferences, except the low-income exclusion, can be used to reduce liability for even the wealthiest taxpayers as long as they meet the age requirement.

While the extension of eligibility to other sources of retirement income has improved the horizontal equity problems of this preference among taxpayers over 60, there are still some equity concerns. [3] When compared to income or other ability to pay considerations, age is a fairly arbitrary criterion for a tax preference. It could be argued that the horizontal equity problems of this preference between taxpayers over and under 60 years of age have been aggravated by this most recent change. For example, consider two hypothetical taxpayers with $1,000 in non-military pension income and $3,500 in other eligible retirement income. "Taxpayer A" is 59 years old, while "Taxpayer B" is 61. Assuming both taxpayers have the same ability to pay, Taxpayer A can only exclude $1,000 while taxpayer B can exclude $4,500. Not only is taxpayer A's exclusion capped at $2,000 in the aggregate, it is limited to traditional pension income. For taxpayers under 60 without pension income, no exclusion is allowed.

As the following table shows, the rate of poverty among the elderly is now lower than the general population. In 1970, 24.6% of those age 65 and over lived under the federal poverty level. By 2024, the proportion had dropped to 9.9%.

Percent of Population Below Federal Poverty Level 2024

|---|---|
| Under 18 | 14.3% |
| 18-24 | 12.8% |
| 25-34 | 10.4% |
| 35-44 | 8.6% |
| 45-54 | 7.5% |
| 55-59 | 8.3% |
| 60-64 | 9.8% |

Source: U.S. Census Bureau, Current Population Survey, 2024 Annual Social and Economic Supplement. https://www.census.gov/data/tables/time-series/demo/income-poverty/cps-pov/pov-01.2020.html

The rate of poverty is significantly lower for the elderly than for children and young adults. As the elderly are statistically less poor than the population as a whole, this age test may benefit taxpayers who do not need relief under any legitimate interpretation of ability-to-pay.

Elderly wage earners who must continue to work to make ends meet are ignored by this provision. Because wages are not eligible for the exclusion, the working poor elderly receive no assistance.

While there is certainly a significant proportion of the elderly population with income below federal poverty levels, policymakers might consider whether government support should more properly continue to be based on age rather than on need and/or ability-to-pay.

1.03 Exclusion of Taxable Social Security Benefits

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(4).

2. Description
   The state of Delaware excludes Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board income from the personal income tax. For purposes of federal income taxation, recipients of these benefits who have modified adjusted gross income from all sources above a "base amount" of $25,000 ($32,000 for taxpayers who file jointly) are taxed on a portion of their payments. This taxable portion is the lesser of 50% of the Social Security benefits received, or 50% of a taxpayer's "combined" income over the "base amount." Combined income is 50% of these benefits plus adjusted gross income plus any tax-exempt income or income earned from a foreign country or U.S. possession which is excluded from federal gross income. If a taxpayer's income exceeds $34,000 ($44,000 if married, filing jointly), the lesser of 85% of Social Security benefits or 50% of the combined income above the base amount is included in federal adjusted gross income.

(A complete description of the federal tax code provision relating to social security can be found in IRS Publication 915: Social Security and Equivalent Railroad Retirement Benefits.)

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
FY 25: $133.2 million
FY 26: $132.3 - $136.2 million

4. Assessment
The purpose of this provision is to provide a tax reduction to Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board benefit recipients. This exclusion benefits its intended beneficiaries.

5. Inadvertent Effects
Like the exclusion for certain forms of pension income (Item 1.02), this provision is not a means-tested tax preference. Higher-income taxpayers are eligible for, and benefit more from, this provision than do lower-income taxpayers. As a result, much of the preceding discussion of the pension exclusion is also valid with respect to this exclusion of federal benefits. Despite the fact that this tax relief is provided to Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board recipients because they are perceived as being in need, taxpayers who do not fit this generally accepted perception of being in need may also receive benefits.

Delaware's exclusion of federally taxable Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board benefits effectively removes a federal means test which is designed to limit the preferential tax treatment of such income to those most in need. Tis vertical equity concern is exacerbated by federal policy which stops the payroll tax at very high wages ($184,500 in 2026). Federally, this means-test counters some of the regressive character of the payroll tax. Only taxpayers over certain income thresholds are required to include such benefits in federal gross income. By definition, only taxpayers who have income above these relatively high thresholds benefit from the exclusion of federally taxable Social Security or Railroad Retirement Board benefits and the cap on the payroll tax.

1.04 Additional Standard Deduction for the Blind or Persons Age 65 or Over

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1108(b).

2. Description
   Taxpayers who are at least 65 years of age (or blind), and who do not itemize their deductions, are entitled to an additional standard deduction of $2,500. Non-itemizers who are at least age 65 and also blind may claim an additional standard deduction of $5,000.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: $10.0 million
   FY 26: $10.2 - $10.5 million

4. Assessment
   The purpose of this provision is to provide a tax reduction to persons who are blind and/or at least 65 years old. The provision's benefits reach only those for whom it was intended.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   As is the case with the exclusion of pension income (see Item 1.02 above) and the exclusion of taxable Social Security income (see Item 1.03 above), this provision is not means-tested. With respect to this preference's age criterion, many of the same issues that arise with other non-means-tested preferences for the elderly arise here as well. The additional standard deduction benefits many higher-income taxpayers who have no need for tax relief on ability-to-pay grounds but who qualify solely because of their age.

   By definition, an additional standard deduction is not available to taxpayers that itemize their deductions. Because taxpayers that take the standard deduction typically have lower incomes, it may be argued that this additional standard deduction primarily benefits lower-income taxpayers. However, many taxpayers in this age group no longer have mortgage interest deductions, making them less likely to itemize even if they are middle or high-income taxpayers.

An additional standard deduction that is available to individuals who are blind but not to individuals with other disabilities may violate horizontal equity. Taxpayers may have disabilities that affect their ability-to-pay similarly or more severely than blindness, but they would not be eligible for this deduction.

1.05 Charitable Mileage Deduction

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1109(a)(2)(a).

2. Description
   Federal law permits a person who uses his/her automobile to perform voluntary service for a charitable organization to claim an itemized deduction for a portion of those expenses. Under Delaware law, this additional itemized deduction is calculated by subtracting the permissible federal rate for automobile mileage for charitable use (currently 14 cents per mile) from the amount state employees may claim for work-related use of their vehicles (50 cents effective July 1,2023), or 36 cents per mile.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: Negligible
   FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
   Though small, this preference does provide relief to those individuals who have to drive in order perform voluntary services for charitable organizations. The benefits of this provision go to those intended and do not produce a large fiscal loss. As an itemized deduction, however, the provision does not benefit those taxpayers who use their vehicles for charitable purposes but who take the standard deduction.

   Another concern arises from the fact that only one type of charitable activity (driving) is singled out for favorable tax treatment.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   None noted.

1.06 Additional Personal Credit for Persons Age 60 and Over

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1110(b)(2).
2. Description
   Taxpayers who are age 60 and over are entitled to claim an additional non-refundable personal credit. Married taxpayers who file jointly receive an additional $110 credit if only one of the couple is age 60 or older, and an additional $220 if the both persons meet this age test.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: $18.5 million
   FY 26: $18.7 - $19.0 million

4. Assessment
   The purpose of this provision is to reduce tax liability for persons age 60 and over. Only persons who meet this age test can receive this extra credit, thus ensuring that the provision serves only the intended beneficiaries.

   The switch from an extra personal exemption to an extra non-refundable personal credit for persons over 60 eliminated the regressivity inherent in the additional personal exemption. The value of the tax credit (which reduces tax liability dollar for dollar) is the same for taxpayers in all income ranges.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   As discussed above (see items 1.02 and 1.06), age may be an arbitrary condition for grant favorable tax treatment. This preference suffers from the same drawbacks as other non-means-tested tax breaks for the elderly: taxpayers with the same ability-to-pay receive different tax treatment based solely on age, violating horizontal equity.

   Moreover, high-income elderly taxpayers receive benefits that are not available to younger taxpayers with substantially less ability to pay, increasing regressivity in the tax code.

1.07 Credit for Expenses Incurred by Active Volunteer Firefighters, Fire Company Auxiliary Members or Members of Volunteer Ambulance or Rescue Service

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1113.

2. Description
   The provision allows Delaware residents who are active emergency service volunteers to claim a $1,000 credit against their income tax otherwise due. In order to qualify for the credit, a person must be:
   (i) an active volunteer firefighter on call to fight fires on a regular basis; and,
   (ii) a voting member of a Delaware volunteer company; or,
   (iii) a voting member of a Delaware fire company auxiliary; or,
   (iv) an active member of a Delaware volunteer ambulance or rescue service.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: $4.2 million
   FY 26: $4.1 - $4.5 million

4. Assessment
   The purpose of this credit is to help defray the costs incurred by emergency service volunteers in performing their duties. This is clearly a worthy goal, but it is worth assessing whether it is most appropriately addressed through the tax code. As an alternative, the state could make additional direct annual grants to volunteer fire companies for volunteers' expenses equal to the estimated revenue loss that this preference creates. This approach would avoid an additional complication of the tax code and would simplify administration as the state could work with a manageable number of fire companies rather than reviewing claims by thousands of volunteer firefighters on their tax returns.

1.08 Child Care and Dependent Care Expense Credit

1. Statutory Provision
IRC, §21.
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1114.

2. Description
This non-refundable credit is equal to 50 percent of the federal child and dependent care credit allowed for a given taxpayer. The federal credit amount is determined by applying a percentage (between 35% and 20% depending on federal adjusted gross income) to qualifying expenses (a maximum of $3,000 for one child or $6,000 for two or more children). For taxpayers with federal adjusted gross incomes over $43,000, the maximum credit is 20 percent of qualifying expenses.

Married couples filing joint federal but separate Delaware returns are limited to applying the credit to the tax liability of the spouse with the smaller taxable income. The credit can be taken for payments made to a relative for child care, provided that the relative is not claimed as dependent on the taxpayer's return and is not the taxpayer's child under the age of 19.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
FY 25: $6.3 million
FY 26: $6.3 - $6.6 million

4. Assessment
This credit is intended to encourage the expansion of the state's workforce, particularly for entry-level positions, by removing a major obstacle to employment for many potential workers. A significant number of job seekers are single parents in search of relatively low-wage jobs.[4] For these individuals, the high cost of child care is not affordable on the potential wages. The credit, therefore, is intended to offset a significant barrier to entry into the labor force. The degree to which an annual tax subsidy – often received in the form of a refund – is likely to make lower wage jobs economically feasible for parents entering the labor market is debatable.

Although this preference is intended to target economically disadvantaged families, a substantial portion of its benefits accrue to families with moderate and more abundant means. In 2024 roughly 51% of the child care credits claimed by Delaware families were claimed by families with Delaware Adjusted Gross Incomes of more than $100,000 (see chart below).

[4] The IRC also allows the credit to be claimed for other persons (e.g., a spouse or parent) who are physically or mentally unable to take care of themselves and claimed as a dependent on the taxpayer's return.

A credit for child care expenses can be viewed as consistent with a definition of taxable income that excludes costs associated with earning income.[5] As such, some observers may not regard the provision as a tax preference. However, some costs of earning income, such as work apparel and commuting expenses, are not deductible. If child care expenses were to be considered non-preferential as a cost of earning income, then this provision should be structured as a deduction from taxable income and not as a credit.

5. Inadvertent Effects
None noted.

[5] This line of reasoning is used to justify a host of deductions against both personal and corporate income taxes for costs incurred in the earning process (e.g., the federal deduction for home office expenses, the federal deduction for business meals).

1.09 Tax Credits for Creation of Employment, Qualified Investments in Business Facilities, and Clean Energy Technology Device Manufacturing

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 20, §§2010 - 2040.

2. Description
   The law offers tax credits for any eligible taxpayer who is not subject to the corporate income tax under the same terms as those discussed below for items 2.05, 2.06, and 2.08. Resident shareholders in eligible S Corporations are entitled to a proportionate share (based on the percentage of ownership in the organization by the taxpayer) of the credits listed. The credits are limited to 50% percent of the tax owed multiplied by the taxpayer's share of distributable income of the S Corporation.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss[6]
   FY 25: (D)
   FY 26: (D)

4. Assessment
   This provision extends the credits available under the corporate income tax and gross receipts tax to those eligible taxpayers who are subject to the personal income tax—S corporation shareholders and owners of other pass-through entities. These personal income tax credits raise the same issues as the investment tax credits discussed later in this Report's corporate income tax section. For example, the credits may be too small to generate a significant incentive to increase investments in the intended industries and locations. Many businesses and individuals may be receiving tax reductions for investments and improvements that they would have undertaken anyway in the absence of the credits. For a full discussion of these issues, please refer to Items 2.05 and 2.06 below.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   As mentioned above, since its inception, the Blue Collar Jobs Credits has been expanded several times and is sometimes identified as a program in which this incremental approach may have resulted in unanticipated shortcomings. Please refer to Items 2.05, 2.06, and 2.08 for a full discussion of possible inadvertent effects.

[6] (D) = Per 30 Del. C. §368, the Department of Finance is prohibited from disclosing tax return information identifying specific taxpayers.

1.10 Military Action Exemption

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1171.

2. Description
   Income earned by U.S. Armed Forces personnel while on active duty who die from disease or injuries incurred while serving in a combat zone is exempt from the personal income tax. Unpaid outstanding tax liabilities of such individuals are forgiven.

   Additionally, income earned by U.S. Armed Forces personnel located outside the United States who die in "terroristic or military actions" is exempt from the personal income tax.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: Negligible
   FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
   This preference reaches its policy objectives in a fiscally effective manner. Even though the recent years have seen U.S. forces deployed in large numbers, the cost of this preference remains low. This is true because:

   a. Delaware is a small state, and its citizens constitute only a small fraction of the total military complement;

   b. Members of the armed forces have discretion in determining their residence. A significant number choose states like Texas and Florida, which do not levy income taxes; and,

   c. Compared to other wars, such as World War II, Korea, and Vietnam, the number of casualties suffered in recent years has been relatively small.

   Barring a major military engagement, war, or terrorist action overseas resulting in a much larger number of casualties, the cost of this preference will remain negligible.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   None noted.

1.11 Extension of Filing Deadline for Military Personnel or Support Staff Serving in a Combat Zone

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 3, §376.

2. Description
   Military personnel who serve in a combat zone (pursuant to Section 112 of the IRC) are permitted to file their income tax returns up to 195 days after leaving the combat zone.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: Negligible
   FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
   Delaware's General Assembly implemented this provision in 1991 in response to Operation Desert Storm. Legislators recognized the practical difficulty of requiring military personnel to file a state personal income tax form while actively engaged in an overseas military operation.

   This item is the most effective means of achieving its purpose fiscally and benefits those intended. The resulting impacts on final payments and refunds are minor. This provision is included as a tax preference because the filing deadline extension functions as a tax deferral in cases where a payment is due with the final return. While the deferral of final payment may amount to an interest-free loan from the state to the taxpayer, it is likely that many reservists' wage withholding levels were not adjusted to compensate for lower earnings during military service. In these cases, this filing deadline extension may actually result in the deferral of refund checks.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   None noted.

1.12 Exemption for Retirement Distributions Used for Education

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(8).

2. Description
   This preference allows an exemption from taxable income for early distributions from qualified retirement and deferred compensation plans, provided that the distribution is used in the same tax year to pay for books, tuition or fees at an institution of higher education. This exemption is available if the distribution is used to pay for costs incurred by the taxpayer receiving the distribution or any of the taxpayer's dependents under the age of 26.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: $2.8 million - $3.6 million
   FY 26: $3.0 million - $3.8 million

4. Assessment
   The purpose of this exemption is to provide parents of college age children with an additional alternative for funding their child's education. It assumes that the saving rate among families for their children's college education is insufficient. The provision's marginal impact is difficult to isolate, but it is likely minimal given all the financial considerations that affect college-funding decisions.

   For example, consider a joint return filer in the 24.0% federal tax bracket. In the absence of this provision, this taxpayer would face a combined state and local marginal tax rate on early distributions from retirement plans of 30.6% in tax year 2024 (24.0% federal income tax rate + 6.6% state income tax rate). By allowing an exclusion for state tax purposes, the marginal rate facing this hypothetical taxpayer is reduced to 23.8% (a 21.6% reduction – 6.6%/30.6%). The degree to which such a reduction increases the use of retirement funds for higher education costs is uncertain.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   Nationally, 72.5% of taxpayers who made deductible contributions to individual retirement accounts had adjusted gross incomes of $50,000 or more in 2016, according to IRS data. Low-income families are most likely to need assistance with higher education costs, but they are also likely to have less money invested in retirement funds. This provision may benefit high income families disproportionately.

Additionally, to the extent that the provision does encourage the use of retirement funds for higher education costs, the amount available for distribution after retirement is reduced. Because the income from qualified distributions from tax deferred retirement vehicles is included in adjusted gross income, the use of retirement funds for higher education costs could reduce the amount available for retirement and the tax revenues these funds would generate.

1.13 Exemption for Trusts Established as "Designated" or "Qualified" Settlement Funds

1. Statutory Provision
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 16, §1633(4).

2. Description
This provision exempts from Delaware income taxes the earnings of trusts that are recognized as "designated" or "qualified" settlement funds IRC §468B. Generally speaking, these types of settlement funds are established to satisfy claims arising out of tort, breach of contract, injury, death, property damage or violation of the law. Designated settlement funds may only be established by courts. Qualified settlement funds may be established by any government agency or instrumentality.

IRC §468B(b)(3) exempts "qualified payments" to a designated settlement fund, defined as money or property transferred to a fund pursuant to a court order, from the fund's gross income. Treasury Regulations Section 1.468B-2 exempts "amounts transferred to the qualified settlement fund...to resolve or satisfy a liability for which the fund was established" from gross income. In the absence of this provision, trust income for state tax purposes would include any income other than transfers to pay claims, such as interest income from fund assets.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
FY 25: Unknown
FY 26: Unknown

4. Assessment
This preference is intended to further Delaware's reputation as a leader in the financial services sector. Since these funds are established by agreement between plaintiffs and defendants in civil cases, the prospect of taxation in Delaware would make it very likely that the parties to a suit would seek to establish such a fund outside the state. How successful this preference has been in achieving its intended purpose is unknown.

It is likely that any funds which are located in Delaware due to this exemption would not be located here in the absence of this preference. Therefore, the state would not likely stand to gain additional revenue if it were to eliminate the credit.

5. Inadvertent Effects
None noted.

1.14 Land and Historic Resource Tax Credit

1. Statutory Provision
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 18, §§1801 – 1807.

2. Description
This preference allows an income tax credit for permanent gifts of land or interest in land to public agencies and qualified private non-profit charitable organizations. Lands that qualify must either:

a. Meet the criteria for Open Space established by the Delaware Land Protection Act;
b. Consist of natural habitat for the protection of Delaware's unique and rare biological and natural resources; or,
c. Protect Delaware's important historic resources.

The tax credit is based on 40% of the appraised fair market value of the gift. The amount of credit that can be claimed is limited to $50,000. In any one tax year, the credit claimed cannot exceed the tax due, but unused portions of the $50,000 credit can be carried forward for up to five (5) consecutive years. The credit became available on January 1, 2000.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss [7]
FY 25: (D)
FY 26: (D)

[7] The maximum amount that can be awarded in any one year cannot exceed $1 million, and these credits may not total more than $10 million over the life of the program.

4. Assessment

The goal of this tax preference is to encourage land conservation and historic preservation by providing an income tax preference for the donation of lands to the state or qualifying conservation organizations.
The state will have limited control over the types of land donated and the location of such land (subject to limitations discussed above) and no control over the timing of such donations. As an alternative, the state could make outright purchases of properties deemed desirable for conservation. This approach would avoid an additional complication of the tax code and restore some degree of control and predictability to land conservation efforts.

5. Inadvertent Effects

In effect, through the adoption of this preference, the state is attempting to address a perceived market failure: the loss of open space. Like many business development incentives, a common criticism of awarding tax breaks for conservation efforts is that, in many instances, the desired behavior would have occurred in the absence of the tax break. That is, many of the land-owners who choose to participate in this program may have never contemplated developing their land. In such instances, this provision acts as a "bonus" and not as an incentive that actually changes behavior.

Whether the value of preserving open space exceeds the benefits of allowing market forces to determine the lands' "highest and best" use is debatable. If open space preservation efforts are extensive enough they could influence real estate markets by increasing housing prices in certain areas.

1.15 Historic Preservation Credit

1. Statutory Provision

Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 18, §§1811 – 1817.

2. Description

Under this provision, a person who wishes to repair or otherwise preserve a historic property may apply to the State Historic Preservation Office, for a partial credit for qualified expenditures.

To qualify for the credit, an individual must first submit a rehabilitation proposal to the Historic Preservation Office to ensure that the restoration, when completed, would meet federal and state guidelines. Credits would be granted on a first come-first serve basis, not to exceed $8 million[8] in any one fiscal year. Moreover, of the credits awarded in a given fiscal year, $100,000 must be reserved for distribution to qualified resident curators; $1.5 million shall be reserved for projects receiving a credit of not more than $300,000, and $1.5 million shall be reserved for projects located in Downtown Development Districts.

Upon project completion, a State Preservation Office must certify that the end product conforms to federal and state requirements. Once certified, the Division of Revenue or the Office of the State Bank Commissioner will determine the appropriate value of the tax credit to be issued. Personal/corporate income or bank franchise tax credits may be valued at:

- 20% (30% in the case of low income housing) of qualified expenditures made in the rehabilitation of any certified historic property eligible for a federal tax credit under §47 of the Internal Revenue Code (income producing properties);

- 30% (40% in the case of low income housing) of qualified expenditures made in the rehabilitation of any certified historic property not eligible for a federal tax credit under IRC §47 (non-income producing properties); or

- 100% of the qualified expenditures made in the rehabilitation of a certified historic property qualifying for credit award as a resident curatorship property regardless of eligibility for a federal tax credit under IRC §47 [26 U.S.C. §47].

Rehabilitative efforts taking the following forms do not qualify for the Historic Preservation Credit:

a. The acquisition of real property or interest in real property,

b. Additions to existing structures when the square footage of all additions is greater than or equal to 20% of the total square footage of the historic portion of the property,

c. Paving or landscaping costs that exceed 10% of the total qualified expenditure, [8] The maximum amount of credits awarded shall not exceed $8 million for Fiscal Years 2026-2031 (84 Del. Laws c. 83 § 50).

d. Sales and marketing costs, or,

e. Expenditures not properly charged to a capital account, or, in the case of owner occupied property, would not be charged to a capital account if the owner were using such property in a trade or business.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss[9]
FY 25: $205,000
FY 26: $125,000 - $1.0 million

4. Assessment
The intention of this provision is to encourage private sector participation in maintaining and preserving the state's historic structures. However, since no public purpose is required for participation in this program, it is possible that the benefits enjoyed from this credit could accrue to relatively few and most likely wealthy individuals. Credits could be issued for renovations conducted on privately owned homes located in isolated areas. In these instances, taxpayers subsidizing the historic renovation would be unable to even view that for which their tax dollars have paid. Recent experience, however, has proven that businesses account for the majority of those qualifying to take this credit.

Additionally, it is unlikely that individuals with insufficient means to undertake renovations would be motivated by this tax incentive. As such, it is possible that this credit may act more as preservation subsidy than as a preservation incentive.

Because this preference is administered on a first-come, first-served basis, it would also be possible for funds which should have been allocated to the state's most important historic resources to instead be diverted to other, potentially less worthy, properties. Moreover, this method of allocation may cause equity concerns given that there is no restriction on the amount of tax credit than can be granted to any one taxpayer. Consequently, one taxpayer could receive the entire $8 million credit allotment in any given year.

5. Inadvertent Effects
As previously mentioned, aside from the resident curator provision there is nothing preventing one large taxpayer from receiving the remainder of the credits available in any given fiscal year. Such allocation of the credit may actually hinder preservation efforts by causing individuals who would have otherwise begun historic rehabilitation to postpone projects until the credit is once again available. Additionally, equity concerns are a likely consequence of credit monopolization.

1.16 Earned Income Tax Credit

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11 §1117.

2. Description
   Federal law permits certain low-income individuals with earned income, meeting adjusted gross income thresholds, to take a refundable Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Starting with tax year 2021, Delaware taxpayers who qualify to take the federal EITC are permitted to take either a non-refundable state tax credit equal to 20% of the federal amount or a refundable state tax credit equal to 4.5% of the federal amount.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: $17.5 million
   FY 26: $18.0 million – $18.5 million

4. Assessment
   EITC advocates consider this credit to be an important tool in fighting poverty. Since 1975, the federal Earned Income Tax Credit has worked as an income subsidy which is delivered through the tax code and targets the working poor. As opposed to traditional welfare programs, proponents argue that the EITC encourages socially beneficial behavior by rewarding work.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   Among federal tax preference items, the EITC has one of the higher rates of errors and noncompliance. Because the federal EITC is a refundable credit, the impact of these errors and noncompliance frequently exceed the amount of federal tax otherwise due. Delaware's experience administering its EITC is largely consistent with the federal track record. As a consequence, the administration of the EITC, an effective low-income subsidy, appears to come at a somewhat higher administrative cost relative to the cost of other tax preference items.

1.17 Exemption of Out-of-State Resources During Declared Emergencies

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 31, §§3101 – 3105.

2. Description
   Delaware does not consider equipment and personnel employed during a declared state of emergency by infrastructure companies based in other states to constitute legal presence in the state for tax purposes if those assets are employed in emergency related work.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
   FY 25: Negligible
   FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
   This preference may facilitate the response to future disasters by eliminating tax concerns of companies employing out-of-state resources. Firms will not be required to calculate and submit income tax withholdings for out-of-state individuals conducting infrastructure work during a declared emergency period. This may remove a potential barrier to bringing those individuals into the state.

   The revenue lost from this preference is likely to be negligible for two reasons. First, the probability of a declared disaster occurring during any given fiscal year is small and unpredictable. Second, enforcement would likely be low if Delaware chose to tax this activity.

5. Inadvertent Effects
   None noted.

1.18 Vocational Rehabilitation Hiring Credit

1. Statutory Provision
   Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 20B, §§20B-100 – 20B-104.

2. Description
   This preference provides an incentive for employers to hire individuals with a state certified physical or mental disability who are in the process of, or have completed, vocational rehabilitative services. Employers may claim a refundable credit against the bank franchise tax, corporate income tax, personal income tax, or insurance income tax equal to 10% of gross wages or $1,500, whichever is lower, for each qualified disabled worker they hire. Credits may be claimed in the year the qualified disabled worker is hired and for two subsequent years.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss
FY 25: (D)
FY 26: Negligible

4. Assessment
The credit is available for hiring occurring on or after January 1st, 2017 and may be taken in the year of the hiring and up to two years thereafter. The tax credit can provide a labor market advantage for individuals with a qualified disability to offset other employment disadvantages they might face.

5. Inadvertent Effects
Employers taking this credit may already employ individuals with a qualified disability and receive the federal WOTC. In these cases, the Vocational Rehabilitation Hiring Credit acts as a bonus rather than an incentive. Additionally, the record retention requirements of this credit increase the complexity of the tax return. As returns become more complicated, more errors are made when filing and more administrative costs are incurred during the tax verification process.

As a credit that overlaps with other federal incentives, it is important to note that any attempt to mirror the federal provisions on a piecemeal or incremental basis may mask fiscal impacts when evaluated independently. However, when combined, the impact of all preferences may be significant. While the goal of incentivizing work opportunities for the disadvantaged is a laudable one, achieving such a goal through direct appropriation or via a single tax preference linked to the federal WOTC would be simpler and more transparent.

1.19 Angel Investor Tax Credit

1. Statutory Provision
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 20D, §§20D-101 – 20D-110.

2. Description
This preference provides an incentive for investors to invest capital in qualified Delaware-based, high-tech small businesses. Qualified investors can claim a refundable tax credit of 25% of their qualified investment. The total credits awarded per year is capped at $5 million. The cumulative tax credit limit for qualified investors in one year is $250,000 for married couples filing jointly, $125,000 for individuals. No more than $500,000 in credits may be awarded for qualified investments in any one qualified business over all calendar years.

This provision expires for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2022. This assessment is included as credits generated in tax year 2021 could still be claimed through returns received in FY 2023.

3. Estimated Revenue Loss[10]
FY 25: N/A

4. Assessment
The purpose of the tax credit is to create an environment that supports small, high tech businesses, increases their access to capital, encourages companies to plant their "roots" in Delaware, grows the Delaware economy, and creates an environment that is attractive to new investment in the long term. Investors must maintain their investments in the business for three calendar years. If an investor fails to maintain investments in the business for the full three-year period, the tax credit may be revoked; if it is revoked, the credit must be repaid to the state in full. If a business fails to maintain certain expenditure and employment requirements over the three-year period, the tax credit is revoked and must be repaid to the state according to a repayment schedule (prorated 100%, 66.7% and 33.3%, depending on the number of years for which these requirements were met).

Given the low utilization of this credit when it was effective (tax years 2019 – 2021), this credit appears not to have been effective at creating an environment that supports small, high tech businesses, increasing their access to capital, encouraging companies to plant their "roots" in Delaware, growing the Delaware economy, and creating an environment that is attractive to new investment in the long term.

5. Inadvertent Effects
None noted.

[10] (D) = Per 30 Del. C. §368, the Department of Finance is prohibited from disclosing tax return information identifying specific taxpayers.

1.20 529 and ABLE Deduction

1. Statutory Provision
Title 30, Delaware Code, Chapter 11, §1106(b)(11) – 1106(b)(12)

2. Description
